CONTRIBUTORS

Mary Channen Caldwell is Assistant Professor of Music at the University of Pennsylvania. She received her PhD in Music History and Theory from the University of Chicago in 2013. Her research focuses broadly on song repertoires that skirt the boundaries of sacred and secular, and specifically on the role of the refrain in Latin song.

John Haines is Professor of Music and Medieval Studies at the University of Toronto. He has published on medieval and Renaissance music and its modern reception in a variety of journals, both musicological and non-musicological. His recent books are Music in Films on the Middle Ages: Authenticity vs. Fantasy (New York, 2014), The Notory Art of Shorthand: A Curious Chapter in the History of Writing in the West (Leuven, 2014) and Chants du diable, chants du people: voyage en musique dans le Moyen Âge (Paris, forthcoming). He is a contributor most recently to The Cambridge Companion to French Music (2015) and The Oxford Handbook of Victorian Medievalism (forthcoming).

Christopher Macklin is Assistant Professor of Musicology at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. His research focuses primarily on the role of music in response to pestilence in the late medieval period, with additional projects exploring the relationship between speech and song in medieval Wales, and the use of music in investigating memory formation in historical and contemporary vocal practice. His work has been published in journals such as Early Music, The Journal of the Royal Musical Association and Early Music History.
