Catalogue of Chinese Rubblings

from Field Museum of Natural History

A part of the Fieldiana: Anthropology Series, this long-awaited catalogue lists Field Museum's collection of more than 4,000 ink rubbings (including duplicates) taken from ancient Chinese inscriptions—one of the most significant collections in North America. This landmark catalogue (the first of its kind in a western language) represents the culmination of some 20 years of curatorial research and 15 years of editorial work. Almost every entry is printed in Chinese characters, with transliterations and English descriptions.

Catalogue of Chinese Rubblings from Field Museum (publication No. 1327), researched by Hoshien Tchen and M. Kenneth Starr, prepared by Alice K. Schneider, and edited by Hartmut Walravens, contains 48 pages of introductory text, 452 pages of catalogue data, 135 illustrations, and 149 pages of cross-index information.

Paper, $67.50 (discounts for libraries, educational institutions, and learned societies are: 1 copy, 10%, 2 or more copies, 15%).

Foreign orders (including Canada and Mexico) include $2.50 per book for shipping.

Suicide in Asia and the Near East

Edited by Lee A. Headley

This book provides, for the first time anywhere, a collection of data on completed and attempted suicide in Asia and the Near East. The task of collecting such information has been regarded as virtually impossible. Some Asian cultures strongly oppose suicide and many religions condemn it, so evidence of its occurrence is often denied or obscured. In this collection Headley has accomplished "the impossible" and fills a notable gap in the information about suicide throughout the world. $38.50

SONG OF HOPE

The Green Revolution in a Panjab Village
Murray Leaf

Leaf studies the Sikh Village of Shahidpur in the Indian state of Panjab both before and after the Green Revolution in order to assess whether life had changed in the village. By the time of his second stay, life had improved on every measure. Leaf points to the lessons of this case for development planners.

"Compiled by a group of competent and dedicated specialists in Japan, this 16-volume set covers not only Mao's written works of all types (essays, correspondence, etc.), but also other diverse source materials such as transcripts of his conversation, minutes of conferences he presided over and documents he drafted behind the scenes. The collection goes far, far beyond the scope of the 4 volumes of official selected works, covering the same period, published in Beijing. Moreover, all the texts included are in their original, unaltered forms. There is no question whatsoever that this is the most comprehensive and meticulous collection ever published. The collection is absolutely essential to all serious students of modern China and all research libraries concerned with political revolutions and social changes of the 20th century." — *Michael Y. Against the State

Politics and Social Protest in Japan

David E. Apter and Nagayo Sawa

Reconstructing the dramatic struggle surrounding the building of the New Tokyo (Narita) International Airport, this scrutiny of modern protest politics dispels the myth of corporate Japan's unassailable success. Using field observation, in-depth interviewing, and first-hand experience drawn from living in the "fortresses" surrounding the airport, the authors examine the conflict and violence that ensued. They describe the confrontations from the point of view of each group of participants, pinpointing weaknesses in the Japanese political and bureaucratic system that prolonged and heightened the struggle: the lack of effective due process, inadequate consultative mechanisms outside of elite circles, and the failure of local government to represent local issues.

A Reference Guide to the Political System

Dae-Sook Suh

1981, 607 pages, $35.00

"Thanks to the laborious efforts of Dae-Sook Suh, a pioneer in the study of Korean Communism, the researcher's problems are now substantially alleviated. Indeed, this volume will prove to be an indispensable reference guide for anyone undertaking serious research on the North Korean political system. Suh has drawn upon an impressive array of sources and resources: his formidable expertise on North Korea, his familiarity with and access to both primary and secondary sources in multiple languages, rare materials he obtained during his visits to the academies of sciences of the DPRK and of the Soviet Union, and captured North Korean materials in the U.S. National Archives, which were declassified in 1977." —B.C.
