

LETTER FROM THE CENTRE

Since our reluctant call for subscription money enclosed with our last issue, we have been amazed at the number of readers who have rallied to our cause and sent us cheques for U.S. $12. We are both embarrassed and gratified-- happy that you have voted for us with your chequebook, but hardly so that we had to ask you for money at all. We might add that our lords and masters in the university are merciful in one dimension and do not expect payment from faculty members and students to whom it would exact hardship. If it does, please drop us a note to that effect. And, of course, the call for subscription fees has no bearing whatever on our standing institutional exchange agreements.

We hope that the contents of this issue, which range from Chinese reactions to Christianity through Latin American Studies in Spain to the life and work of a leading Indian historian and the procedures of collecting oral history, will continue to stimulate your own thinking.
