

Child Language, Learning and Linguistics

An Overview for the Teaching and Therapeutic Professions

David Crystal

There are two main ways to present the subject of linguistics: as an academic subject in its own right, or as a 'service discipline'. This book discusses the contribution, potential and actual, that linguistics can make to the study of child language acquisition.

Publication November

Cloth £4.25

Paper £1.95

Studies in Language Disability and Remediation

General Editors: David Crystal and Jean Cooper

An important new series which approaches the problem of language disability as a single field. Its scope includes the specifically linguistic aspects of the work of such areas as speech therapy, remedial teaching, teaching of the deaf and educational psychology, as well as those aspects of mother-tongue and foreign-language teaching which pose similar problems.

1. The Grammatical Analysis of Language Disability

A Procedure for Assessment and Remediation

David Crystal, Paul Fletcher and Michael Garman

The inability to learn and use grammatical structures can be a major language disorder in both children and adults.

A new remedial procedure – Language Assessment, Remediation and Screening Procedure – is presented and two case studies examined.

Cloth £9.00 Paper £4.50

Language and Communication in the Mentally Handicapped

Edited by Paul Berry

A collection of new papers assembling the most recent research into the language of severely mentally handicapped children. The importance of assessment as the basis for teaching is first underlined and followed by several examples of actual teaching programmes.

Cloth £7.50 Paper £3.50

2. Phonological Disability in Children

David Ingram

A linguistic approach to phonological disorders for clinicians who do not have a strong linguistic background.

The book deals with the obtaining and recording of data, the meaningful analysis of this data and the subsequent planning of therapy.

Books On Perception For Readers Of Perception.

George A. Miller and Philip N. Johnson-Laird

Language and Perception

"This rich and learned book is a search for a theory of meaning, for a way of relating perception and language. It is new and powerful... The authors set forth a conceptualist theory of meaning backed up by a powerfully formulated procedural semantics..."—Jerome S. Bruner

"A major advance towards a psychologically realistic theory of the lexicon, surpassing previous work in scope and sophistication. It is an approach to the study of meaning that is of the greatest importance for both linguistics and psychology."

Jean Piaget

The Grasp of Consciousness

Action and Concept in the Young Child

One of the most important names in twentieth-century psychology draws on and extends our knowledge of the process of learning in this brilliant new work.

"In my view there is little doubt that Piaget has defined the major psychological issues concerning the child and cognition, even as he has created a viable new area of study—genetic epistemology."

The Use of Definite and Indefinite Reference in Young Children

An Experimental Study in Semantic Acquisition

MICHAEL P. MARATSOS

A series of studies of young children's knowledge of a relatively well-defined, abstract semantic realm, that of definite and indefinite reference. Topics investigated include children's knowledge of their listeners in situations. The book also investigates various general problems in semantic acquisition.

£5.50 net

Single-Word Usage, Cognitive Development and the Beginnings of Combinatorial Speech

A Study of Ten English-Speaking Children

MARIS MONITZ RODGON

This book investigates single-word speech and its relationship to later combinatorial speech. It also considers the relationship between single-word speech and the child's cognitive development on the sensory-motor level.

£6.50 net

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Papers, notes and reviews should be sent to Prof. D. Crystal, Department of Linguistic Science, University of Reading, Whiteknights, Reading, Berkshire, England. They should normally be written in English. Major articles should not exceed twenty printed pages.

Two copies of the typescript should be submitted, one of which should be the top copy. Contributions should be clearly typed with double spacing, on one side of the paper only, using a conventional size of paper, preferably A4 (or 21.6 by 28 cm). Authors should hold one copy for correction of proofs. Footnotes, which should be as few as possible, should be listed, double spaced, on a separate sheet at the end of the article. Line diagrams, which should also be kept to a minimum, may be left in the text, but should be numbered independently of examples or utterances, etc. The title-page should include the title, author's name and affiliation, together with the address to which proofs are to be sent. Titles should be so worded that the first part may be used as a running headline (with a maximum length of 50 characters, including spaces). An abstract of the article (max. 120 words) should be typed on a separate sheet. Chronological age should be stated in years, months and (where needed) days as follows: 4;5.17.

Cited forms should be underlined to represent italicisation in print. Translational 'meanings' should be placed within single quotation marks. Emphasis should be marked by the use of small capitals. Phonetic transcriptions should, wherever possible, employ the symbols and conventions of the IPA; they must never be used in footnotes, and should in no case be narrower than absolutely necessary for the purpose.

References are to be made in the text thus: (Neisser 1967: 222). If the author's name is part of the text, the following form should be used: 'Piaget (1967: 131) investigates...'. When a work written by three or more authors is referred to, all names should be given in the first citation, with an ampersand linking the last two; e.g. (Fraser, Bellugi & Brown 1963): in subsequent citations the first name only should be given, with 'et al.' added.

All works referred to should be listed at the end of the article, double-spaced and in alphabetical order. The titles of articles should as far as possible be abbreviated according to the conventions of the Linguistic Bibliography of the Permanent International Committee of Linguists (CIPL). Examples of references (note the use of punctuation marks within references): Carroll, J. B. (1961). Language development in children. In S. Saporta (ed.), Psycholinguistics: a book of readings. New York: Holt, Rinehart & Winston. Lenneberg, E. H. (1967). Biological foundations of language. New York: Wiley. Oldfield, R. C. & Marshall, J. C. (eds), (1968). Language. Harmondsworth: Penguin.

Velten, H. V. (1943). The growth of phonemic and lexical patterns in infant language. Lg 19. 281-92.

Drawings, graphs, tables and figures should be done to professional standards in Indian ink on heavy unruled paper, or on graph paper ruled in light blue. Lettering on graphs, etc., is to be indicated in blue pencil or (preferably) on an overlying sheet of tracing paper.

With the exception of the title-page, book reviews should be submitted in the same form as articles. The title-page should be of the following form:

F. Smith & G. A. Miller (eds.), The genesis of language. Cambridge, Mass.: MIT Press, 1966. Pp. xii + 400.
