In the Shadow of World Literature

Sites of Reading in Colonial Egypt

Michael Allan

We have grown accustomed to understanding world literature as a collection of national or linguistic traditions bound together in the universality of storytelling. Michael Allan challenges this way of thinking and argues instead that the disciplinary framework of world literature, far from serving as the neutral meeting ground of national literary traditions, levels differences between scripture, poetry, and prose, and fashions textual forms into a particular pedagogical, aesthetic, and ethical practice.

Walden

Henry D. Thoreau

Edited by J. Lyndon Shanley

With an introduction by John Updike

One of the most influential and compelling books in American literature, Walden is a vivid account of the years that Henry D. Thoreau spent alone in a secluded cabin at Walden Pond. This edition—introduced by John Updike—celebrates the perennial importance of a classic work.

Theory and Interpretation of Narrative

James Phelan, Peter J. Rabinowitz, and Robyn Warhol, Series Editors

Narrating Space / Spatializing Narrative

Where Narrative Theory and Geography Meet

MARIE-LAURE RYAN,
KENNETH FOOTE,
AND MAOZ AZARYAHU

"Narrating Space / Spatializing Narrative: Where Narrative Theory and Geography Meet thoroughly succeeds in what it has set out to do: to create a genuinely interdisciplinary conversation between geography and narratology. This conversation about space and place, text and narrative, at once generates useful terms and methods of inquiry and models them through analyses of a wide spectrum of examples. Its interdisciplinary approach should bring it an appreciative audience across narratology, literature, and geography, and potentially in other fields that have involved themselves in 'the spatial turn,' such as art history, sociology, and philosophy." —Karen Jacobs, University of Colorado Boulder

Teaching the Literatures of the American Civil War

Edited by Colleen Glenney Boggs

"[This] book stands as an implicit refutation of Whitman's famous claim that 'the real war will never get into the books' and of Daniel Aaron's more recent description of 'the unwritten war.'"

—Randall Fuller, University of Tulsa

Essays cover such topics as visiting historical sites; using digital materials, anthologies, soldiers' dime novels, Confederate women's diaries, songs, and speeches; teaching the themes of treason and brotherhood; and exploring the roles in the war played by women, slaves, and African American troops.

Teaching Human Rights in Literary and Cultural Studies

Edited by Alexandra Schultheis Moore and Elizabeth Swanson Goldberg

"The collection will help to expand thinking—and questions—about these interdisciplinary studies."

—Domna Stanton, Graduate Center, City University of New York

Since the adoption of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights of 1948, the discourse of human rights has expanded to include not just civil and political rights but economic, social, cultural, and, most recently, collective rights. Teaching Human Rights in Literary and Cultural Studies is a sourcebook of inventive approaches and best practices for teachers looking to make human rights the focus of their undergraduate and graduate courses.
