

The Gladstone Diaries

Volumes III and IV, 1840-1854

Edited by M. R. D. FOOT AND H. C. G. MATTHEW. □ Despite the apparent ease of his political promotion, Gladstone experienced great intellectual and emotional strain because of various changes and occurrences in his private and political life. The third and fourth volumes of Gladstone's diaries cover the period in which he reached the Cabinet (and resigned from it) and held the offices of the President of the Board of Trade, Colonial Secretary and Chancellor of the Exchequer. This two-volume set is a record of mid-Victorian self-analysis displaying the extraordinary range of Gladstone's abilities and interests.

From the Dardanelles to Oran

Studies of the Royal Navy at War and Peace
1915-1940

ARTHUR J. MARDER, University of California, Irvine. □ Professor Marder continues his research on the Royal Navy in five essays dealing with controversial subjects during and after the first World War. He reconsiders the naval aspects of the Dardanelles and whether the Royal Navy adequately learned the lessons of war. He studies Winston Churchill's dynamic and controversial role as First Lord of the Admiralty before he became Prime Minister in 1940. A final and major essay of the book deals with the sacrifice of French warships at Oran.

British Politics and the Stamp Act Crisis

The First Phase of the American Revolution
1763-1767

P. D. G. THOMAS. □ Three aspects of the British policy towards the American colonies in the early years of the Revolutionary period are discussed: the policies of the Grenville ministry, the attempts of the first Rockingham ministry to solve the Stamp Act crisis, and the aftermath of the crisis during the Chatham ministry. The author views the evolution of British political attitudes in this period as a process involving all segments of the British political machinery.

New England in the English Nation 1689-1713

PHILIP S. HAFFENDEN. □ The overthrow of James II helped to reunite the sentiments of old and New England, but the swift onset of war with France introduced a new factor in Massachusetts: fear of French raids as a threat to the Protestant religion and representative government. This study focuses on the meaning of security for Massachusetts and colonial efforts to utilize English power for the defeat of the French.

When you're teaching beginning English history, why not confront students with the real thing? DOCUMENTS IN ENGLISH HISTORY presents 125 documents in chronological order. They range from such familiar favorites as the Magna Carta and Churchill's wartime speeches, to innovative, unique items—aerial photographs of medieval fields, nursery rhymes, Punch cartoons.

Each selection is long enough to give students a sense of the whole. Introductions place each document within its historical setting. And the chronological arrangement lets you order your course as you see fit.

Ideal as a core or supplementary text, perfect for starting class discussions, DOCUMENTS IN ENGLISH HISTORY helps students understand the relationship between historical narrative and the evidence on which it is based.

Our hidden heritage

Despite fourteen centuries of Christianity, pagan myths are still part of the calendar and the imagination of the English-speaking world. Now Brian Branston, in this handsomely illustrated book, draws on the extensive archaeological evidence, pagan Charms, folklore and early writings to bring our forebears deities to life.

THE JOURNAL OF BRITISH STUDIES
TRINITY COLLEGE
HARTFORD, CONNECTICUT

The Journal of British Studies, founded in 1961, is published at Trinity College under the auspices of the Conference on British Studies. It was the result of the imaginative generosity of a Trinity alumnus, Frederick E. Hasler (Hon. LL.D. 1957) who contributed funds to the College for the specific purpose of establishing a learned periodical in the field of British history. Several Trinity alumni subsequently contributed to the fund and Trinity College now supports the publication of the Journal.

The Conference on British Studies is the official organization in the United States and Canada of scholars working in the field of British history and culture; its status as such is recognized by the American Historical Association of which it is an affiliate. Its nearly eight hundred members are drawn from fifty states and five provinces. It convenes twice each year, usually at New York University. The Conference awards a prize every five years for the best first book by an American or Canadian scholar.

The Conference sponsors a considerable publications program. It publishes the Journal of British Studies at Trinity College; the British Studies Intelligencer, a newsletter, at Western Washington State College, Bellingham, Washington; and Archives in British History and Culture, a series devoted to the publication of documents, at West Virginia University, Morgantown; and Current Research in British Studies, a quadrennial survey of research in progress in the United States and Canada, published at Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kansas and edited at Western Washington State College. The Conference also sponsors a series of short monographs, Studies in British History and Culture, edited at Wittenberg University, Springfield, Ohio and published by the Shoe-String Press, Hamden, Connecticut. Under the aegis of the Conference, Cambridge University Press publishes a bibliographical and biographical series. Albion, including the proceedings of the Conference in its regional and national meetings, is published four times a year at Appalachian State University, Boone, North Carolina, and is sent to all members of the Conference.

In addition to the Conference on British Studies, there are several affiliates: the Pacific Coast Conference on British Studies, the Pacific Northwest Conference on British Studies, the Midwest Conference on British Studies, the Southern Conference on British Studies, and the New England Conference on British Studies. Each of these vital autonomous groups has its own officers, programs, and other activities. There are also local groups centered in Los Angeles, Detroit, Pittsburgh, and San Francisco.

The Journal of British Studies appears twice in the academic year, in the autumn and in the spring. The annual subscription is $8.00. Checks for subscriptions and enquiries concerning advertising rates should be directed to the Business Manager, British Studies, Box 1315, Trinity College, Hartford, Connecticut, 06106.

Manuscripts should be sent, with self-addressed return stamped envelope, to the Editor, L. P. Curtis, Jr., Department of History, Brown University, Providence, Rhode Island, 02912. Articles should not exceed 8,000 words of text.

Volume XV, No. 1 will be published in the autumn of 1975.
