Journal of the Society for American Music

Journal of the Society for American Music (JSAM) is an international, peer-reviewed journal that explores all aspects of American music and music in the Americas. JSAM is dedicated to supporting scholarship that transcends disciplinary boundaries, cutting across historical musicology, music theory, ethnomusicology, cultural theory, and American studies. JSAM encourages international dialogue across disciplines. The journal features articles, reviews of books, recordings, and multimedia items, and explorations of special topics.

William Banfield, composer, guitarist, author and educator, serves as Professor of Africana Studies/Music and Society, and Director of the Africana Studies Center at the Berklee College of Music. Banfield's books include: Musical Landscapes in Color: Conversations With Black American Composers, Cultural Codes: Makings of a Black Music Philosophy, and Representing Black Music Culture, all published by Scarecrow Press. His works have been performed by the National, Atlanta, Dallas, Detroit, New York Virtuoso, Grand Rapids, Toledo, Savannah, Indianapolis, Sacramento and San Diego symphonies.

Geoffrey Block, Distinguished Professor of Music History at the University of Puget Sound, is the author of Ives: Concord Sonata (Cambridge University Press, 1996), Enchanted Evenings: The Broadway Musical from Show Boat to Sondheim and Lloyd Webber (Oxford University Press, 1997; 2nd ed. 2009), and Richard Rodgers (Yale University Press, 2003). He is also General Editor of Yale Broadway Masters and Series Editor for Oxford's Broadway Legacies.

Brett Boutwell is Assistant Professor of Musicology at Louisiana State University. His research centers on the New York School and American experimental music. He received the Ph.D. in musicology from the University of Illinois and was a Mellon fellow at Cornell University. His articles and reviews have appeared in Mitteilungen der Paul Sacher Stiftung, American Music, and the forthcoming second edition of the Grove Dictionary of American Music.

Gwynne Kuhner Brown is Assistant Professor at the University of Puget Sound, teaching courses in music history, theory, and world music. Her essay, "Performers in Catfish Row: Porgy and Bess as Collaboration," is included in Blackness in Opera, ed. Naomi André, Karen Bryan, and Eric Saylor (University of Illinois Press, 2012). Current projects include a book on William Dawson and a critical edition of his Negro Folk Symphony.

Charles Hiroshi Garrett is Associate Professor of Musicology at the University of Michigan School of Music, Theatre, and Dance. His book Struggling to Define a Nation: American Music and the Twentieth Century (University of California Press, 2008) received the Irving Lowens Book Award of the Society for American Music. He serves as editor-in-chief for The Grove Dictionary of American Music, second edition, to be published in 2013.

Musicologist and cultural theorist Jesús A. Ramos-Kittrell is Assistant Professor of Music History at Southern Methodist University. His scholarship examines how sacred music in New Spain served as an arena to mold social meanings and perceptions in relationship to the political and economic landscape of the early modern Hispanic world. His work in popular music in Mexico demonstrates how the language of mobilities has provided much of the theoretical grammar for an understanding of globalization as seen in transnational constructions of identity in music.

Deborah Schwartz-Kates is Associate Professor and Chair of the Musicology Department at the University of Miami. A specialist in Argentine music, she recently published an article on the inter-American correspondence of Alberto Ginastera at the Library of Congress (Notes, November 2011). Her latest publications include Alberto Ginastera: A Research and Information Guide and “Argentina and the Rioplatense Region” in Musics of Latin America (W.W. Norton, 2012).

Gayle Wald is Professor of English at George Washington University. She is the author of Shout, Sister, Shout! (Beacon Press, 2007), a biography of the gospel/rock ‘n’ roll musician Sister Rosetta Tharpe, and is currently completing “It’s Been Beautiful”: Soul! and Black Power Television, a study of the PBS TV show Soul!, which featured groundbreaking performances by a range of black musicians in jazz, pop, soul, gospel, and salsa music.

Joshua S. Walden is Andrew W. Mellon Postdoctoral Fellow at Johns Hopkins University. He has held a Junior Research Fellowship at Merton College, Oxford University, and an Edison Fellowship at the British Library Sound Archive. He is the editor of Representation in Western Music (Cambridge University Press, forthcoming 2013). His articles are published or forthcoming in Journal of the American Musicological Society, Musical Quarterly, Journal of Musicological Research, and elsewhere.

Trudi Wright currently serves on the faculties of Metropolitan State University of Denver and Regis University. Most recently she has written articles on musical theater, opera, and choral music for the second edition of The Grove Dictionary of American Music, and is in the process of writing a monograph based on her dissertation, “Labor Takes the Stage: A Musical and Social Analysis of Pins and Needles (1937–1941).”
