

A new agenda for the philosophy of religion emerges from this interdisciplinary collection. Going outside the traditional concerns of natural theology, the distinguished contributors to this volume explore such topics as the nature of self-hood and its images in the ancient, the medieval and the modern world; the role of philosophy as a route to wisdom; non-conceptual awareness; and the nature of love and its relation to attention. Discussion focusses on the figures of Plato and Augustine, William James and the Absolute Idealist F. H. Bradley, Kierkegaard and Heidegger, as well as leading figures of the Tibetan Buddhist tradition.

Contributors: Stephen R. L. Clark, Sarah Coakley, John Haldane, Ronald W. Hepburn, Fergus Kerr, Oliver Leaman, Michael McGhee, James P. Mackey, Anthony O'Hear, Janet Martin Soskice, T. L. S. Sprigge, Michael Weston, Paul Williams, Rowan Williams.

Cover design by Ken Farnhill

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

ISBN 0-521-42196-9

9 780521 421966