

Relazioni Internazionali

Bimonthly Review of the Istituto per gli Studi di Politica Internazionale

Relazioni Internazionali, founded in 1935, is the Journal of ISPI, the Istituto per gli Studi di Politica Internazionale, based in Milan, Italy. The review focuses on contemporary international affairs at large, with a multidisciplinary approach.

Its main purpose is to provide a reliable source of information and understanding on the rapidly changing world environment and also offer to foreign observers the Italian view on foreign policy and the perspective of Italian national interests.

THE VOGUE OF REVOLUTION IN POOR COUNTRIES

Forrest D. Colburn

In the aftermath of World War II, a surprisingly large number of poor countries were upset by revolution: Vietnam, China, Cuba, Algeria, Ethiopia, Cambodia, Mozambique, Angola, Afghanistan, Iran, and Nicaragua. Revolutionaries in these geographically and culturally disparate countries came to power through different routes, but once in power they had remarkably similar ideas about how to remake their states and societies. In a detailed analysis of the course of these revolutions, Forrest Colburn suggests that shared institutional and policy choices of revolutionary elites arose from a fashionable political imagination. This lucid book clarifies why so many countries were so profoundly wrecked in the frenzied pursuit of a dreamt-up world.

"This book is without question the most important analysis of (the failures of) socialist construction ever written. . . . The political implications of [Colburn's] argument are applicable to an audience far beyond that of the specialist."

—Timothy Wickham-Crowley

THE HANDBOOK OF ECONOMIC SOCIOLOGY

Edited by Neil J. Smelser and Richard Swedberg

More than forty leading sociologists, economists, and political scientists examine the theoretical and empirical evolution of economic sociology; the social foundations of modern economic organizations; the interaction of economic factors with schools, the family, law, religion, work, and other institutions; and economic systems in historical, cross-cultural, and political perspectives. Original and far-reaching, The Handbook of Economic Sociology provides a state-of-the-art overview that will appeal to all scholars who are interested in the impact of economics on the lives of people and nations.

"This is the first comprehensive theoretical and empirical account of the burgeoning field of economic sociology. The scholarship is consistently strong. . . . The book will be greeted warmly and read by serious scholars throughout the social sciences."

—Robert K. Merton

"This is a bold, ambitious, almost daunting project. . . . It will surely become the standard reference book for the field—the sort of text every scholar will have to know, consult, and cite."—Viviana Zelizer

MAKING DEMOCRACY WORK

Civic Traditions in Modern Italy

Robert D. Putnam

With Robert Leonardi and Raffaella Y. Nanetti

"Seminal, epochal, path-breaking: All those overworked words apply to a book that, to make the point brazenly, is a Democracy in America for our times."—The Nation

"A great work of social science, worthy to rank alongside de Tocqueville, Pareto, and Weber. . . ."—The Economist

Politician's Dilemma

Building State Capacity in Latin America

Barbara Geddes

Today politicians routinely face a painful dilemma: whether to use state resources for national purposes, or to channel resources to people and projects that will help insure political survival and reelection. Geddes explores the ways in which political actors deal with these contradictory issues in Latin America.

Peaceful Territorial Change

by Arie Marcelo Kacowicz

A new book in the series

Studies in International Relations

edited by Charles W. Kegley, Jr. & Donald J. Puchala

As national boundaries shift in the former Soviet Union and Yugoslavia and in the Middle East, achieving territorial alterations through peaceful means remains an important yet largely neglected goal of the international community. In Peaceful Territorial Change, Arie Marcelo Kacowicz presents a definitive assessment of the conditions, processes, and mechanisms that allow territorial change to occur without warfare or severe economic disruption.
