The Network

The Network is a newsletter published jointly by the history of Education Society and Division F of the American Educational Research Association. The Network carries a variety of information of value to historians of education, including notices of meetings and conferences, information about grants, and lists of recently completed dissertations.

Edited by Richard Altenbaugh of the University of Pittsburgh, The Network is published three times a year. It is available only to members of the Society or of Division F of AERA.
