The Nominating Committee of the American Political Science Association has agreed unanimously upon the following nominations for officers for 1947, to be acted upon at the Association's annual meeting at Cleveland in December: president, Arthur W. Macmahon, Columbia University; first vice-president, Quincy Wright, University of Chicago; second vice-president, V. O. Key, Jr., Johns Hopkins University; third vice-president, Charles Fairman, Stanford University; members of the Executive Council for 1947-49: Taylor Cole, Duke University; George A. Graham, Princeton University; Llewellyn Pfankuchen, University of Wisconsin; John A. Vieg, Pomona College; and Belle Zeller, Brooklyn College. The members of the Nominating Committee are: John E. Briggs, State University of Iowa; Everitt S. Brown, University of Michigan, Robert E. Cushman, Cornell University; Edward M. Earle, Institute for Advanced Study; and Denna F. Fleming, Vanderbilt University (chairman).

Professor Howard B. Calderwood has resigned his post at the University of Michigan to accept a position in the Department of State at Washington.

Under a cooperative arrangement between the University of Chicago and the University of Puerto Rico, Professor Rexford G. Tugwell is spending the winter in San Juan.

Professor J. A. C. Grant has returned to active duty at the University of California at Los Angeles after a sabbatical leave spent in Colombia and other countries of Middle America.

Two recent additions to the faculty of the School of Advanced International Studies in Washington are Dr. Paul M. A. Linebarger, as professor of Asiatic politics, and Dr. Philip B. Thayer, as professor of international commercial law.

The Walgreen Foundation at the University of Chicago offered during the autumn quarter a series of lectures on civilian-military relations, the series starting with Messrs. Hanson Baldwin and Paul H. Appleby. Mr. Louis Brownlow continued his autobiographical series with two lectures on his experiences as a state house and city hall reporter. Professor C. Herman Pritchett gave lectures, also, on "The Roosevelt Supreme Court."

Dr. D. F. Fleming, of Vanderbilt University, spent the summer in the State Department as an adviser to Bernard M. Baruch, the United States representative on the United Nations Atomic Commission. During the current term, he is on leave from Vanderbilt to take part in an investigation headed by Professor Edward Mead Earle at the Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton, New Jersey. Professor Fleming's classes at Vanderbilt are in charge of Mr. Hedley V. Cooke, Jr., recently resigned from the U. S. Foreign Service.

Dr. Fred V. Cahill, Jr., assistant professor, has returned to the University of Oregon following his release from active military duty. During the war he served as executive to the Intelligence Officer, South Pacific Base Command in New Caledonia and, following training in Military Government at the University of Virginia and at Harvard, served as Liaison Officer in the Korean Division of General Headquarters, Supreme Commander for the Allied Powers, Tokyo.

Recent contributions to the Endowment Fund of the American Political Science Association include two thousand dollars from Professor John A. Fairlie, of the University of Illinois, and one thousand dollars from Dean Isidor Loeb, of Washington University.

During the month of November, the Albert Shaw lectures on diplomatic history at the Johns Hopkins University were delivered by Professor Malbone W. Graham, of the University of California (Los Angeles), on the subject of "American Diplomacy and the International Community." Five lectures were included in the series.

Professor J. Eugene Harley, of the University of Southern California, spent last summer in South America, principally in Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires, and with a view principally to studying at first-hand problems of regional Latin-American coöperation with the United Nations and also completing studies of the official censorship of motion pictures in Argentina and Brazil. Professor Harley is president of the United Nations Association, Southern California Branch.

At the University of Pennsylvania, Mr. Alfred H. Cope has been appointed instructor and Dr. R. Jean Brownlee, personnel officer in the College for Women at the University, part-time instructor.

Dr. Leo S. Rowe, director-general of the Pan American Union since 1920 and a former president of the American Political Science Association, was struck and killed by an automobile in Washington on December 5. A memorial will appear in the next issue of the REVIEW.

After extensive military government experience in Okinawa and other parts of the Far East, Dr. John T. Caldwell has returned to Vanderbilt University with the rank of Lieut. Commander. Mr. Henry N. Williams also has rejoined the department at Vanderbilt after service as a captain in the Army, with a long term of work in the historical division of the War Department.

At Beloit College, Dr. William S. Shepherd, formerly of the State University of Iowa, has been appointed assistant professor, and Mrs. Donald Murray, formerly of the College of William and Mary, instructor in the social sciences, with half-time in the department of government. Professor Ivan M. Stone taught at the University of Nebraska during the summer of 1946.

Dr. Charles P. Harper, state supervisor of occupational information and guidance for West Virginia since 1942, has resigned that position to become associate professor of political science at Marshall College. He was formerly a member of the faculty of Glenville State Teachers College.

Dr. Ralph R. Temple, who taught for eight years at Brooklyn College and more recently has been associated with military government in Italy, has been appointed assistant director for public administration in the State Division of the Pennsylvania Economy League.

In addition to his duties at New York University, Professor Henry P. Jordan is lecturing at Queens College on Latin American governments and politics.

Professor Karl Loewenstein has resumed teaching at Amherst College, after serving in 1942-44 as special assistant to the Attorney-General in Washington, in 1944-45 as legal adviser to the Emergency Committee for Political Defense in Montevideo, and in 1945-46 as legal adviser to Military Government in Berlin.

Dr. Spencer D. Albright has been appointed associate professor of history and government at the University of Richmond. Prior to entering the Army in 1943, he was a lecturer in the department of political science at the University of Washington.

After serving in the department since 1916, Dr. Jacob Tanger retired in June as department head and professor of political science at Pennsylvania State College. Dr. M. Nelson McGeary has been promoted to the rank of associate professor and will offer the work in Pennsylvania government previously in charge of Dr. Tanger.

Dr. Charles Chandler is serving as visiting professor of international relations at Ursinus College during the absence of Dr. Eugene Miller, who has a Penfield fellowship for a study of Canadian-Latin American relations.

After four years of service in the U. S. Army, the last two of which were spent in the Office of the Surgeon-General, Dr. Richard E. Yates has returned to his post as assistant professor at Hendrix College, Conway, Arkansas.

Dr. Waldo E. Waltz has resigned at the University of Maryland to undertake private consultation work with the Smith-Rushmore Company in the Denver area.

Professor W. Rolland Maddox, of the University of Kansas, died of a heart ailment on October 3. He had been in poor health for two years.

Dr. Theodore W. Cousens is now on the staff of the Associated Colleges of Upper New York as professor of history and government.

After fifteen months' service as U. S. Staff prosecutor at the Nuernberg trials and adviser and research director to Justice Robert H. Jackson, Dr. Robert M. W. Kempner, of Lansdowne, Pa., has returned to the United States and is now engaged in lecturing on the political science and legal aspects of the trials, and in special work for the War Department.

Dr. Felix E. Oppenheim, employed in the U. S. Department of State earlier in the year, assumed in September an assistant professorship of political science at the University of Delaware.

At Wells College, Mr. Kurt Wilk has been appointed associate professor of government for the current academic year.

Dr. Marjorie Ruth Dilley, associate professor at Connecticut College, has been made chairman of the recently established department of government. Mr. Maurice J. Klain, formerly of New Jersey College for Women, is an instructor in the department.

Dr. Helmut Hirsch, of Roosevelt College, has been appointed visiting instructor at the University of Chicago.

During the autumn quarter, the newly established Institute of Government at the University of Utah presented a series of lectures on American-Soviet relations. Participants and topics included Dr. Charles P. Schleicher, on "American Policy Towards Russia."

Dr. Amy M. Gilbert, who served as visiting professor of history at Temple University in 1945-46, has been appointed head of the department of history and political science in the Associated Colleges of Upper New York, including Champlain College, Mohawk College, and Sampson College. Dr. Gilbert resides at Champlain College, but travels twice a month to the other two colleges.

Commander William B. Ballis has resigned at Ohio State University to accept the position of chief of the Political Section of the Eastern European Branch, Division of Research for Europe, Department of State. He has recently been separated from the Naval Service. His last assignment was for 1945-46 as Assistant Naval Attaché of the American Embassy, Moscow, U.S.S.R.

Professor Pendleton Herring, formerly secretary of the Littauer School of Public Administration at Harvard University, has been added to the staff of the Carnegie Corporation of New York, with, however, leave of absence to serve as director of the Atomic Energy Commission Group of the United Nations.

Dr. John Brown Mason, at present visiting professor at Oberlin College, served last spring as the Central European specialist on the staff of Herbert Hoover's Food Mission to Europe, and afterwards spent five months organizing for the Hoover Library the collection of documents and publications relating to the history of World War II in some fifteen countries, including Poland, Yugoslavia, and the occupied zone of Trieste.

At the University of Kentucky, Dr. Jasper B. Shannon has returned with the rank of professor, after serving as acting director of the Graduate School of the Department of Agriculture at Washington and more recently as a member of the faculty of the Army University Training Center at Florence, Italy. Mr. Alexander T. Edelmann, who was discharged from the Army with the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel, has resumed his duties. Mr. E. G. Trimble expects to return on January 1 after several years of service with the President's Fair Employment Practices Committee and the Office of Price Administration. The staff has been enlarged by a number of new members: Dr. Gladys M. Kammerer, formerly of Wellesley College, Mr. Charles Povlovich, Mr. William D. Stout, and Mr. Kenneth E. Vanlandingham.

During the autumn, Dean William F. Russell, of Teachers College, Columbia University, announced that a new institute sponsored by an international body of scholars, historians, philosophers, political scientists, and sociologists "to study with scientific precision the relations between education and democracy" has been organized at Teachers College, and would open its program with a series of lectures on the United Nations beginning November 20, together with a series of bi-monthly seminars conducted by leading American and foreign scholars. The Institute of Studies of Comparative Government and Education, as the center will be known, will be under the executive directorship of Professor Boris Mirkine-

Guétzevitch, eminent French scholar, dean of the Faculty of Law and Political Science of l'École des Hautes Études, and visiting professor at Teachers College; and it is planned to launch a quarterly scientific review, together with a series of monographs, of which the first, dealing with the political, social, and educational ideas of the French Revolution, is now in preparation.

Recent appointments at Indiana University include Joseph B. Kingsbury as professor and Edward B. McPherson as assistant professor. Professor Kingsbury will have charge of both the general courses in public administration and the seminar in administrative management. Professor McPherson will assume the duties of director of the Bureau of Government Research, left vacant by Professor Pressly S. Sikes when he became dean of the Junior Division of the University. After an absence of four years for war work, Professor Roy V. Peel has returned to his position as professor and director of the Institute of Politics; and after serving two years with the Department of State, in this country and abroad, Professor Edward H. Buehrig also has returned, with the rank of associate professor. Mrs. Wilma Langdon Davis, director of the Institute of Training for Government Service, worked during the summer with the United Nations. New instructors in the department include Miss Grace Thomson, Mr. Paul Willis, Mr. George Long, Mr. Louis Lambert, Mr. Garland Haas, and Mr. Bruchard Davidson. Professor Oliver P. Field has resumed the teaching of constitutional and administrative law.

The fifteenth annual meeting of the Southern Political Science Association was held at the Hotel Andrew Johnson in Knoxville, Tennessee, November 7-9. Sessions were devoted to the following topics, among others: "Politics and Social Changes in the South," "Law and Administration in War and Reconversion"; "The Crisis of the Twentieth Century"; and "The Post-War International Order." Luncheon speakers included Hon. Estes Kefauver, member of Congress, and Dr. Luther H. Evans, Librarian of Congress—the latter representing the American Political Science Association. The retiring president of the Association was Professor James Hart, of the University of Virginia, and the program chairman was Professor Robert J. Harris, of Louisiana State University.

Mr. William F. Larsen has been appointed to an instructorship at the University of Tennessee.

At Lincoln University, Jefferson City, Missouri, Dr. J. Erroll Miller has been promoted to the rank of associate professor.

Dr. Gordon G. Shipman is teaching political science and sociology at Shurtleff College, Alton, Illinois.

Mr. Samuel J. Eldersveld, who recently returned from service in the Navy, has been appointed instructor at the University of Michigan.

Dr. George B. Telford, formerly of Miami University, has been appointed to an assistant professorship at the University of North Dakota.

At the University of Pittsburgh, Dr. Richard C. Baker, formerly of Allegheny College, has been appointed associate professor; Drs. Rosalind L. Branning and Albert B. Martin have been promoted to assistant professorships; Messrs. Holbert N. Carroll, David R. Deener, and William C. Seyler have been appointed instructors; and Mrs. Marian K. Finkelhor has been appointed lecturer. Mr. William G. Willis has been granted a leave of absence for graduate study at the University of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Earl E. Edgar, formerly on the staff of the College at the University of Chicago, has been appointed associate professor of philosophy in the Institute of Citizenship at Kansas State College. Lt. Col. Eric Tebow, currently commanding officer of the Signal Corps Photographic Center in New York City, will join the staff of the Institute on January 1, 1947, as associate professor of education specializing in the use of audio-visual methods in adult education.

Since his appointment as head of the department of government and politics at the University of Maryland, Dr. Joseph M. Ray has instituted a research and survey service available to municipalities of the state. His first printed report was "Improving the Government of Hagerstown."

Dr. Paul S. Dull has been appointed assistant professor at the University of Oregon. During the spring semester of 1946 he was assistant professor at the University of Washington, and prior to that time served three years in the U. S. Marine Corps Reserve, first as Japanese Language Officer and later as Officer-in-Charge of the Japanese Language School, Camp Elliot, California. He was separated from the service with the rank of Captain in October, 1944, and became chief of the Japan Intelligence Section, Psychological Warfare Branch, OWI, in San Francisco.

The University of Mississippi political science department has been enlarged this year by the addition of Dr. Charles N. Fortenberry as associate professor, Mr. J. Leiper Freeman, Jr., as acting assistant professor, and Miss Mary Evelyn Blagg, as assistant director of the Bureau of Public Administration and instructor. Dr. Fortenberry returned to Mississippi from teaching at Texas A. and M. College and North Texas State College. Miss Blagg, who formerly taught at Texas State College for Women, was in 1945-46 a fellow in the Southern Regional Training Program in Public Administration, with work at the Universities of Alabama, Tennessee, and Kentucky.

At the Boston meeting of the National Council for the Social Studies, November 28–30, one joint session with the American Political Science Association was devoted to "Local Government: The Foundation of the American Governmental System," with Professors Roy A. Price, of Syracuse University, and Lashley G. Harvey, of Boston University, among the speakers; and another to "Politics, Elections, and the Social Studies," with Professors Arthur N. Holcombe, of Harvard University, and Harold R. Bruce, of Dartmouth College, discussing "What the 1946 Elections Mean."

The sixty-sixth annual meeting of the Academy of Political Science, New York, was held at the Astor Hotel on November 7–8. The general topic was "Developing a Working International Order—Political, Economic, and Social," with a session presided over by Professor Grayson L. Kirk, of Columbia University, devoted to "International Politics and International Order," and another, participated in by Professor Joseph P. Chamberlain, of Columbia, dealing with "Social and Economic Aspects." As usual, the addresses will be published in a volume of the Academy's Proceedings.

Post-doctoral research training fellows appointed by the Social Science Research Council for 1946–47 include William Ebenstein, Princeton University, for research on the relations of European Great Powers with major countries of Latin America. A pre-doctoral field training fellow is Martin Kriesberg, Harvard University, for study of methods and procedures currently employed in measuring public opinion, particularly polling techniques. Grants-in-aid have been awarded to Hugh McD. Clokie, of the University of Manitoba, for completion of a study of the development of English party organization; Charles Fairman, of Stanford University, for completion of a study of the development of constitutional law, with special reference to the career of Joseph P. Bradley, Justice of the U. S. Supreme Court, 1870–92; J. A. C. Grant, of U.C.L.A., for completion of a study of judicial protection of constitutional guarantees in Colombia; Louise Overacker, of Wellesley College, for completion of a study of the Australian party system; John E. Stoner, of Indiana University, for completion of a study of the rôle of interest groups in the formulation and administration of economic regulations; Eric H. W. Voegelin, of Louisiana State University, for completion of a history of political ideas; and Harold Zink, of DePauw University, for completion of a study of American Military Government in the European Theater of Operations.

The Philippine Foreign Affairs Training Program of the Department of State has now been in operation for approximately one year. During this time, three separate training sessions have been held, and three groups of Philippine foreign service officers graduated. Most of the graduates of the first two training groups have now assumed responsible positions in the new Philippine Embassy in Washington. The work given the trainees in the State Department has covered the broad fields of international relations and international law and diplomatic and consular practice. Regular weekly readings and reports have been assigned the trainees, and examinations held each Friday. On the completion of their training in the State Department, a number of the trainees have been assigned abroad to American foreign service establishments for training in the field. This program, which, at the request of the Republic of the Philippines is to be continued for an indefinite period, is under the direction of Mr. E. W. Mill, of the Office of Far Eastern Affairs in the State Department.

Augustus Raymond Hatton, familiarly known as "A. R.," died on November 12 in Austin, Texas. His death removes one of the most picturesque, dynamic, and personable characters in political science circles. Born in Vevey, a small town on the Ohio River in the county of Switzerland in Indiana—a county which boasts of never having been entered by a railroad—as a farm-boy he attended country schools. He received his advanced education at Franklin College, from which he was graduated in 1898. He later studied at the University of Chicago, and received his Ph.D. degree from that institution in 1907. Before taking his doctorate, young Hatton taught at Franklin College and also served as an instructor in the extension division of the University of Chicago. In 1907, he was appointed the first incumbent of the Marcus A. Hanna chair of political science at Western Reserve University. In 1911, he was engaged for one year as a lecturer on municipal government at Harvard University. Hatton remained at Western Reserve until 1927, when he became professor and chairman of the department of political science at Northwestern University. Retiring from the latter institution in 1940, he served as visiting professor of government at the University of Texas in 1942–43 and visiting professor and adviser to the chancellor of the University of Puerto Rico in 1943–44. Professor Hatton's chief contribution to political science was his development of the technique of draftsmanship of city charters and state constitutions. He actually drafted or assisted in the drafting of more than one hundred city charters. In 1913, he was draftsman for the Cleveland Charter Commission, and he drafted the charter adopted by the city in 1922 providing for a city manager and a council elected by proportional representation. He served as a member of the Cleveland city council during 1923–27. For many years he was a charter consultant for the National Municipal League, and after 1929 was president of the Proportional Representation League and an honorary member of the International City Managers Association. He was editor of the Digest of City Charters published in 1906 and of Public Budgets in 1915, as well as numerous articles on municipal government in professional and learned journals. Since his retirement, Hatton had resided on his ranch in Dripping Springs near Austin, Texas. Colleagues and associates remember him as a stimulating teacher, as an indefatigable municipal reformer, as a friend, guide, and councillor of younger colleagues, and as a civic monitor in any community in which he lived.—KENNETH COLEGROVE.
