

"This is the first publication to marshal systematic evidence based on county level data for the whole of the British Isles for the demographic transition period. The data are entirely new and constitute a significant contribution to the field."

—E.A. Wrigley—London School of Economics

The British Fertility Decline

Demographic Transition in the Crucible of the Industrial Revolution

Michael S. Teitelbaum

Building on the theory of the demographic transition, Michael S. Teitelbaum assesses the dramatic decline in British fertility from 1841 to 1931 in terms of social transformations associated with the Industrial Revolution. $40.00

Written under the auspices of the Office of Population Research, Princeton University

Princeton

University Press 41 William Street Princeton, NJ 08540

THE ARTHUR H. COLE GRANTS-IN-AID

For Research in Economic History

- are awarded each year to supplement other sources of research support;
- are biased in favor of young post-doctorates turning dissertations into publishable articles and monographs, but are open to all;
- are awarded by the six-member Committee on Research in Economic History on the basis of an application due on April 1 each year;
- are granted for research in any geographic region in the world and in any time period;
- are described in more detail in a prospectus sent out by the Secretary, Council on Research in Economic History, The Economic History Association, Box 3630, Wilmington, Delaware 19807.

Prophets of Regulation

Thomas K. McCraw

No men in American history more influenced the evolution of government regulation than Charles Francis Adams, Louis D. Brandeis, James M. Landis, and Alfred E. Kahn.

In an engaging series of personal profiles, McCraw celebrates their lives, accomplishments, and ideas, and illuminates the rich combination of human action and impersonal circumstance that constitute the fabric of this history.

Belknap $20.00

Collected Papers

Kenneth J. Arrow

Volume 3: Individual Choice under Certainty and Uncertainty

The third volume of Kenneth Arrow's Collected Papers concerns the basic concept of rationality as it applies to an economic decision maker.

Belknap $25.00

Volume 4: The Economics of Information

Volume 4 begins with Arrow's papers on statistical decision theory and includes essays on the demand for information, the economic value of screening devices, the effect of incomplete information on the structure of organization, futures markets, insurance, and the allocation of risk.

Belknap $22.50

European Urbanization

1500–1800

Jan de Vries

Using a wide range of economic, demographic, and geographic models, de Vries draws conclusions about the significance of migratory behavior, and shows the effects of urbanization on European history.

$28.50

Resources, Values, and Development

Amartya Sen

Sen examines foundational problems of development economics in depth, paying particular attention to institutional and motivational features that call for going beyond traditional economic approaches.

$29.50

Regulation and Its Reform

Stephen Breyer

"An excellent summary of regulatory practice and policy... It tells us how regulation works, when it fails, where it should be changed, and what to do to change it." –American Political Science Review

$8.95 paper

Harvard University Press

79 Garden Street, Cambridge, MA 02138

CAMBRIDGE

Those Who Stayed Behind

Rural Society in Nineteenth-Century New England

HAL S. BARRON

In a departure from the longstanding emphasis on the frontier in American historical writing, Hal Barron reconstructs the social and economic history of a nineteenth-century rural community—Chelsea, Vermont—which declined while most of the country experienced geographical expansion and economic growth.

"... a beautiful piece of craftsmanship. . . should fascinate those who admire rural life, those who despise it, and those who simply study it, aware of its historical and human significance."—William Parker, Yale University

About $24.95

The Power of the Past

Essays for Eric Hobsbawm

Editors: Pat Thane, Geoffrey Crossick and Roderick Floud

A distinguished group of historians writes on the dialectical relationship between capitalism and its pre-capitalist heritage, revealing the ways in which the older forms helped to shape the new, and were themselves reshaped in the process. The book thus treats a central theme in the writing of Eric Hobsbawm, to whom these essays are dedicated. An additional essay provides a reappraisal of Hobsbawm's work.

About $39.50

Enterprise and History

Essays in Honor of Charles Wilson

Editors: Donald C. Coleman and Peter Mathias

Edited by two of Britain's most distinguished economic historians, this volume brings together a number of specially commissioned contributions to the two fields in which historian Charles Wilson has been preeminent: the economic relations of England and the Netherlands and business history. The essays provide a comprehensive set of studies of varying forms, consequences and interpretations of economic enterprise in history.

About $39.50

The Rise of Market Culture

The Textile Trade & French Society, 1750–1900

WILLIAM M. REDDY

Combining the perspectives of anthropologist and social historian, Professor Reddy traces the transition from precapitalist to capitalist culture in the French textile industry from 1750 to 1900. He shows how and why a new conception of the social order based on the idea of the market began to emerge, and examines the attendant political and social conflict.

"There is no question that the book will be one of those breakthrough contributions, fundamentally altering the way historians have thought about an issue."—Joan Brown, Brown University

About $37.50

Wealth and Virtue

The Shaping of Political Economy in the Scottish Enlightenment

Editors: Istvan Hont and Michael Ignatieff

In a major reassessment of the intellectual contribution of the Scottish Enlightenment, a group of prominent scholars examines the contributions of major thinkers, such as Hume and Adam Smith, as well as those of such lesser known figures as Millar, Kames, Robertson, and Carmichael. The resulting volume both clarifies the range and depth of the Scottish Enlightenment and highlights the major focal points of current scholarly debate on the period.

$59.50

Cambridge University Press 32 East 57th Street, New York, New York 10022