

The Social and Political Thought of Adam Ferguson

By David Kettler A study of the eighteenth-century Scottish philosopher and historian in whose writings is manifested the emergence of an intellectual's point of view toward the conditions of modern society and the issues that confront it. $6.50

The Uncommon Defense and Congress, 1945-1963

By Edward A. Kolodziej A comprehensive description, analysis, and evaluation of Congress' use of its power of the purse to influence military force levels, weapons systems, and strategic policy, which argues that Congress can assume a more positive, active, and informed role in the construction of effective strategic policies under the hazardous conditions of contemporary international tension. $7.50

The Polaris Missile Strike

A GENERAL ECONOMIC SYSTEMS ANALYSIS

By Robert E. Kuenne An important contribution to the design of large-scale interdependence models and the effort to increase their applicability to the analysis of real-world problems that provides significant conclusions with respect to the effectiveness of the Polaris-armed submarines in deterring the Soviet Union from launching a thermonuclear attack, and offers the hypothesis that we are overbuilding missile submarines and that their cutback might be a feasible way of removing an important obstacle to arms control. $8.00

The Politics of Military Aviation Procurement, 1926-1934

A STUDY IN THE POLITICAL ASSERTION OF CONSENSUAL VALUES

By Edwin H. Rutkowski An intensive investigation of a critical period in the history of the U.S. Air Force that illuminates and clarifies the nature of policy determination under a democratic government, and demonstrates how, in the resolution of a major controversy, fundamental values widely held in the American community were given effective expression in decisions involving a critical area in our national policy. $6.50

The French Army in Politics, 1945-1962

By John Steward Ambler An examination of causality in civil-military relations that is concerned, not with the broader influences exercised by the military on French public policy in general, but with the threat that French military politics poses to the civilian political regime. $6.50

The Pattern of Human Concerns

by HADLEY CANTRIL

Using a brilliantly original technique of psychological exploration, this simply stated book proposes a new way of looking at mankind's social structure. Employing what they term the Self-Anchoring Striving Scale, Dr. Cantril and his associates reveal how people everywhere feel about their lives and nations, their pasts, presents, and futures.

Their study embraces nearly a third of all the people on earth—citizens of both developed and developing countries, of democracies, of dictatorships—a coverage of fourteen nations, five continents, and many islands, including—importantly—Cuba and the Dominican Republic. Dr. Cantril's fresh method of approach shows how it is possible to avoid many errors in the exercise of national policy, and to embark on policies which offer a likelihood of success.

Dr. Cantril has been an adviser to four of the last five United States administrations. His report deals with the real world. Its implications embrace politics, government, history, social science, economics, cultural anthropology, and a dozen other fields.

Journal of Contemporary History

A new quarterly review edited by Walter Laqueur and George Mosse

The Journal deals not only with political history but also with the history of ideas and movements, and of the social forces of our time.

The first issue, a symposium on the theme of International Fascism, has just been published. It is followed in April by an account of the left-wing intelligentsia between the two world wars; the third number will re-assess the European situation on the eve of World War 1.
