PAST AND PRESENT

a journal of historical studies

Past and Present appears in February, May, August and November. It aims to publish a wide variety of scholarly and original historical articles primarily concerned with social, economic and cultural changes, and their causes and consequences.

Past and Present has a very well-established reputation. The French journal Annales has referred to it as "la plus grande revue d'histoire du monde anglophone." A review in the Times Higher Educational Supplement stated that "No historical periodical has done more than Past and Present to influence the study and teaching of history in British universities. . . . It has proved extremely fertile in new interpretations, ideas and controversies. . . . What makes Past and Present so invigorating is that it encourages historians to extend their horizons and ask new questions."

Recent important articles have included the following:

Robert Brenner, "Agrarian Class Structure and Economic Development in Pre-Industrial Europe" (no. 70, Feb. 1976)

Symposium on the article by Robert Brenner, with contributions by M.M. Postan and John Hatcher, Patricia Croot and David Parker, Heide Wunder, Emmanuel Le Roy Ladurie, Guy Bois, R.H. Hilton, and Arnošt Klíma (nos. 78-85, Feb. 1978 - Nov. 1979)

J.P. Cooper, "In Search of Agrarian Capitalism" (no. 80, Aug. 1978)

W.D. Rubinstein, "Wealth, Elites and the Class Structure of Modern Britain" (no. 76, Aug. 1977)

J.D.Y. Peel, "Conversion and Tradition in Two African Societies: Ijebu and Buganda" (no. 77, Nov. 1977)

Allan Sharlin, "Natural Decrease in Early Modern Cities: A Reconsideration" (no. 79, May 1978)

Heraclio Bonilla, "The War of the Pacific and the National and Colonial Problem in Peru" (no. 81, Nov. 1978)

Gavin Lewis, "The Peasantry, Rural Change and Conservative Agrarianism: Lower Austria at the Turn of the Century" (no. 81, Nov. 1978)

Linda Lewin, "Social Banditry in Brazil" (no. 82, Feb. 1979)

John Barber, "The Establishment of Intellectual Orthodoxy in the U.S.S.R. 1928-1934" (no. 83, May 1979)

Barrie Dyster, "Argentine and Australian Development Compared" (no. 84, Aug. 1979)

David Arnold, "Looting, Grain Riots and Government Policy in South India 1918" (no. 84, Aug. 1979)

Michael Craton, "Proto-Peasant Revolts? The Late Slave Rebellions in the British West Indies 1816-1832" (no. 85, Nov. 1979)

A Jesuit Hacienda in Colonial Mexico

SANTA LUCÍA, 1576–1767. Herman W. Konrad. Despite their lack of experience in rural economics, the Jesuits created in Santa Lucía one of the largest and most prosperous haciendas in colonial Mexico. This richly detailed study reconstructs the history of Santa Lucía, and provides new insights for recasting basic views of the nature of haciendas and colonial society. About $25.00

Women and Marriage in Kpelle Society

Caroline H. Bledsoe. An examination of the ways in which economic and political opportunities for men and women influence marriage patterns among the Kpelle of Liberia, this study focuses in particular on women's use of domestic and marital institutions to acquire the wealth and status needed to gain independence for themselves, yet maintain control over others. Illus. $16.50

Ilongot Headhunting, 1883–1974

A STUDY IN SOCIETY AND HISTORY. Renato Rosaldo. Challenging the fashionable view that so-called primitives live in a timeless present, this study combines historical and ethnographic method to show that the practice of headhunting among the Ilongots of Northern Luzon was not an unchanging ancient custom, but a cultural practice that has shifted dramatically over the course of the past century. Illus. $18.50

Long Engagements

MATURITY IN MODERN JAPAN. David W. Plath. Through a series of vivid case studies, this work shows how the qualities of the mature person evolve across the adult years in contemporary middle-class Japan, and how a person and his consociates—those who grow older along with him—sustain long engagements of interaction in which they shape the direction and pace of one another's individual development. $17.50

São Paulo in the Brazilian Federation, 1889–1937

Joseph L. Love. This study of Brazilian regionalism focuses on the politics, economy, and society of São Paulo, an area of rapid economic growth where political elites pioneered in state intervention in society and the economy, and in the process confused the interests of São Paulo with their own. The main characters in this ethnographic survey are individuals often ignored in other historical studies. The author explores the relationships between a distinctive criminal subculture and "respectable" society in a Spanish Hapsburg city. $14.00

THEORY and SOCIETY

Renewal and Critique in Social Theory

Editors:

Rod Aya, Anthony Giddens, Erving Goffman, Alvin W. Gouldner, Jerome Karabel, Derek Phillips, Paul Walton.

Theory and Society is an undogmatic, bi-monthly journal of the social sciences, produced by a worldwide fellowship of scholars who seek, through synthesis of sociology and marxism, to deepen understanding of the 'present as history' and to renew critical social theory. It is published for critical sociologists, independent marxists, and for other unpacified intellectuals and endangered species. Produced by scholars unencumbered by academic fences or by political piety, we write for those creating their own intellectual vision without buying packaged tours of the social world.

Theory and Society is a critic of both normal sociology and normal marxism. We are dismayed by academic sociology's propensity to become an administrative instrument of state policy, and by many marxists' complicity in oppression. For example, by the Cambodian government's brutalization of its own people, Vietnamese invasion of Cambodia, Chinese invasion of Vietnam, not to speak of the Soviet Union's invasions of Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Afghanistan. Theory and Society is published by and for those who see no reason to choose between dinosaurs.

Theory and Society works to keep sociology and marxism open to one another, seeking to stimulate and to husband social theory's great traditions. Preserving the viable work of Max Weber, Emile Durkheim, and Karl Marx, we also develop them in creative directions suggested (for example) by Antonio Gramsci, Barrington Moore, C. Wright Mills, Max Horkheimer, Eric Hobsbawm, Jürgen Habermas, Michel Foucault, and Raymond Williams. Rather than the partisan of some special theory, then, Theory and Society is the guardian of a larger theoretic culture. Subsidized neither by professional associations, universities, nor private benefactors, Theory and Society has grown only because it publishes work of excellence and interest to its readers.

Comparative Studies in Society and History is a forum for presentation and discussion of new research into problems of change and stability that recur in human societies through time or in the contemporary world. It sets up a working alliance between specialists in all branches of the social sciences and humanities. Debate and review articles bring the general reader in touch with current findings and issues.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Contributions may be descriptive, analytical or theoretical. Any article not in itself comparative may be accepted if it lends itself to comment that will place it in comparative perspective. Correspondence with the editors prior to the submission of articles will help to enable them to obtain such comment or a companion study. Emphasis in comparative studies may be either on similarities or, if these are significant enough and call for some recasting of generalisations, on differences. All contributions and editorial correspondence should be sent to the Editors, Comparative Studies in Society and History, Department of History, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48109.

Two copies of each contribution, preferably accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope, should be submitted. Both text and footnotes should be clearly typed with double spacing and wide margins; footnotes should appear on separate pages at the end of the article. Illustrations may be included by arrangement with the editors.

Contributors will receive 50 offprints. Any additional offprints must be ordered on receipt of the first proof.
