

Poetry

Cite this article: Zieneldien T (2024) Inevitable changes. Palliative and Supportive Care 22(5), 1521. <https://doi.org/10.1017/S1478951523001761>

Received: 31 October 2023

Accepted: 05 November 2023

Email: Tarekz@usf.edu

Your glassy eyes sink like sandbags
And your voice –
Which used to echo around our home like thunderous strikes
Is reduced to a feeble whisper
As if you had to seek permission to speak

Despite the circumstances,
I will always remember you as the guiding sunbeam
Whose presence always demanded attention
Warming those around with your soothing embrace