
People in Political Science

Activities

Jonathan R. Adelman, associate professor at the Graduate School of International Studies at the University of Denver, has been invited on four overseas trips this academic year. In September he was a visiting fellow at the China Institute of Contemporary International Affairs in Beijing, China. In March he made a three-week speaking tour of Japan, India, and Hong Kong for the U.S. Information Agency. At the end of May he will be a visiting professor in the department of political science at Beijing University in Beijing, China. Later in June he will spend ten days as a guest of the Institute of U.S.A. and Canada Studies and the National Committee of Soviet Historians at the Soviet Academy of Sciences in Moscow.

Glen Browder, on leave from his position

PAULA D. McCLAIN

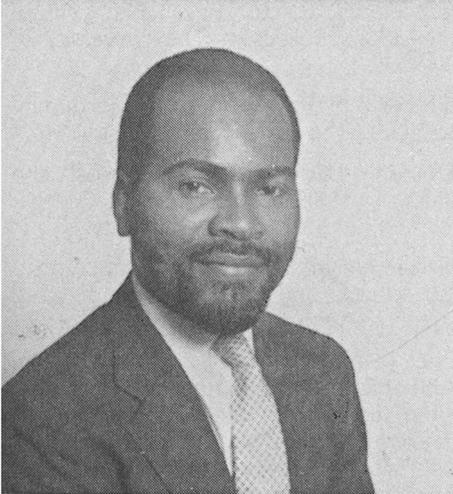

CONGRESSMAN GLEN BROWDER

as professor of political science at Jacksonville State University, was elected as U.S. Representative from Alabama's Third Congressional District on April 4, 1989. Browder, who was serving as Alabama's Secretary of State, succeeds the late Congressman Bill Nichols.

Samuel DuBois Cook, Dillard University, headed in April the National Conference on Black-Jewish Relations, which aimed to defuse tensions between the two groups.

Paula D. McClain, Arizona State University, is the president of the National Conference of Black Political Scientists.

Manindra Mohapatra, professor of public administration and dean of the school of public affairs at Kentucky State University, has been selected by the Atlantic Council of the United States to participate in a NATO discussion series in Brussels (Belgium) and The Netherlands from June 18 to June 24.

JOSEPH SILVER

Brian F. Rader, professor of political science, Northeastern Oklahoma State University, was recently reelected to serve a third term on the Tahlequah, Oklahoma, City Council. Rader is also the Vice-Chairman of the Eastern Oklahoma Development District, a 7-county, sub-state planning district, serving over 200,000 people.

Bernard H. Ross, School of Public Affairs, The American University, will chair the Program Committee of the annual ASPA conference to be held in Washington, D.C., in March, 1991.

Joseph H. "Pete" Silver, Sr., Georgia Board of Regents, is the president-elect and 1990 Program Chair of the National Conference of Black Political Scientists.

Alice Costinadina (Dina) Titus has been elected to the Nevada State Senate.

Yung Wei, a professor of the political science department of the National Taiwan University, has been elected as the new president of the Chinese Association of Political Science (CAPS).

John Quansheng Zhao, Old Dominion University, has been invited as visiting fellow to spend a year starting May 1989 at the East-West Center, University of Hawaii. He has also received a grant for research and publication from the Earhart Foundation and a faculty research grant from Old Dominion University for his project "Sino-Japanese Relations and Japanese Politics."

Administrative Appointments

Eugene J. Alpert, director, master of liberal arts program, Texas Christian University.

Burton Atkins, chair, department of political science, The Florida State University.

Douglas C. Bennett, provost of Reed College; formerly Temple University.

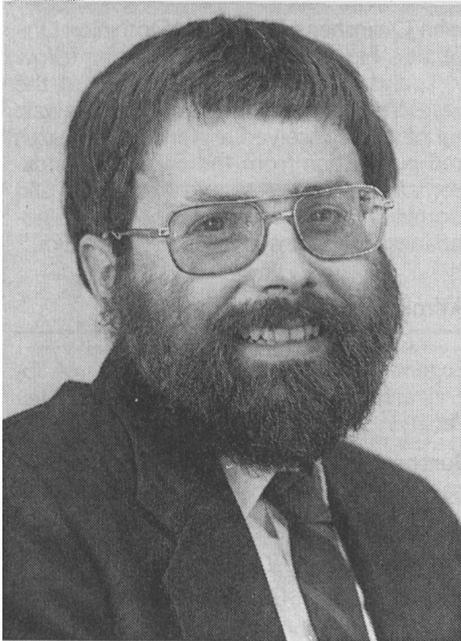

Earl Black, Olin D. Johnston Professor of Political Science, chair, the department of government and international studies, University of South Carolina.

W. Robert Connor, professor of classics

DINA TITUS

People in Political Science

JOHN GREEN

and chairman of the Council of the Humanities at Princeton University, has been elected president and director of the National Humanities Center.

Sondra Farganis, director, Vera List Center, and chair, division of social sciences, New School for Social Research.

David L. Featherman, professor of sociology and director of the Institute on Aging and Adult Life at the University of Wisconsin, has been selected as president of the Social Science Research Council.

Joyce Gelb, professor of political science at the City University of New York and City College of New York, has been awarded a three-year appointment as Director of the Rosenberg/Humphrey Program in Public Policy. Gelb was also awarded a grant from the Japan Society for the Promotion of Science and the Social Science Research Council for Study in Japan.

C. Blease Graham, Vice-Chair, department of government and international studies, University of South Carolina.

John Green, director, Ray C. Bliss Institute of Applied Politics at The University of Akron.

Cornelius M. Kerwin, dean, school of public affairs, The American University.

Dorothy Buckton James, provost and dean of the faculty, Connecticut College; formerly The American University.

Hassan Nejad, chair, department of political science, and head, division of social sciences, Antioch College.

Eric J. Novotny, Ph.D., Georgetown, 1985, has been appointed Vice President, International, of the Communications Satellite Corporation. He will be responsible for all overseas relations and business development activities for the corporation's Systems Division. Novotny is also adjunct professor of international relations at The American University, Washington, DC.

James R. Pletcher, political science department, Denison University.

Bernard H. Ross has been named chair department of public administration, School of Public Affairs, The American University, effective summer, 1989.

James W. Riddlesperger, Jr., chair, department of political science, Texas Christian University.

DOROTHY JAMES

LOIS LOVELACE DUKE

Robert L. Savage, chair, department of political science, University of Arkansas.

Richard F. Weisfelder, chair, department of political science, The University of Toledo.

New Appointments

Lauren Bowen, assistant professor of political science, John Carroll University.

Bruce Cain, associate director of the Institute of Governmental Studies and professor in the department of political science, University of California, Berkeley; formerly California Institute of Technology.

Brad Chilton, assistant professor of political science, Washington State University; formerly at the University of Southern Mississippi.

Frederick M. Dolan, assistant professor of rhetoric at the University of California at Berkeley; formerly lecturer, University of California, San Diego.

Lois Lovelace Duke, assistant professor, department of political science, The University of Alabama at Tuscaloosa; formerly assistant professor at Auburn University at Montgomery.

Carlene J. Edie, assistant professor of political science, University of Massachusetts; formerly at Northwestern University.

Stanley Feldman, professor of political science, University at Stony Brook, SUNY; formerly of University of Kentucky.

Betty Glad, professor, University of South Carolina; formerly of the University of Illinois-Urbana.

Jarvis Hall, formerly St. Lawrence University, has been appointed Visiting ABD Fellow and Instructor in Politics at Washington and Lee University.

Calvin E. Harris, assistant professor of government, Suffolk University; formerly of the University of Oregon.

John A. Hird, assistant professor of political science, University of Massachusetts at Amherst; formerly a staff economist, President's Council of Economic Advisers, Washington, D.C.

William Jacoby, assistant professor; formerly of Ohio State University.

Kaled M. Kayali, assistant professor of government, Suffolk University, after two years as visiting associate professor of government; formerly of the United Arab Emirates University.

Joon Pyo Jung, assistant professor of political science, University at Stony Brook, SUNY; formerly of University of Rochester.

Aie Rie Lee, assistant professor, department of political science, Texas Tech University; formerly of Florida State University.

Tse-min Lin, assistant professor of political science, University at Stony Brook, SUNY; formerly of University of Minnesota.

Kurt von Mettenheim, assistant professor, department of political science, University of Pittsburgh.

Wilbur Rich, associate professor, Wayne

People in Political Science

State University, will be Career Development Chair for 1989-90.

Brian D. Ripley, instructor, department of political science, University of Pittsburgh.

Jennifer Ring, assistant professor; formerly of Stanford University.

Roberto Alejandro Rivera, assistant professor of political science, University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

Sandra Schneider, assistant professor; formerly policy analyst, Ohio Department of Health.

Grace L. Simmons, assistant professor, department of political science, Texas Tech University; formerly of the University of Iowa.

Zachary A. Smith, associate professor of political science and Director of the Masters of Public Administration Program at Northern Arizona University in Flagstaff; formerly associate professor and chair of the political science department and Director of the Center for Island and Ocean Resources Management at the University of Hawaii at Hilo.

Harvey Starr, Dag Hammarskjold Professor of International Relations; formerly of the University of Indiana.

Hannah Stewart-Gambino, assistant professor of government, Lehigh University; formerly of Eckerd College.

Robert A. Strong, formerly Tulane University, has been appointed associate professor of politics and head of the department of politics at Washington and Lee University. Strong is currently an APSA Congressional Fellow.

Donley T. Studlar, associate professor of political science, Oklahoma State University; formerly Centre College, Kentucky.

Charles Taber, assistant professor of political science, University at Stony Brook, SUNY; formerly of University of Illinois.

Vicki L. Templin, assistant professor, department of political science, University of Iowa; formerly Kent State University.

Sue Thomas, assistant professor of government, Georgetown University.

Daniel Unger, assistant professor of government, Georgetown University.

Jeremy Waldron has become the first political theorist appointed to Cornell's new inter-disciplinary Program on Ethics & Public Life, with a joint appointment as associate professor of government; formerly at University of California at Berkeley.

Stephen Wayne, professor of government, Georgetown University; formerly of The George Washington University.

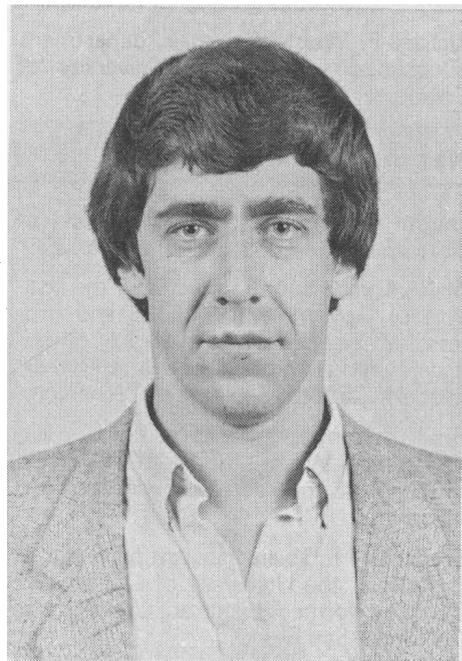

Promotions

Charles Davis, professor with tenure, Colorado State University.

Sandra Davis, associate professor with tenure, Colorado State University.

J. Michael Dodson, professor of political science, Texas Christian University.

Nelson Dometrius, professor, department of political science, Texas Tech University.

JEREMY WALDRON

JUDITH RASMUSSEN DUSHKU

Judith Rasmussen Dushku, associate professor of government, Suffolk University, has been awarded tenure.

Eric S. Einhorn, professor of political science, University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

Roy B. Flemming, professor of political science, Texas A&M University.

James C. Garand, associate professor with tenure, department of political science and the Public Administration Institute, Louisiana State University.

Mark Gibney, associate professor, department of political science, Purdue University.

John R. Handelman, professor of politics at Washington and Lee University.

Vincent B. Kahpoya, professor of political science, Oakland University.

Richard C. Kearney, professor, department of government and international studies, University of South Carolina.

James P. Lester, professor of political science, Colorado State University.

Thomas Mans, associate professor with tenure, Creighton University.

Richard Matthews, associate professor of government, granted tenure, Lehigh University.

Michael E. Melody, professor of political science, Barry University.

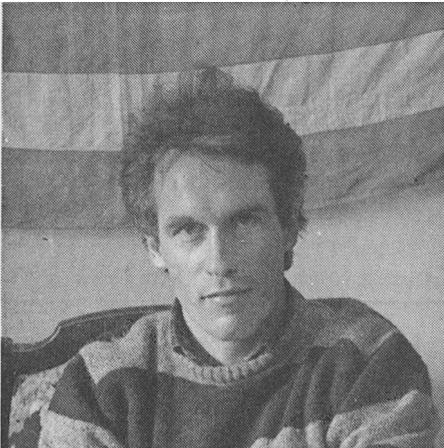

C. I. Moon, associate professor with tenure, in the department of political science at the University of Kentucky.

Edward Morgan, professor of government, Lehigh University.

M. J. Peterson, associate professor of political science, University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

Theresa C. Smith, professor, state university system in Minnesota.

Kenneth Whitby, associate professor with tenure, the department of government and international studies, University of South Carolina.

MARK GIBNEY

People in Political Science

Duane Windsor, professor of administrative science, Jesse H. Jones Graduate School of Administration, Rice University.

Visiting and Temporary Appointments

Shlomo Avineri, Hebrew University of Jerusalem, will be visiting distinguished professor of political science at Queens College in the fall semester of 1989-90.

Miguel Bernal, visiting professor from School of Law and Political Science, National University of Panama, teaching 1988-89 at Lehigh University.

Phyllis Berry, visiting assistant professor, 1988-89, Georgetown University.

Maureen Casamayou, visiting assistant professor, 1988-89, Georgetown University.

Don Dresser, formerly University of Minnesota, has been appointed visiting instructor of politics at Washington and Lee University. Dresser currently holds a dissertation fellowship at the Brookings Institution William Durch, visiting assistant professor, 1988-89, Georgetown University.

Richard E. Foglesong, associate professor and department head, Rollins College, will be the Harvey Perloff Professor in the Graduate School of Architecture & Urban Planning at UCLA during winter quarter, 1990.

Jon Goldberg-Hiller, visiting assistant professor, Reed College; formerly of Pacific University and the University of Wisconsin.

James P. Lester, associate professor of political science, Colorado State University, will be a visiting scholar at the University of Linköping, Sweden, during the fall semester, 1989.

Darius Rejali, visiting assistant professor, Reed College; formerly of Union College and McGill University.

Yaacov Ro'i, visiting Israeli professor, Georgetown University, from the University of Tel Aviv.

Khalil Shikaki, assistant professor of political science, Al-Najah National University in Nablus-occupied West Bank, will spend the 1989-90 academic year as a visiting assistant professor at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

Bridget Todd, visiting assistant professor of political science, Oakland University

Jaan Whitehead, visiting assistant professor, 1988-89, Georgetown University.

Retirements

William Buchanan, emeritus professor of politics, Washington and Lee University.

Vukan Kuic, professor emeritus, after 23 years' service to the University of South Carolina.

Raymond A. Moore, professor emeritus, after 31 years' service to the University of South Carolina.

Donald S. Vaughan, professor emeritus, department of political science, University of Mississippi, as of May 13, 1989.

Award Recipients

American Academy of Arts and Sciences

Three political scientists, David W. Brady of Stanford University Graduate School of Business, Charles O. Jones of the University of Wisconsin, Madison, and Arend Lijphart of the University of California, San Diego, were among 83 leading scholars, scientists, public figures, and artists recently elected to the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

Council for European Studies

Pre-Dissertation Fellowships

Six of the 15 recipients of Pre-Dissertation Fellowships for 1989 are doctoral recipients in political science. They are listed