The Seven Deadly Sins of Legal Writing

Theodore L. Blumberg

A most cogent guide to good legal writing. Blumberg emphasizes the importance of cultivating a clear and engaging prose style. He not only provides a typology of the profession's most common literary sins; he explores the motivations behind them. At once witty and exhilarating, The Seven Deadly Sins of Legal Writing will change the way lawyers and scholars do business.

Under pressure of disbarment this book should be read and understood by every lawyer, most of whom forget they, and the judges who read their miserable briefs, are human beings.

— Gerry Spence

A remarkable and concise roadmap to more effective, intelligible and persuasive legal writing. An invaluable desktop resource.

— Theodore B. Olson

Theodore L. Blumberg practices corporate and entertainment law in Manhattan. A graduate of Temple University School of Law, he is a frequent contributor to The New York Law Journal and a lecturer in the Fahringer seminars in legal writing.

SUNY Press Resumes Publication of the Cooper Edition

The “Writings of James Fenimore Cooper” (the “Cooper Edition”) is delighted to announce that the State University of New York Press has resumed publication of our scholarly texts. SUNY Press published seventeen titles between 1980 and 1991, after which the now-defunct AMS Press took over our publications. We are especially happy that SUNY Press plans to re-issue the nine texts AMS published before its bankruptcy in 2016.

In 2018 SUNY Press published The Wing-And-Wing, and plans soon to reissue The Chainbearer (AMS, 2016) and a revised text of The Spy (AMS, 2000).

Planning for the Bicentennial of The Spy

The reissue of The Spy: A Tale of the Neutral Ground is especially timely; it was first published on December 22, 1821. Thus the bicentennial of the work which established Cooper’s national and international fame will occur in two years.

Members of the Advisory Committee of “The Writings of James Fenimore Cooper” and of the American Antiquarian Society have begun to plan a series of events and publications to celebrate the beginning of Cooper’s career as America’s most influential—and most read—antebellum novelist. For information on these plans, contact Ashley Cataldo at the American Antiquarian Society at acataldo@mwa.org or the Cooper Edition Editor in Chief, Lance Schachterle, at les@wpi.edu.

(NEW) FASCISM CONTAGION, COMMUNITY, MYTH

NIDESH LAWTOO

Fascism tends to be relegated to a dark chapter of European history, but what if new forms of fascism are currently returning to the forefront of the contemporary political scene? This study shows that (new) fascism reloads the old problematics of mimetic contagion, community, and myth via new media that have the disquieting power to turn politics itself into a fiction.

SHAKESPEAREAN CULTURES LATIN AMERICA AND THE CHALLENGES OF MIMESIS IN NON-HEGEMONIC CIRCUMSTANCES

JOÃO CEZAR DE CASTRO ROCHA, TRANSLATED BY FLORA THOMSON-DEVEAUX

Shakespearean Cultures proposes a new theoretical framework that, based upon the concepts of “poetics of emulation” and “deauratized art,” offers a groundbreaking approach to the understanding of the asymmetries of the world-system, triggered by the emergence of the modern world.

EVOLUTION OF DESIRE A LIFE OF RENÉ GIRARD

CYNTHIA L. HAVEN

René Girard (1923–2015) was one of the leading thinkers of our era—a provocative sage who offered a bold, sweeping vision of human nature, human history, and human destiny. In this first-ever biographical study, Cynthia L. Haven traces the evolution of Girard’s thought in parallel with his life and times, and reveals his insights into the collective delusions of our technological world and the changing nature of warfare. Evolution of Desire: A Life of René Girard provides an essential introduction to one of the twentieth century’s most controversial and original minds.

“Revolutionary Change”

Historians have always considered moments of revolutionary change to be central objects of study. These moments do not necessarily involve politics, and are not limited to the modern world. The word “revolutionary” itself may be a relatively recent coinage (dating from the early modern period), but the sorts of change that it denotes have taken place in every area of human activity, and in every time and place. Revolutionary change is rapid and destabilizing. It is also dynamic, in the sense that it does not simply reflect or extend the forces which originally generated it, but builds on itself in original and often wholly-unpredictable ways. It can be both destructive and creative. It can entail a frightful human cost, but it can also open up new human possibilities and freedoms. It can take place on many different spatial and temporal scales—and at the same time, it can radically transform human understandings of the scales themselves.

In 2020-22, the Davis Center seeks applications from historians working on revolutionary change in any period of human history, and in any area, including (but not limited to) the histories of politics, culture, ideas, social structure, gender relations, sexuality, race relations, religion and the environment. We also welcome applications from historians working on the concept of revolutionary change itself, on how moments of such change are retrospectively identified, and on failed, incomplete or ineffective examples. We are particularly interested in developing conversations among historians working on revolutionary change in different areas and periods.

Fellowships are awarded to employed scholars who are expected to return to their position. Verification of employment and salary will be requested prior to approval by the Dean of the Faculty. PhD required.

Special Issue
Talking Revolution: Marx's Speeches
Volume 45, Number 2 ~ Fall 2018

<https://nineteenthcenturyprose.org>

Special Issue: "Talking Revolution: Marx's Speeches"

In engaging with Marx's speeches as languages of struggle for a new society free from class relations, this special issue of Nineteenth-Century Prose draws a new map of contemporary theory. It situates Marx's speeches—from the Inaugural Address to the First International to speeches on the Paris Commune—in the ever contemporary labor and capital relations. Historicizing speech in modern bourgeois theory, the essays demonstrate how speech was barred in neoliberal deconstruction, which displaced emancipation from class with liberation from the "metaphysics of presence," and how, in the newer "derivatives"—Speculative Realism, Object-Oriented Ontology, New Materialism—speech as the active discourse of class struggles is silenced through the tropes of "correlation," "withholding," "networks," and "federated agency" in the affirmative concretes of post-critique. The affirmative concrete obscures the "real abstraction" of digital exchanges in the market and replaces class with "interlinked communities" and turns collectivities into affinities. Speech, and this is the political imperative of speaking of Marx speaking, is the ruthless living critique of capital's "Working Day."

"Speaking of Communism: How Badiou Subtracts Class from Marx's Speeches on the Paris Commune to Produce a New (Infantile) Communism"
Stephen Tumino

Appendices: A Selection of Marx's Speeches

"An exceptional contribution to social and cultural theory. These essays not only offer new, path breaking interpretations of Marx's speeches which have not been the focus of substantive analysis, but in reading Marx, they retrace contemporary theory to its class interest and write a new theory of theory."

— Peter McLaren, author of Che Guevara, Paulo Freire, and the Pedagogy of Revolution
