CONTRIBUTIONS

Contributions are invited from all over the world, and especially from scholars working in African universities. Articles written in languages other than English will be considered on their merits, and where necessary translation will be arranged. The average length suggested is 3,000 to 6,000 words, with occasional exceptions of up to 10,000 words. Notes on centres of African studies, research projects, and reports of recent conferences are also welcome.

All correspondence and contributions should be addressed to

THE EDITORS, THE JOURNAL OF MODERN AFRICAN STUDIES, at either UNIVERSITY COLLEGE, DAR ES SALAAM, TANZANIA or UNIVERSITY PRESS, CAMBRIDGE, ENGLAND.

Each contributor will receive a copy of the number and 25 offprints of his article free of charge.

SUBSCRIPTIONS

Subscriptions (35s. net per annual volume of four parts, post free) are payable in advance, and may be sent to any bookseller, or to Cambridge University Press, Bentley House, 200 Euston Road, London, N.W.1. South Africa

A Study in Conflict

By PIERRE L. VAN DEN BERGHE

Author of CANEVILLE: The Social Structure of a South African Town

A socio-political analysis of South Africa, characterized by the author as "a large scale and extremely complex society in a state of acute and continuous conflict and disequilibrium." Mr. van den Berghe is associate professor of sociology at State University of New York, Buffalo. Contents: Introduction; The Historical Background; The Social Structure of Modern South Africa: Culture and Status; Polity and Economy; Socio-Political Conflicts: Afrikaners Versus English; "Native Policy"; The Non-White Opposition and the Internal Power Balance; The Economic System and its Dysfunctions; Value Conflicts; External Pressures; Some Theoretical Considerations; Chronology of South African Events; Statistics; International Resolutions Concerning Human Rights in South Africa; Selected Bibliography.

"A remarkably clear explanation of the conditions that exist in South Africa, the historical and sociological reasons for these conditions, and the attitudes behind them. The dominating conflict growing out of a rigid system of racial segregation imposed by the white minority can lead to but one terrible end. The book suggests that the reckoning may not be far off."—Library Journal.

Urbanization and Migration in West Africa

Edited by HILDA KUPER. The processes of urbanization and migration in West Africa have long interested students of different disciplines and have evoked controversial interpretations among them. The essays in this book express the thoughts of a geographer, a historian, a linguist, anthropologists, sociologists, a political scientist, and an economist on the process of industrialization as it affects the patterns of migration to urban centers. $6.95

Tunisia Since Independence

The Dynamics of One-Party Government. CLEMENT HENRY MOORE. Can single-party régimes cope with the gigantic problems that modernization is creating in the new states? Mr. Moore seeks an answer to this question in his account of post-independence politics in Tunisia, the arena for one of the oldest and most politically mature of the new single-party régimes in Africa. He offers a perceptive analysis of the local and national politics of the country. $6.00

The Samburu

A Study of Gerontocracy in a Nomadic Tribe. PAUL SPENCER. The Samburu are a Masai-speaking tribe of some 30,000 persons in northern Kenya. This book examines their society, a gerontocracy in which power vests in the older men, while men under thirty may not marry or otherwise assert their personal independence. $6.50

Politics in the Congo: Decolonization and Independence

By CRAWFORD YOUNG. This is a study of the process of decolonization, the development of the nationalist movement, and the salient aspects of the emerging post-independence policy in the Congo since 1945. The author considers the forces set loose by the Leopoldville explosion that uprooted a history of colonial rule. He distinguishes the elements of this experience and evaluates its impact on the African. Crawford Young based his analysis on first-hand investigation in seventeen provinces of the Congo, and interviews with local administrators in more than half the territories of former Leopoldville Province.

Christian Missionaries and the Creation of Northern Rhodesia 1880-1924

By ROBERT I. ROTBERG. This book is an attempt to provide a case-study of the contribution made by Christian missions to the formation of Northern Rhodesia. Individually and collectively, they exercised a powerful influence over scattered villages and whole tribes. The author focuses on the tensions between Christian authority and secular power, follows the growth of a secular initiative, traces the beginnings of an educational system and of an indigenous church.

Education and Political Development

No. 4, "Studies in Political Development"

Edited by JAMES S. COLEMAN. The knowledge and experience of nineteen specialists is brought to bear on the subject of the relationship of education and political development in at least ten countries around the world. The contributors both discuss theoretical matters and present the results of empirical research. Education and Political Development is the fourth of a series of seven books entitled "Studies in Political Development," sponsored by the Committee on Comparative Politics of the Social Science Research Council.

Political Culture and Political Development

No. 5, "Studies in Political Development"

Edited by LUCIAN W. PYE and SIDNEY VERBA. This volume presents a major first attempt to deal comparatively with the political cultures of nations in a large part of the world. Specialists writing on ten nations relate the political culture of the country to the historical pattern by which the political culture itself developed.
