

COMING IN THE FALL ISSUE OF THE QUARTERLY

The Kohlers of Kohler: Factory, Village, and School, by William R. Johnson

The Other Side of Harold Rugg, by Peter F. Carbone, Jr.

Education in Colonial Kenya, by George E. Urch

NOTES AND DOCUMENTS

Workingmen and Free Schools in the Nineteenth Century: A Comment on the Labor-Education Thesis, by Jay M. Pawa

Eighteenth Century Periodicals for Women, by Peter John Miller

ESSAY REVIEWS

Cornell
University Press

Juvenile Reform in the Progressive Era

William R. George and the Junior Republic Movement

By JACK M. HOLL. In this significant contribution to the history of the Progressive Movement and of educational and penal reform in America, the author focuses on the intriguing story of the George Junior Republic. He traces the evolution of the Junior Republic, founded in 1895, from a fresh-air camp for city slum children to a daring experiment in juvenile self-government. 376 pages. $12.50

Scholars and Gentlemen

Universities and Society in Pre-Industrial Britain, 1500-1700

By HUGH KEARNEY. A description of the universities of England, Scotland, and Ireland, based on students' notebooks and other manuscript evidence, that points out how such groups as the government, the church, Puritans, and radicals used university education to achieve political, religious, and social ends. 260 pages. $6.75

Cornell University

Founders and the Founding

By CARL L. BECKER 246 pages. $1.95 paper.

Early Cornell, 1865-1900

By MORRIS BISHOP. Illus. by Alison Mason Kingsbury. 364 pages, plates, drawings, map. $2.45 paper.

Cornell University Press
ITHACA and LONDON

MESSAGES: AN ANNOTATED BIBLIOGRAPHY OF AFRICAN LITERATURE FOR SCHOOLS

by

Gideon-Cyrus M. Mutiso

With A Foreword By

George G. King

Vice Provost, Community Affairs
Montclair State College

"As a partial answer to the problem of how to get America's young Black students to turn themselves on to the reading of literature, it is hoped that Professor Mutiso's book will find wide acceptance among teachers of Black studies and general literature in America's schools. The classification system used in the book which groups titles according to age-interest levels should encourage all readers working with young people to promote the reading of selected volumes as part of what is being studied whatever the formal course title may be. It is further expected that the easy-to-read synopses of African literature should enable all Americans to learn more of the heritage of their Black countrymen." From Dr. King's Foreword.

Wpps. 97 pp.

$1.95

Montclair State College Press
Montclair State College
Upper Montclair, New Jersey 07043

