

NEWS AND NOTES

PERSONAL AND MISCELLANEOUS

Compiled by the Managing Editor

At the University of Chicago, Professor C. Herman Pritchett, during the past year acting chairman of the department of political science, has been appointed chairman.

After serving since 1940 as associate professor and professor of international relations at Columbia University, Professor Grayson L. Kirk has become provost and will act as principal assistant to President Dwight D. Eisenhower in coordinating university affairs.

On October 14, Professor James K. Pollock, of the University of Michigan, addressed the New York State Political Science Association on the work of the Hoover Commission, of which he was a member.

Dr. Vernon Van Dyke, located at Yale University during the past several years, is now an associate professor at the State University of Iowa.

Professor Royden J. Dangerfield, of the University of Wisconsin, now on leave while serving as chairman of the academic faculty of the National War College, will return to his post for the second semester.

Professor Lloyd M. Short has accepted appointment as the representative of the University of Minnesota on the board of trustees of the national Center on Education and Social Security. He also has been appointed a member of the Interim Commission on Efficiency and Economy established in 1949 by the legislature of Minnesota.

At the University of Chicago, Professor Leo Strauss gave a series of lectures during the autumn quarter on "Natural Right and History," under the auspices of the Walgreen Foundation.

Professor Quincy Wright, of the University of Chicago, has been elected chairman of the provisional executive committee of the International Political Science Association. He was in Paris for the UNESCO conference on formation of the International Association, and also lectured at Stuttgart, Munich, and Berlin during September under the auspices of Military Government.

President Irvin Stewart, of West Virginia University, was the principal speaker at a forum under the auspices of the Woman's College Student Government Association at Duke University, December 1-3. He discussed student government from the point of view of a university administrator.

On September 1, Mr. John Gange became director of the Woodrow Wilson School of Foreign Affairs and professor of foreign affairs at the University of Virginia.

Professor Morley Ayearst, of New York University, has accepted appointment as director of evening studies in Washington Square College.

At Stanford University, Professor Philip W. Buck, who has returned from a year's sabbatical leave spent in research in England and France, has succeeded Professor Arnaud B. Leavelle as executive head of the department of political science.

At the 51st annual conference of the League of California Cities, held at San Francisco, October 24-26, Professor Robert A. Walker, of Stanford University, led a panel discussion on "The Responsibilities and Problems of Planning Commissions in Carrying Out the Planning Function in Government."

On October 20-22, Professor Leonard D. White, of the University of Chicago, lectured at Wayne University in connection with the special program in public administration arranged for the Volker Fellows. On November 11, he addressed the Southern Political Science Association at Knoxville, Tennessee, on "Political Science: Mid-Century."

Under the auspices of the Chicago Daily News, Mr. Phillips Talbot, of the University of Chicago, is on a four-month study tour of India, Pakistan, and the countries of Southeast Asia.

Professor Alfred J. Hotz, formerly of Triple Cities College, Syracuse University, has accepted an associate professorship at Western Reserve University, where he is especially concerned, in collaboration with the Cleveland Council on World Affairs, with developing a new program in citizenship and world affairs leading to the master's degree.

At the University of Wisconsin, the leave of absence of Professor William H. Young has been extended until September, 1950, to permit him to continue as full-time assistant to the governor of the state and director of the state division of administrative analysis.

Professor Ralph K. Huitt, of the University of Texas, has joined the political science staff at the University of Wisconsin in substitution for Professor John T. Salter, on leave in the Philippines this year, and in the second semester will inaugurate a course on "The Politics of Private Groups."

At the University of Missouri, where department chairmanships are rotated, Professor Martin L. Faust has been relieved of the duty, with Professor Robert F. Karsch serving as acting chairman during the past summer and Professor John G. Heinberg appointed for the current academic year.

Professor Roy Blough, of the University of Chicago, spent the month of September in Turkey consulting with the Turkish government on problems of taxation.

Dr. M. B. Travis, who taught at Syracuse University last year, has joined the political science staff at Duke University, where he is continuing his work in the field of Latin American relations.

While on leave from Duke University, Professor Richard W. Van Wagenen is serving as visiting associate professor at Columbia University.

During the past summer, Professor Lee S. Greene, of the University of Tennessee, offered courses on the administration of natural-resource conservation at the University of California (Los Angeles).

Mr. William F. Larsen, who has completed the requirements for the doctorate at the University of California (Berkeley), has been appointed assistant professor of political science at The Citadel.

Mr. James K. Coleman received his doctorate in international relations at the University of Chicago in September and has been appointed to an assistant professorship at the University of South Dakota.

At the University of Redlands, Dr. Lester H. Phillips is now director of the division of social science, succeeding Dr. Bernard Hyink, who has become dean of students at the University of Southern California.

Dr. Bronis Kazlauskas, of the Detroit University Schools, Grosse Pointe, Michigan, has accepted an appointment at Wilkes College, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and will offer courses on international relations and comparative government. He has also recently been elected to membership in the Institute of European Studies, Strasbourg, France.

Mr. A. Freeman Holmer, formerly instructor at New York University, has accepted an assistant professorship at Willamette University, where he will revive work in public administration dormant since 1942.

Dr. James C. Charlesworth, of the University of Pennsylvania, has been named associate editor of The Annals of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, beginning November 1.

At Ohio State University, Dr. Dayton E. Heckman and Dr. Louis Nemzer have been advanced to the rank of associate professor, and Dr. David Spitz to the rank of assistant professor.

Dr. Robert F. Cushman, who received his doctorate at Cornell University, has been appointed to an instructorship at Ohio State University.

Mr. John J. Hebal, formerly teaching assistant at UCLA and the University of Alabama, was recently appointed research associate with the Research Council for Economic Security, Chicago, an organization studying social security problems.

At the American University, Dr. Lowell H. Hattery, assistant professor of public administration, has been appointed assistant chairman of the department of public administration.

Dr. Laurence Sears, of Mills College, is serving as visiting professor at the University of California (Berkeley) during the current academic year, offering work in recent American political thought during the sabbatical leave of Professor Harold Winkler.

The department of political science at the University of California (Berkeley) reports the death of Mr. L. Deming Tilton, lecturer in the field of planning, and former director of planning for the city and county of San Francisco and member of the State Planning Board.

Dr. Elaine Windrich, of Stanford University, has been in charge of Professor Hugh A. Bone's autumn quarter classes at the University of Washington during the latter's visit at Stanford.

Mr. William H. Harbold, who is completing his doctoral dissertation for a Harvard degree, is teaching undergraduate courses in theory at the University of Washington.

Professor Norman D. Palmer, of the University of Pennsylvania, has been appointed chairman of the study groups committee of the World Affairs Council of Philadelphia.

Professor Edgar B. Cale, of the University of Pennsylvania, has been made executive secretary of the Philadelphia Charter Commission.

Professor Charles M. Kneier, of the University of Illinois, has been appointed by Governor Stevenson to the State Police Merit Board, which is responsible for administering the newly established merit system for state highway police.

Professor John A. Vieg, of Pomona College, is one of five persons recently appointed to the committee for social studies proficiency tests administered by the College Entrance Examination Board. The committee reviews the tests prepared by the Board's educational testing service.

The following persons have been added to the faculty of the School of Public Administration at the University of Southern California: Professor John S. Harris, formerly with the University of Cincinnati; Professor William B. Storm, formerly of the University of Chicago; and Professor Donal E. J. MacNamara, formerly with Rutgers University.

The professional degree of doctor of public administration, designed for specialization in leadership and service in the field of public administration, is now awarded on recommendation of the faculty of the School of Public Administration at the University of Southern California.

At the Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton, New Jersey, the School of Humanistic Studies and the School of Economics and Politics have been merged into a single school to be called the School of Historical Studies.

The twenty-sixth annual session of the Institute for World Affairs at Riverside, California, will be under the direction of Professor Charles E. Martin, of the University of Washington. Professors Cole, Maki, and Taylor of the same institution will participate in discussion of various aspects of the session topic, "Prospects for World Stability."

Professor Henry Reining, Jr., of the University of Southern California, has accepted an appointment as consultant to the U. S. Commissioner of Reclamation.

Professor Philip E. Jacob, of the University of Pennsylvania, lectured on international organization at two of the seven-weeks' International Service Seminars conducted by the American Friends Service Committee during the summer. Graduate and undergraduate students from nineteen countries participated in the seminar at Bennington College, Vermont; sixteen countries were represented at the seminar at Woodstock, Illinois. Study and discussion centered on problems of peace-making with particular reference to the functions and achievements of the United Nations.

Mr. Ross Y. Koen, formerly a graduate student at the University of Michigan, has been appointed to an instructorship at the University of Florida.

During the past summer, Mr. Harold L. Enarson, of Stanford University, served as executive secretary to the President's Steel Industry Board.

Mr. Lane Davis, who will receive his doctor's degree at Cornell University at the next convocation, has been appointed instructor at the State University of Iowa.

At the University of Kansas, Drs. Hilden Gibson and E. O. Stene have been advanced to full professorships and Dr. Eldon Fields to an assistant professorship.

Professor George A. Lanyi, of Brown University, has been awarded the Robert Noxon Toppan Prize at Harvard University for the best doctoral dissertation in political science in the academic year 1949-50. His subject was "Oliver Cromwell and His Age; A Study of Nationalism."

At the University of Southern California, Mr. Lowell G. Noonan has been appointed instructor and is teaching in the fields of theory and comparative government.

After many years of service, Dr. Christen Jensen, of Brigham Young University, has been retired with the rank of dean emeritus of the Graduate School and professor emeritus of history and political science.

At the University of California, Dr. Carl Q. Christol, Jr., recently engaged in law practice in southern California, has been appointed visiting associate professor and is teaching courses in the field of public law.

At the University of Alabama, Dr. Wladyslaw W. Kulski, who during the past two years has been a lecturer in political science, became a professor in the department on September 1. He is continuing to offer courses in international law and comparative government.

Professor David Fellman, of the University of Wisconsin, delivered two lectures at the Air War College at Maxwell Field, Alabama, in early September, and Professor Fred A. Clarenbach presented a paper on the contribution of John Dewey to social theory in a University of Wisconsin symposium commemorating the ninetieth birthday of John Dewey on October 20.

Professor Guy H. Dodge, of Brown University, is on sabbatical leave during the current academic year and is in France carrying on research on the political ideas of Benjamin Constant and Restoration Liberalism, for which purpose he received a Fulbright Fellowship. His courses in political theory at Brown are being given by Mr. John C. Murray, who has become an instructor.

Professor Wilbert L. Hindman has been granted a year's leave of absence from his position as department chairman at the University of Southern California to accept a dual appointment as visiting expert with the Civil Administration Division of OMGUS, and as coördinator of the German Visitors' Program at the University of Michigan. During his absence, Dr. Totton J. Anderson is serving as acting chairman of the department at Los Angeles.

Professor Sigmund Neumann has returned to his post at Wesleyan University after five months in Germany as visiting expert with OMGUS. During the period, he was concerned with the development of the social and political sciences in higher education and also served as visiting professor at the Universities of Munich and Berlin (Free University) and the Deutsche Hochschule für Politik in Berlin.

In a departmental reorganization at Michigan State College, political science has been separated from history and combined with public administration in a new department of political science and public administration. The department head is Professor Milton E. Muelder, lately returned from an extended tour of duty with Military Government in Germany.

At the University of Wisconsin, Professor Sverre Kjeldstadli, visiting instructor in the Scandinavian Areas Program, is offering courses on the governments of Scandinavia and the foreign relations of Scandinavia in the political science department in coöperation with the Areas program.

Professor Luther J. Lee, Jr., member of the Pomona College faculty since 1941, and of late associate professor of government and assistant to the president, has been appointed assistant field director of the Committee for Economic Development, a non-profit, non-political organization of leaders in business and education.

After an absence of seven months, spent partly in observing United Nations activities at Lake Success, Washington, Paris, Geneva, and London, and partly as visiting expert in the Democratization Branch of the Civil Administration Division of OMGUS, with headquarters at Frankfurt, Professor Ivan Stone has returned to his regular post at Beloit College.

Instructors lately added to the political science staff at the University of Kansas include Messrs. Aubrey Bradley, Kenneth Beasley, and Robert Eichborn, holding degrees from the local institution, and William Cape, of the University of Wyoming. Mr. Norman Blacher, of Stanford University, also has joined the staff as a research assistant and is devoting most of his time to developing the Bureau of Government's training programs for public officials.

The State College of Washington announces as new appointees in the department of history and political science Dr. H. Paul Castleberry, of the University of Chicago, as assistant professor of international relations, and Dr. Daniel M. Ogden, Jr., of the same institution, as instructor in political parties.

Four new instructors, recently graduate students at the institutions named, joined the political science staff at the University of Alabama on September 1: Messrs. Robert T. Daland (University of Wisconsin), Charles D. Farris (University of Chicago), Grady H. Nunn (New York University), and Donald S. Vaughan (Columbia University).

Professor Norman Alexander, of the University of New Hampshire, is serving as a member of the governor's Advisory Commission on the Reorganization of the State Government, and Professor George H. Deming, executive secretary of the Bureau of Government Research at the same institution, has been named consultant to the Commission.

The Social Science Research Council has announced that Dr. Richard H. Heindel, professional staff associate with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, will shortly join its Washington office as executive associate on research and other international problems affecting the social sciences. Before taking up his work with the Senate committee, Dr. Heindel, formerly of the University of Pennsylvania, was chief of the Division of Libraries and Institutes in the Department of State and at the London Embassy directed the first of the United States information libraries.

An Institute of Public Affairs was established on October 1 at the State University of Iowa to serve municipal, county, and state officials of Iowa in a research capacity and to act as a service link between them and the University. The director is Dr. Robert F. Ray, and Dr. Dean Zenor heads the Institute's research activities.

The Institute for Human Adjustment at the University of Michigan announces six new graduate fellowships for research in metropolitan community problems. The stipend is one thousand dollars, plus travel expenses, and the appointments are open to graduates with one year of training in political science and other social science fields. Applications must be filed by February 15, 1950.

The Washington Chapter of the American Political Science Association announces the following officers for 1949-50: Fritz Morstein Marx (U. S. Bureau of the Budget), president; R. G. Steinmeyer (University of Maryland), first vice-president; H. Schuyler Foster (Department of State), second vice-president; and Vincent J. Browne (Howard University), secretary-treasurer. Council members include George L. Millikan (Brookings Institution), Paul K. Morris (U. S. Bureau of the Budget), and Cathryn Seckler-Hudson (American University).

At invitation of the Law Faculty of the University of Buenos Aires, the Colegio de Abogados of the University of La Platte, the University of Montevideo, the Minister of Foreign Affairs and the Ministry of Instruction of Brazil, and the Brazilian Society of International Law, Professor Hans Kelsen, of the University of California (Berkeley), delivered a number of lectures during the past summer. A series of four on "Problems of the Pure Theory of Law," given at the University of Buenos Aires, will be published in French and Spanish. During his visit to Buenos Aires, a complete bibliography of Professor Kelsen's works was published in his honor.

The death of Professor Raymond G. Gettell, of the University of California (Berkeley), brought to a close the career of an outstanding teacher and scholar in the field of political theory. His first work, Introduction to Political Science, was published at the age of twenty-nine. He began his teaching career also at an early age, becoming a full professor at Amherst when only thirty-three. He went to the University of California in 1923, and there acquired a reputation not only as a lucid teacher but as an administrator, serving at various times as dean, chairman of the department of political science, and director of the summer sessions. As a lecturer, he was in great demand throughout the state.

Pomona College has recently established an Institute of Public Affairs with a view to contributing to informed discussion of basic issues of public policy among business, professional, labor, and community leaders throughout the Pacific Southwest. The Institute's first undertaking was a conference on December 2 on "Voluntary Action in a Free Society," directed to (a) taking stock of the vitality of American incentives for solving social problems through voluntary methods, and (b) examining the prospects of meeting the need for more and better and less expensive medical care without recourse to the powers and resources of the state. Professor John A. Vieg served as chairman of the conference committee.

The New Jersey Political Science Teachers Conference held its 1949 meeting at Rutgers University on October 29. The program, sponsored by the University and the state department of education, and assembled by Dr. John J. George, consisted of seminars on the Atlantic Pact, Russia, labor legislation, taxation in New Jersey, and the state's current gubernatorial campaign. Nineteen delegates from fourteen institutions participated.

A Municipal Technical Advisory Service, conducted in coöperation with the Tennessee Municipal League, and designed to provide technical aid to Tennessee cities, has been established by the legislature at the University of Tennessee. Mr. Gerald W. Shaw, formerly of the Government Research Staff of TVA, is the recently appointed director and Dr. Lee S. Greene is chairman of the executive board through which other agencies in the University are brought into contact with the Service.

The Southern Institute of Local Government of the University of Tennessee conducted five meetings in October dealing with constitutional revision in Tennessee. Principal speakers included Dean William Bradshaw, of the University of Missouri, Professors Daniel Grant and Henry Williams, of Vanderbilt University, and Professor C. C. Sims, of Middle Tennessee State College.

A Southeastern Conference on United States Foreign Policy was held on the campus of the University of Florida November 2, 3, and 4. With discussion leaders provided by the United States Department of State, round tables were conducted on various aspects of American foreign-policy formation. Problems of inter-American relations were also given prominent consideration.

A joint meeting of the Southern California Political Scientists and the Pacific Southwest Academy held at Claremont, California, on October 7 was devoted to "Our Current Political Malaise," with Dean D. E. McHenry, of U.C.L.A., President George S. C. Benson, of Claremont Men's College, Professor Carlton C. Rodee, of the University of Southern California, and Messrs. McIntire Faries and James Roosevelt, Republican and Democratic national committeemen from California, respectively, as speakers.

From August 27 to September 2, a conference on Methods of Analyzing Political Behavior was held at the University of Michigan, with the Social Science Research Council as sponsor and the Michigan department of political science and Institute for Social Research as hosts. A grant from the Carnegie Corporation covered travel and living expenses of the participants. Topics discussed included: "Report on New England Political Behavior Project," "Study of Southern Politics," "A Sociological Approach to Politics," "Political Attitudes and Voting Behavior of the Urban Electorate," "Preelection Polls of 1948," "Problems of Prediction," and "Organized Groups and Political Behavior."

Professor Waldemar Gurian, editor of the Review of Politics, has been named director of the Committee on International Relations of the University of Notre Dame, of which Professor Ferdinand A. Hermens is also a member. The Committee has been formed to conduct research in the interrelations of religion, democracy, and international order, and is financed in part by a grant from the Rockefeller Foundation. Present plans, including a series of publications, call for a three-year program, with gradually diminishing assistance from the Foundation.

Dr. William H. George, formerly professor of political science and dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences at the University of Hawaii, died in Honolulu on September 23 after a lengthy illness. He was seventy-one years of age. A native of Northwood, Ohio, he received his B. A. degree from Harvard in 1903, his M. A. from Princeton in 1906, and his Ph. D. from Harvard in 1921. Before going to Hawaii in 1930, Dr. George was a member of the political science departments at the University of California (Los Angeles) and the University of Washington. Besides his frequent contributions to periodicals and reviews on the West Coast and in Hawaii, he was the author (with Professor Charles E. Martin) of American Government and Citizenship, published in 1927.

Professor Boris Mirkine-Guetzévitch has recently returned after his yearly stay in Paris, where he taught at the Institute of Advanced International Studies of the University of Paris and at the National School of Administration. As co-director of the Section of Public Law of the Institute of Comparative Law of the University of Paris, he closed, with a lecture, the commemoration of the bicentennial of L'Esprit des Lois of Montesquieu. Professor Mirkine-Guetzévitch was elected in July vice-president of the International Academy of Political Science and Constitutional History, a member of the board of directors of the Society of Comparative Legislation, and a member of the editorial board of the new Revue internationale de droit comparé.

Under the sponsorship of the Committee on International and Regional Studies at Harvard University, the Institute of International Studies at Yale University, the School of International Affairs at Columbia University, the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs at Princeton University, and the School of Economics and Politics of the Institute for Advanced Studies, a conference on problems of modern France will be held at Princeton, New Jersey, February 1-4, 1950. Attendance will be by invitation among historians, economists, political scientists, students of literature, and perhaps others. The general purpose is to bring together American scholars professionally interested in problems of modern France to take stock of and to appraise work on France currently under way in American colleges and universities, and to consider ways and means for the further development of French studies in the United States. Professors Edward Mead Earle and William Ebenstein, of Princeton University, are chairman and secretary, respectively.

A meeting of experts was convened in New York City on November 4, 5 and 6 by UNESCO to plan research by social scientists upon the techniques of the international conference. The disciplines of social psychology, psychiatry, cultural anthropology, sociology, and political science were represented. Other participants included members of the secretariat of the United Nations, a permanent delegate to UN, and a member of the executive board of UNESCO. Professor Walter R. Sharp, of the City College of New York, on leave with UNESCO, presided, and Professor Charles S. Ascher, of Brooklyn College, consultant to UNESCO, served as secretary. Additional political scientists present were Professors Frederick N. Dunn, of Yale University, Leland Goodrich, of Brown University, and Philip Mosely, of the Russian Institute of Columbia University.

The University of Louisville and the city of Louisville are coöperating in the education of future public administrators. Undergraduate political science majors are gaining experience in municipal administration, are paid for the experience by the city, and receive credit for it from the university. The student is placed in a municipal department on a half-time basis for one fiscal year, during which period he is moved from bureau to bureau, so as to receive overall administrative experience. The project started as a mere matter of enabling students to "learn by doing" under experienced supervision with no commitment as to full-time placement. Nevertheless, during the first fiscal year two of the three departments then involved kept the interns as full-time assistants to the director. Coöperation has been secured in one department at a time, until today interns are working in the departments of finance, personnel, planning and zoning, welfare, parks and recreation; and a placement will be effective this winter in public works. To establish the internship program with some degree of permanence, a specific "class" for the student interns was recently added in the municipal classification system.

During the summer, a meeting of the International Institute of Public Law, the first since the war, was held at the Salle des Actes of the Faculty of Law, in Paris, under the chairmanship of M. Gaston Jèze, honorary professor at the Faculty of Law. The last previous meeting took place in Paris in 1938. A report was presented by Professor B. Mirkin-Guetzévitch on "Individual Liberties in Modern States" and was followed by a general discussion. The Institute decided to resume publishing the Library of the International Institute of Public Law, and likewise the Institute's Yearbook, which appeared from 1928 to 1940 and contained constitutional and legislative texts. The following board of directors was named for a term of two years: president, Georges Scelle (France); delegates to the Board, A. Alvarez (Chile), Gaston Jèze (France), H. Kelsen (United States), F. Nitti (Italy), Roscoe Pound (United States), H. Rollin (Belgium); general secretary, B. Mirkin-Guetzévitch (France); and treasurer, L. Rolland (France). The next session of the Institute will be held in Paris in 1951.

The International Political Science Association. The constitution for an International Political Science Association was agreed upon by a conference held in Paris under the auspices of UNESCO from September 12 to 16, 1949. At the Beirut Conference of UNESCO in December, 1948, the Director-General was authorized to assist in the formation of international associations in the social sciences by grants-in-aid. As a result, conferences have been held and international associations projected during the past year in the fields of economics, sociology, and comparative law, as well as political science. A conference on social psychology is to be held. UNESCO has already begun the publication of a quarterly International Social Science Bulletin, which will