

People in Political Science

Activities

Mark A. Boyer, associate professor, department of political science, University of Connecticut, was co-program chair of the 1997 International Studies Association annual meeting, held in Toronto, Canada.

Ambassador Jonathan Dean, who held senior diplomatic positions on arms control and in Germany, and who is currently an advisor on international security issues with the Union of Concerned Scientists, has been elected president of the United Nations Association National Capital Area Chapter.

Jonathan Dean

Russell Farnen, professor, department of political science, University of Connecticut, has been appointed editor of the journal Politics, Groups and the Individual.

Richard P. Hiskes, associate professor, department of political science, University of Connecticut, delivered the keynote address at the 1997 American Bar Association's annual meeting for university professors, held in Charleston, SC.

Robert S. Kravchuk, assistant professor, department of political science, University of Connecticut, served under the auspices of the U.S. Treasury Department as a budget management consultant to the Ministries of Finance of the newly independent states of the former Soviet Union.

Raphael J. Sonenshein, professor of political science, California State University, Fullerton, was recently named executive director of the Los Angeles City Charter Reform Commission.

Frederick C. Turner, professor, department of political science, University of Connecticut, was elected vice president of the International Social Science Council, which is headquartered in Paris.

Raphael J. Sonenshein

Administrative Appointments

Dennis Bathory, vice chair for graduate studies, department of political science, Rutgers University.

Kenneth Bickers, admissions director, graduate program in political science, Indiana University.

Edwin Dorn, dean, Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs, University of Texas at Austin.

Harvey Flaumenhaft, dean, St. John's College in Annapolis.

Richard Fleisher, chair, department of political science, Fordham University.

Cleveland R. Fraser, chair, department of political science, Furman University.

Patricia F. Freeman, chair, department of political science, University of Tennessee, Knoxville.

Glen A. Halva-Neubauer, director, Christian A. Johnson Center for Engaged Learning, Furman University.

Russell Hanson, executive dean, College of Arts and Sciences, Indiana University.

Milton Heumann, chair, department of political science, Rutgers University.

Robert Huckfeldt, chair, department of political science, Indiana University.

Cornelius M. Kerwin, acting provost, American University; formerly dean, School of Public Affairs, American University.

Susan Lawrence, vice chair for undergraduate studies, department of political science, Rutgers University.

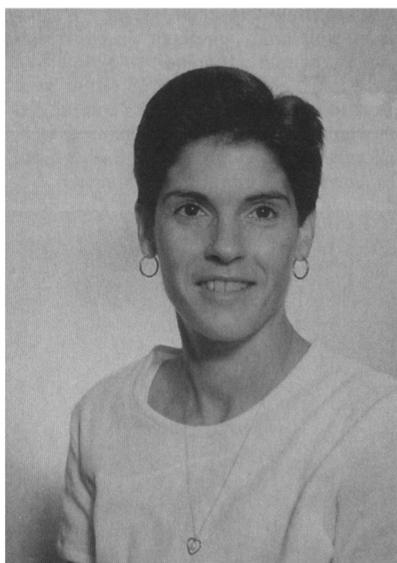

William M. LeoGrande, acting dean, School of Public Affairs, American University; formerly chair, department of government, American University.

Jack Levy, Rutgers University Board of Governors Chair in Political Science.

A. James McAdams, chair, department of government and international studies, University of Notre Dame.

Karen O'Connor, chair, department of government, American University.

Mark P. Petracca, chair, department of politics and society, University of California-Irvine.

Susan Lawrence

Gerald Pomper, Rutgers University Board of Governors Chair in Political Science.

John T. Rourke, head, department of political science, University of Connecticut.

Donald L. Scruggs, chair, social sciences and history program, and coordinator, international studies program, Stephens College (MO).

John T. Williams, director, graduate program in political science, Indiana University.

Eduard Ziegenhagen, chair, department of political science, State University of New York, Binghamton.

New Appointments

Christopher Anderson, assistant professor of political science, State University of New York, Binghamton.

Gerald Blasi, interim director, master's in public administration program, State University of New York, Binghamton.

Kathleen Bratton, assistant professor of political science, State University of New York, Binghamton.

Thomas F. Brezenski, instructor of political science, University of Arkansas at Monticello.

David S. Brown, assistant professor, department of political science, Rice University.

Alison Brysk, assistant professor, department of politics and society, University of California-Irvine; formerly Pomona College.

Jeffrey Cohen, professor of political science, Fordham University.

James Cox, assistant professor of political science, State University of New York, Binghamton.

Jonathan Crystal, assistant professor of political science, Fordham University.

Timothy Fackler, assistant professor, department of political science, University of Nevada, Las Vegas.

Timothy M. Frye, assistant professor, department of political science, Ohio State University.

Renee J. Heberle, assistant professor, department of political science and public administration, Toledo University.

Sunhyuck Kim, assistant professor, department of political science and School of International Relations, University of Southern California.

Ricardo Rene Laremont, associate director, Institute of Global Cultural Studies, State University of New York, Binghamton.

Michael Licari, assistant professor of political science, State University of New York, Binghamton.

Jeffrey Ling, assistant professor of political science, The College of Wooster.

Ellen Lust-Okar, assistant professor, department of political science, Rice University.

Kathleen M. McGraw, professor, department of political science, Ohio State University; formerly SUNY-Stony Brook.

Katherine E. Palmer, assistant professor of political science, Furman University; formerly University of Virginia.

Patrick Regan, assistant professor of political science, State University of New York, Binghamton.

Eric Reinhardt, assistant professor of political science, Emory University; formerly Columbia University.

Katherine Tate

Joe Soss, assistant professor, department of government, American University.

Thomas Schaller, assistant professor of political science, State University of New York, Binghamton.

Randolph T. Stevenson, assistant professor of political science, Rice University.

Katherine Tate, associate professor, department of politics and society, University of California-Irvine; formerly of Ohio State University.

Richard J. Timpone, assistant professor, department of political science, Ohio State University; formerly SUNY-Stony Brook.

Robert M. Uriu, assistant professor, department of politics and society, University of California-Irvine; formerly Columbia University.

Andrew B. Whitford, assistant professor, department of political science, Rice University.

David A. Yalof, assistant professor, department of political science, University of Connecticut.

Promotions

Craig Aucher, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, Butler University.

Karen Beckwith, professor of political science, The College of Wooster.

Margaret Brabant, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, Butler University.

Susan Carroll, professor, department of political science, Rutgers University.

David L. Cingranelli, professor, department of political science, State University of New York, Binghamton.

Javier Corrales, assistant professor of political science, Amherst College; formerly visiting assistant professor.

Sharyl Cross, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, San Diego State University.

David R. Davis, associate professor, department of political science, Emory University.

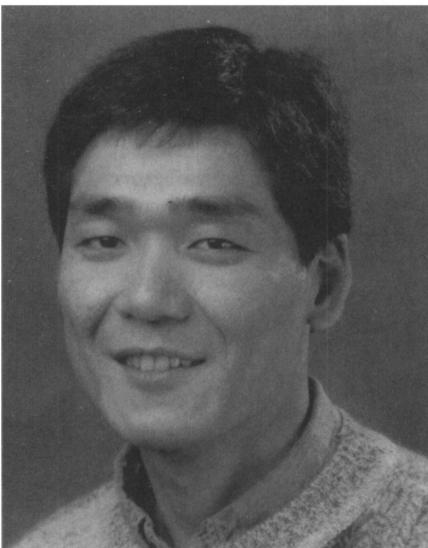

Tom DeLuca, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, Fordham University.

Michael Gold-Biss, associate professor of political science with tenure and director, international relations program, St. Cloud State.

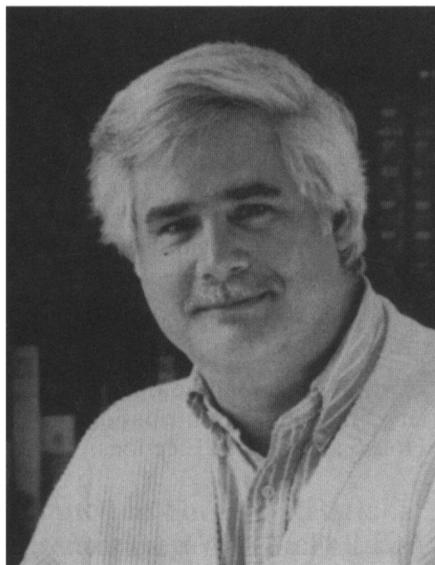

Milton Heumann, highest level of professor, department of political science, Rutgers University.

Ronald Kahn, James Monroe Professor of Politics and Law, Oberlin College.

DongSung Kong, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, San Diego State University.

DongSung Kong

Garrett Ward Sheldon

T. Clifford Morgan, professor, department of political science, Rice University.

Robert Pastor, Goodrich C. White Professor of International Relations, department of political science, Emory University.

Wendy Rahn, associate professor, department of political science, University of Minnesota.

Stanley Rosen, professor, department of political science, University of Southern California.

Michael Shaffer, professor, department of political science, Rutgers University.

Garrett Ward Sheldon, The John Morton Beatty Professor of Political and Social Sciences, Clinch Valley College of the University of Virginia.

Diane Singerman, associate professor, department of government, American University.

Yang Zhong, associate professor, department of political science, University of Tennessee, Knoxville.

Retirements

Aage R. Clausen, professor emeritus, department of political science, Ohio State University.

George F. Cole, professor, department of political science, University of Connecticut.

Jeff Fishel, professor emeritus of government, American University.

Milton Greenberg, professor emeritus, American University.

Ipyong J. Kim, professor, department of political science, University of Connecticut.

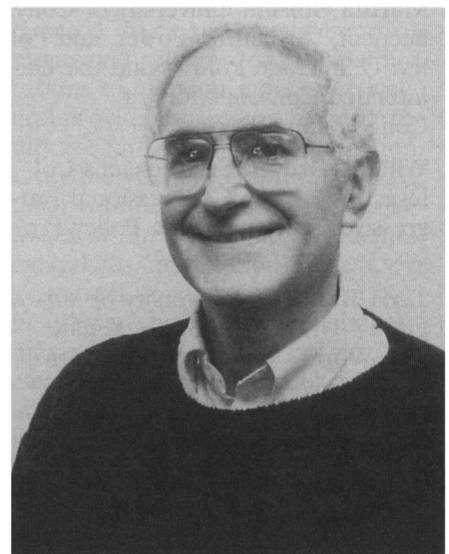

Morley Segal, emeritus professor of public administration, American University.

Visiting and Temporary Positions

Paul Brace, Clarence Carter Professor of Political Science, Rice University, will serve as visiting lecturer at the London School of Economics during the fall semester 1997.

James H. Mittleman, professor of international relations in the School of International Service at American University, has been appointed Pok Rafeah Chair in International Studies at the Institute for Malaysian and International Studies, Universiti Kebangsaan Malaysia.

The Department of Government at American University welcomes three visiting faculty members for the 1997–1998 school year: Assistant Professor Robert Boucher Jr., of the University of Notre Dame, William

Michael Zuckert

T. Murphy Jr., of The College of William and Mary, and Steven Taylor, of the University of Minnesota.

Robert B. Lloyd, professor, Paul Nitze School of Advanced International Studies, Johns Hopkins University, was visiting lecturer of political science at Pepperdine University for the 1996–1997 school year.

Michael Zuckert, visiting professor of political science, Fordham University.

Awards

Dirksen Center Awards Congressional Research Grants

Each year, the Dirksen Congressional Center awards Congressional Research grants to scholars in an effort to fund thoughtful study into congressional leadership and Congress. In cooperation with the Caterpillar Foundation, the Dirksen Center awarded $25,000 to a dozen political scientists, historians, and journalists. This year's awardees include:

John Bader, University of California, Los Angeles, "Minority Party Leadership in the U.S. Senate"

Terry Royed, University of Alabama, "Party Pledge, Party Leadership, and Public Policy in the U.S., 1897–1995" (with Stephen Borrelli)

Martha Gibson, University of Connecticut, "Structure, Power, and Policy: U.S. Trade Politics and the Unintended Consequences of Congressional Reform"

William Grover, St. Michael's College (VT), "The Congressional Progressive Caucus and the Policy Process"

Terri Halperin, University of Virginia, "The United States Senate: The World's Greatest Deliberative Body, 1789–1821"

James Lindsay, University of Iowa, "Beyond the Water's Edge: Congressional Leaders and Committees in Foreign Policy"

John Messmer, University of Missouri, "Early Political Life on the World Wide Web: Congress, Voters, and Organized Interests on the Internet"

Sharyn O'Halloran, Columbia University, "Congress, the Executive, and Delegation"

Rosanna Perotti, Hofstra University, "Congress and Illegal Immigration Restrictions, 1986–1996"

Bill Weinbeg, Independent Scholar, "Biography of Carl D. Perkins"

Clyde Wilcox, Georgetown University, "Individual Contributions in House and Senate Elections."

ACLS Names Winners of 1996–97 Fellowship Competitions

The American Council of Learned Societies recently named winners in several of its annual fellowship competitions, included among them were 17 political scientists. They are listed below with name of fellowship and research program.

ACLS Fellowships

Sotirios A. Barber, professor of government, University of Notre Dame. Welfare and the instrumental constitution.

Joel Krieger, professor of political science, Wellesley College. British politics in the post-collectivist age.

Stephen N. Ndegwa, assistant professor of government, College of William and Mary. Land reform as an arena for the social construction of citizenship in multiracial societies in southern Africa.

Susan Shell, professor of political science, Boston College. Liberal thoughts of punishment: An examination and reappraisal.

National Program for Advanced Study and Research in China

Research Program

Barry McCormick, associate professor of political science, Marquette University. Intellectuals and markets: The transformation of China's public sphere.

Elizabeth J. Perry, professor of political science, Harvard University. Shanghai on strike: Workers, citizens, and the state in contemporary China.

Julia C. Strauss, lecturer in politics, University of London. The construction of bureaucratic administration and state service in 20th century China.

Graduate Program

Regina Abram, graduate student in political science, University of California-Berkeley. Visible hands: The politics of market regulation in Chengdu and Hanoi.

Matthew Bartels, graduate student in political science, Stanford University. The changing role of mass organizations in the transformation of the Chinese state.

Timothy Fitzpatrick, graduate student in political science, University of California-San Diego. The role of foreign firms in China's industrial development.

Paul Thiers, graduate student in political science, University of Oregon. The potential for market based policy mechanisms to promote sustainable agriculture in China.

Program in East European Studies

Dissertation Fellowships

Rawi Eugene Abdelal, department of government, Cornell University. Economic nationalism after the empire: The reconstruction of political economy in post-Habsburg East Europe and post-Soviet Eurasia.

Robin S. Brooks, department of political science, University of California-Berkeley. Forced to flower? Cultural identification, ethnic mobilization, and nation-building in post communism.

Ann M. Grzymala-Busse, department of government, Harvard University. The post-1989 adaption of communist parties in East Central Europe.