Elders, Crime, and the Criminal Justice System

Myth, Perceptions, and Reality in the 21st Century

New

Max B. Rothman, JD, LL.M., Burton D. Dunlop, PhD and Pamela Entzel, JD, Editors

Examines the elderly as a growing part of the prison population, as patients in prisons, and as victims and perpetrators of crime. Each chapter documents current empirical data and identifies social policy and ethical implications. Perceptions of older people in the roles of judge, attorney, defendant, witness, and juror are also discussed.

Law and Social Work Practice, 2nd Edition

A Legal Systems Approach

New

Raymond Albert, MSW, JD

"His respected textbook remains a model of clarity and critical insight. There is simply no other book comparable in scope and rigor...with a teacher's version of perfect pitch."

-Richard Gaskins, Professor and Director
Legal Studies Program, Brandeis University

Completely updated and rewritten. A new section on socio-legal issues highlights many fields where social worker-lawyer partnerships can occur, such as civil rights, the death penalty, and liability for neglect in nursing homes. Filled with techniques for reading and understanding judicial opinion, legislative statutes, and bills.

REVIEW

Michael R. Sosin, Editor

Consistently ranked among the top tier journals in the field

Social Service Review has been the foremost source on social welfare research since 1927. A quarterly publication, SSR, is edited by the faculty of the School of Social Service Administration of the University of Chicago and is devoted to the wide-ranging scientific and professional interests of all those concerned with social welfare issues.

The Review features an array of thoughtful, peer-reviewed work, including careful empirical studies, high-quality essays or position papers, historical analyses, theoretical discussions, analyses of methods of practice, international studies, and debates with authors. Subscribers to SSR—including social welfare scholars and practitioners, sociologists, economists, theologians, historians, psychologists, and political scientists—will find themselves motivated by the journal's leading-edge ideas and theories, which continues to examine, inform, and influence social welfare research, policy, and practice.

the INSTITUTE for the ADVANCED STUDY of RELIGION at YALE

Sponsored by the Pew Charitable Trusts

ELIGIBILITY

Candidates from varied disciplines are invited to apply, so long as their research interests involve religion as a key component or variable. Research must also relate to the theme of American Religion and the Family.

AWARDS

Senior residential scholars will be awarded up to $75,000 and junior residential scholars up to $55,000. All residential fellows will be entitled to a housing subsidy, travel expenses and a research account.

Non-residential dissertation and research fellows will be awarded a stipend of $17,000 and post-doctoral fellows will receive a stipend of $34,000.

APPLICATION PROCESS AND DEADLINES

Applicants should send a complete Institute application form, a letter of intent, a copy of their c.v., a brief description (3–5 pages) of their research topic and two letters of recommendation by individuals acquainted with the applicant's work. Applicants for the dissertation fellowship should also send a copy of their graduate school transcripts. The Institute application may be obtained by contacting the Institute by phone at 203.432.4040, by email at iasry@yale.edu or through our website at www.yale.edu/iasry.

The application deadline for residential and non-residential fellowships for the 2001–2002 academic year is October 20, 2000.

CALL FOR APPLICATIONS AND NOMINATIONS
FOR FELLOWSHIPS 2001–2002

THE INSTITUTE FOR THE ADVANCED STUDY OF RELIGION AT YALE

The Institute for the Advanced Study of Religion at Yale, established through a grant from The Pew Charitable Trusts, centers comprehensive interdisciplinary research around the broad themes of American Religion in a rapidly changing world and opens opportunities for scholars throughout the world to confront issues about the role religion has played nationally and internationally.

2001–2002 RESIDENTIAL FELLOWSHIPS

Three advanced scholars will be invited to Yale to pursue individual research and writing within an interconnected environment of seminars, symposia, lectures and scholarly presentations. Fellows will interact with Yale faculty fellows and a wide panoply of staff, students, academic centers and departments throughout Yale.

Fellows will be expected to be in residence from September through May, to attend all Institute functions and to produce significant scholarship individually or in conjunction with other fellows. Fellows will also be given the option of teaching an undergraduate or graduate course.

For the 2001–2002 academic year, the Institute's theme will be American Religion and the Family.

2001–2002 NON-RESIDENTIAL FELLOWSHIPS

The Institute will award between four and eight non-residential dissertation fellowships, research fellowships, and post-doctoral (or first book) fellowships.

Applicants for a post doctoral fellowship must have their doctorate before the application deadline of October 20, 2000. Candidates who expect to complete their doctorate after the application deadline but before the beginning of the fellowship year qualify for a research fellowship.

Non-residential fellows will be expected to complete their dissertation or first book during their tenure as fellows. They will also be expected to visit Yale twice during their fellowship year, first for the Fall Fellows seminar and again for a national conference during the spring term.

The Common Place of Law

Stories from Everyday Life

PATRICIA EWICK AND SUSAN S. SILBEY

"The Common Place of Law will become a classic in socio-legal studies because it is as perceptive and subtle in its treatment of method as in its findings and insights of substance. Social scientists, scholars of literature, citizens interested in public affairs, civil rights advocates, and students will find this book fascinating and important."

—Martha Minow, Harvard Law School

Language and Legal Discourse

Just Words

Law, Language, and Power

JOHN M. CONLEY AND WILLIAM M. O'BARR

"From their careful analyses of discourse in legal settings as diverse as rape trials and divorce mediations, Conley and O'Barr demonstrate convincingly that power relationships pervade legal process. Just Words is both an engaging introduction to the study of legal anthropology, and a model for how such work should be done."

Lawrence M. Solan, Brooklyn Law School
