"Among the most widely-cited journals of historical research in the United States."

Coming in volumes 25 and 26 of the

Journal of Social History 1992-1993

The Journal continues to define new areas of historical coverage and to clarify major interpretive issues in the field with groupings of articles on such subjects as:

New approaches in gender history

- male friendships and the terra incognita of fatherhood
- women and family relationships
- sexual standards and sexual behavior

Issues in the social history of religion

Rural and environmental history

Issues in the history of 20th century leisure

A new emphasis on synthesis: social history and legal history; social history of slavery; labor protest.

Explorations in new aspects of comparative history: race, religious values.

Plus new research on social class, crime, and frontier patterns, in the United States, Japan, Latin America, Europe, Russia, and Africa.

Plus many other articles and reviews, as the JSH maintains its role as a major outlet for historical research.

Also: the JSH discount book service to individual subscribers - 25 percent off on titles from 15 American and British publishers.

Annual subscription rates: $55 institutions. $25 individuals. $17 students.

Journal of Social History, Carnegie Mellon University, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15213.

British Documents on the End of Empire

An important and revealing new series of hitherto unpublished official material on the end of the British Empire and Britain's changing role within it.

The first country volume in the series

Ghana

Edited by Richard Rathbone

This selection of documents provides a unique insight into British perspectives on how Ghana achieved its independence, and also on how, in the process, Ghana played a pioneering role in the ending of colonial rule in Africa.

The volume is divided into two parts:

I 1941–1952

ISBN 0 11 290525 0 lxxxvii + 421 pages
(including map and index)

II 1952–1957

ISBN 0 11 290526 9 xxix + 443 pages
(including map and index)

Each part costs £60, £120 for both parts

Published by HMSO for the Institute of Commonwealth Studies in the University of London

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

The Journal publishes research and reviews on all aspects of the African past. Contributors should keep in mind the general relationship for whom they are writing and relate their findings specifically to relevant secondary literature.

Contributions may be sent to the Editors listed on the inside cover; they should be addressed to them at their Departments of History.

Authors may submit contributions in either English or French. They should not exceed about 7500 words (excluding notes), except with the prior approval of the Editors. Where appropriate, carefully drawn maps, photographs, and other illustrations should accompany the text. A summary of the contents of the article, not exceeding about 300 words, should be attached on a separate sheet.

Contributors should seek clarity, brevity, and simplicity of expression and avoid long sentences and unduly lengthy or short paragraphs. They should closely observe the conventions set out below ('Format and Style').

Typescripts or print-outs must be checked personally before despatch, to remove accidental errors.

Page proofs will be sent to each contributor, if necessary by air mail. Corrections must be kept to a minimum: they should not include new material. Contributors should be prepared to return corrected proofs promptly. Authors of articles and review articles receive 25 free offprints and may purchase additional copies, provided that they order before publication on the form sent out with proofs.

Format and Style

Articles should be submitted in two copies. They should be typed in double-spacing throughout. Lines beginning new paragraphs should be indented. Ample margins (at least one inch left and right, one and one-half inches top and bottom) must be left, and all pages should be numbered.

Spelling (in English) may follow either British or American convention but must be consistent. African words and names should conform to the orthography of the International African Institute. In referring to people, Bantu prefixes should normally be omitted: thus 'Luganda', 'Buganda', but 'a Ganda', 'the Ganda'.

Quotations of more than forty words or so should begin on a new line, indented from the left-hand margin.

Italics should be used only for the names of publications and for words in languages other than English. Foreign words should be used only when necessary, and then only with a translation in parentheses.

Figures should be used for units of measurement, percentages (to be shown in the form '7 per cent', not '7%'), and any number which includes a decimal point. Spell out other numbers up to ten and multiples of ten up to one hundred ('seven', 'twenty', but '25', '127', and '10,000'). Cite dates in the form '12 February 1968' (or 'Feb.' in source-references). Express sequences in the briefest form possible ('68-9', but '1911-12', '1849-50').

Notes should be numbered consecutively throughout the article and typed double-spaced, separately from the text. Citations of references should be made only in the notes and not in the text, and there should be no separate bibliography. First references should be given in the full, thus: S. Johnson, The History of the Yorubas (Lagos, 1921); E. W. Smith, 'Sebetwane and the Makololo', African Studies, xv (1956), 49-74. All subsequent references should be given in abbreviated form, thus: Johnson, History, 43; Smith, 'Sebetwane', 65, except that ibid. should be used to refer to an immediately preceding citation of a title. Loc. cit. and op. cit. should not be used. Do not abbreviate periodical titles. Archival citations should be as brief as is consistent with clarity. The identity and location of each archive must be fully spelled out where it is first cited.

Maps should be prepared where the topography is important for an understanding of the text. Maps should if possible be camera-ready and show all relevant information, but only such information as is mentioned in the text. Photographs should specifically enhance the text and carry full captions and attributions.
