

Chicago Critical Pleasures

THE BREAKING OF THE VESSELS

Harold Bloom

"Harold Bloom's theory of the anxiety of influence is amplified and defended in this new book. . . Readers familiar with Bloom and those new to him will find here a powerful and original theory of literary history grounded in the wonderful minute particulars of the best poems in our language. Anyone who desires to write on the theory of literary history must henceforth wrestle Bloom."—Frank Lentricchia, from the Foreword

Cloth $10.00 128 pages

With this volume, the University of Chicago Press introduces a new series in critical theory, the WELLEK LIBRARY LECTURES, under the editorship of Frank Lentricchia. Each year a distinguished critical theorist will deliver a series of three lectures at the University of California, Irvine. Chicago's publication of these lectures will provide a forum for critical debate by bringing to a wider audience eminent theorists in the process of elaborating and defending their positions.

IRIS MURDOCH

Work for the Spirit

Elizabeth Dipple

Arguing for the serious consideration and rereading of Murdoch, this study is the first to consider all 20 of the novels written between 1954 and 1980. Dipple explores the aesthetic and philosophical concepts central to Murdoch's thought and offers sustained analyses of individual novels.

"This brilliant interpretation of Murdoch surpasses, in scope and insight, anything else that has been written about her."—Catharine R. Stimpson

NEW READINGS VS. OLD PLAYS

Recent Trends in the Reinterpretation of English Renaissance Drama

Richard L. Levin

"Richard L. Levin essays the unenviable task of anatomizing dubious approaches to Elizabethan and Jacobean drama that have attained a certain fashionableness in recent years. . . Because he is thoughtful, knowledgeable, and undogmatic, he is a trustworthy guide to the critical shortcomings of others."—Robert Ornstein, Studies in English Literature

SEX AND SENSIBILITY

Ideal and Erotic Love from Milton to Mozart

Jean H. Hagstrum

"This book is first of all a substantial contribution to 18th-century scholarship. But more interestingly, it inquires, precisely and eloquently, into the literary and visual interpretations of erotic love from the Restoration up to the Romantic period."—The Virginia Quarterly Review

Feydeau, First to Last

Eight One-Act Comedies

By GEORGES FEYDEAU. Translated with an Introduction by NORMAN R. SHAPIRO. Among the many practitioners of light Boulevard comedy in Paris at the turn of the century, Georges Feydeau stands out as the master. Shapiro has selected and translated eight one-act plays, among them Feydeau's first and last extant works. Six appear here in English for the first time. "Feydeau is devilishly hard to translate, and Shapiro has done a first-rate job."—Daniel Gerould, CUNY. $19.95.

Love Words

The Self and the Text in Medieval and Renaissance Poetry

By MARIANN SANDERS REGAN. Drawing upon a number of current schools of literary interpretation and suggesting possible bridges between them, Love Words proposes a new poetics and with it what Regan characterizes as a "maternal" theory of the text. $19.50.

"Madame Bovary" on Trial

By DOMINICK LACAPRA. In 1857, following the publication of Madame Bovary, Flaubert was charged with having committed an "outrage to public morality and religion." Original in his methods and provocative in his conclusions, LaCapra examines Flaubert's remarkable trial and draws conclusions about the relationship between literature and society. $19.50.

Saint/Oedipus

Psychocritical Approaches to Flaubert's Art

By WILLIAM J. BERG, GEORGE MOSKOS, and MICHEL GRIMAUD. With an essay by JEAN-PAUL SARTRE and a new translation of Flaubert's Saint Julian by Michel Grimaud. "In the annals of Flaubert scholarship Saint/Oedipus constitutes a novel experiment: never has so much close attention been lavished simultaneously on one work by critics intent on demonstrating the diversity of a single critical approach. . . . Immensely useful, an excellent pedagogical tool."—Naomi Schor, Brown University. $19.50.

The Discourse of Modernism

By TIMOTHY J. REISS. "The Discourse of Modernism represents a turning point in literary and intellectual history. While clearly in the framework established by Michel Foucault, it incorporates crucial theoretical advances."—Peter Haidu, University of Illinois. Reiss looks closely at a number of texts—among them works by Kepler, Campanella, Bacon, More, Cyrano de Bergerac, Swift, and Defoe—and compares the discursive evolution they reveal with developments in philosophy, science, and political theory. $28.50.
