AFRICA TODAY

B W HODDER

The picture of Africa, as presented in today's media, is one of great complexity, confusion and in certain cases, impending disaster. Africa Today is a short, objective and thoroughly readable account of the numerous problems which beset African governments. It is designed to stimulate an informed interest in African affairs, thus discouraging the reader from taking refuge in simplistic, over-generalised and highly prejudiced explanations of complex situations.

An Atlas of African History

Second edition

J. D. Fage and Maureen Verity

In the twenty years since this atlas was first published, the continent of Africa has undergone a momentous transformation. While in 1958 colonial rule still held sway, there is now hardly an area of Africa which is not a self-governing state. But in addition to political change, Africa has experienced a rapid and expansive flowering of historical and archaeological research into her own past.

For these reasons, a new edition has become essential. Wholly revised and updated, this atlas covers African history from the beginning of the Christian era up to the present day. Of the seventy-one maps, more than a third are completely new and many relate to areas or periods which were previously obscure. Reflecting the most spectacular advances in knowledge, this book illuminates in particular the formative centuries before the European scramble for Africa.

Wisdom from the Nile

A Collection of Folk-Stories from Northern and Central Sudan

Edited by Ahmed Al-Shahi and F. C. T. Moore

The riverain peoples of Northern Sudan possess an extremely rich oral tradition of story-telling. This volume is a selection of the tales collected by the authors and translated from the original Arabic. There is a substantial introduction which sets the stories in their cultural and social context, and offers a systematic account of their principal themes. The book is of particular interest since, in the Sudan, as in many places, the traditions of oral story-telling are rapidly disappearing with the spread of literacy. £10

Shona Praise Poetry

Edited by Aaron C. Hodza and George Fortune

The Shona people of Rhodesia have a rich and ancient tradition that expresses itself most freely in its oral literature. The poems in this volume have been collected by Mr. Hodza, himself a Shona, and edited and translated by Mr. Fortune, who also wrote the introduction. £16

There Was a Certain Man

Spoken Art of the Fipa

Translated and edited by Roy Willis

This important addition to the series presents the oral tradition of the Fipa of Tanzania. It provides insight into the thought and values of an African people who retain much of their traditional culture. Certain more unusual forms of 'spoken art' are recorded and discussed, notably greetings and 'formal communications', as well as stories and proverbs, and an introduction based on much original material places them in their social and cultural context. £6.50 paper covers £4.50

Land Use and Development

Edited by Phil O'Keefe and Ben Wisner

This book explores the underlying principles determining land use in Africa and the means by which people have adapted and adjusted their system according to their environment and in response to crises like drought and famine. It analyses selected development schemes in the light of the need for full involvement of the people as a whole and the maintenance of the all-important ecological balance. Pp. vi, 232 paperback £5.25 (IAI members £4.50)

Drought in Africa 2

Sécheresse en Afrique

Edited by David Dalby, R. J. Harrison Church and Fatima Bezzaz

In the early 1970s, drought devastated the Sahel. Greatly expanding the seminal report produced at the time, this volume outlines the patterns that emerge and the lessons for the future that may be learnt from this disaster. Contributions range from climatological surveys to in-depth sociological studies of drought-affected communities not only in the Sahel but in other semi-arid regions of Africa. Pp. viii, 200 paperback £5.00 (IAI members £4.25)
