Editorial Policy and Guidelines for Submission of Documents and Introductory Notes

Editorial Policy

International Legal Materials is a collection of current documents designed to provide up-to-date information to scholars, practicing lawyers, legal advisers to government agencies and corporations, national and international officials, and others concerned with the legal aspects of public and private international relations. These documents primarily consist of current materials not readily available in most libraries.

The term international law is interpreted broadly for the purposes of this publication. Some of the materials may be of a kind normally classified under other rubrics, such as foreign law, comparative law, conflict of laws, constitutional law, international organization, and the like. The main criterion of the Editorial Advisory Committee in selecting materials is that the documents be of substantial interest to a large number of legal scholars, practicing lawyers and officials dealing with public and private international matters. It is recognized that these interests may vary considerably among users of the publication in the United States and elsewhere.

International Legal Materials reproduces by photo-offset the official documents whenever possible. In some instances, the documents are reproduced from unofficial typescript when texts are unavailable or when a translation is given. A short "I.L.M. Background/Content Summary" precedes each document to assist in reviewing the materials. On occasion, "Introductory Notes" also accompany documents. The authors of such notes are identified.

Readers are invited to draw the Editor's attention to documents meriting reproduction in International Legal Materials.

Submission of Documents

Readers are invited to submit documents that would be of interest to the international legal community. International Legal Materials reproduces by photo-offset the official text of a document whenever possible; if the official version is not available in English, an unofficial translation is acceptable. The original language text must accompany unofficial English translations. The source of the document, e.g., a government department, a court, an embassy or an official gazette, should be clearly identified.

Submission of Introductory Notes

Readers are also invited to submit brief Introductory Notes to accompany documents in I.L.M. Introductory Notes are intended to provide background information for the document they accompany. They should be objective, without judgmental commentary. For example, Introductory Notes for treaties might include a short history of the negotiations, the dates of signature and entry into force; for legislation, its history and international significance; for judicial proceedings, the background of the case and a citation to the full text in the original language; for reports and other documents, background information as to the document's significance. If within the text of the document there are references to other documents, their relevance should be briefly explained in the Introductory Note.

Format

Introductory Notes should be between 750 and 1250 words in length. Both Introductory Notes and unofficial translations should be typed single-spaced with double-spacing between paragraphs. Authors and translators may send an additional copy of their submission on an IBM-compatible diskette. I.L.M. uses WordPerfect 5.1.

A statement giving the author's name, title, address, telephone and fax numbers must accompany all submissions.

Acceptance of Materials and Corrections

Submissions cannot be returned. Authors and translators will be notified of the acceptance of their Introductory Note or translation as soon as possible. Once a submission has been accepted for reproduction, the American Society of International Law will send the author or translator a Publication Agreement. Authors and translators will be acknowledged in I.L.M.

In some cases minor editorial or typographical alterations may be made without contacting author or translator. Major corrections will be sent to the author or translator for approval. Corrected Introductory Notes or translations should be returned as soon as possible.

UNIVERSITY OF NOTTINGHAM HUMAN RIGHTS LAW CENTRE

YEARBOOK OF THE EUROPEAN CONVENTION FOR THE PREVENTION OF TORTURE

The European Torture Convention is a unique human rights treaty which seeks to prevent human rights violations in places of detention in over 30 European states by means of prison and other visits by its independent European Committee for the Prevention of Torture. The Committee adopts detailed and often critical national reports on its visits, to which states may reply.

Volume 1 of the Yearbook for 1989 to 1992 has 600 pages and contains the following materials in English and/or French:

- Text of the Convention, Committee Rules of Procedure
- First two Committee annual General Reports
- Committee Reports to States on Visits and Replies by States
- Committee Public Statement on Turkey
- Ratifications, Committee membership, visits, bibliography

Subsequent volumes will be annual in their coverage: Volumes 2 to 4 (1993-5) will be published in 1997.

Volume 1 is now available: £90 sterling or US $160 plus shipping and handling.

INTERNATIONAL HUMAN RIGHTS REPORTS

These Reports contain comprehensive coverage of the following kinds of materials:

- Decisions on individual petitions of the UN Human Rights Committee, CERD and the UN Committee against Torture
- Judgments, etc, of the Inter-American Court and Commission of Human Rights
- Decisions on petitions of the African Commission on Human and Peoples' Rights
- Judgments of the Hague War Crimes Tribunal
- Concluding Comments on national reports and General Comments by all of the UN treaty-based human rights committees
- UN and regional organisation human rights treaties, declarations, etc

Volumes 1-3 (1994-6) now available. Subscription for 1997: £64 or US $136.

Treaty Implementation: Scientific and Technical Advice Enters a New Stage

By Lee A. Kimball

ISSN 1057-0551. Eight chapters, 263 pages, including five annexes.

Published summer 1996 by the American Society of International Law as No. 28 in the series, Studies in Transnational Legal Policy.

Price: $25, plus 20% postage and handling.

This study explores the methods for gathering and analyzing scientific and technical information as specified in various international environmental conventions. It considers the contributions of scientific and technical analysis in two stages: before the 1972 Stockholm Conference and from Stockholm to the 1992 Rio Conference on Environment and Development. In each stage, it explores the growing reflection of scientific knowledge in the conventions as well as emerging technical and socio-economic questions and the mechanisms employed for their analysis. The effect of the legal and political context in which these developments occur is also considered. Special emphasis is given to different approaches to scientific information and analysis in the early marine and terrestrial conventions, and how these distinctions are less pronounced in recent developments.

The third and current stage of scientific and technical advice is characterized by explicit recognition of the need for socio-economic information and analysis as well as scientific and technical knowledge, and by growing recourse to collective analysis of these issues at the international level. This poses new challenges for convention advisory mechanisms and offers new opportunities to improve the availability of accurate, objective, reliable, and cost-effective advice. The study explores the implications of this broader scope of analysis for the manner in which the conventions express the role of expert evidence in decision-making and recommends means to improve information availability and impartial advice. It then disaggregates six advisory functions as a basis for recommending different institutional options for advice. The institutional implications are particularly important today as the new global conventions shape the roles of their respective advisory bodies and iron out relationships with existing institutions, and as the international community considers major reforms in the post-war international institutions.

INTERNATIONAL LEGAL MATERIALS

GIVES YOU FACTS AT YOUR FINGERTIPS

- 1 Does Canada's amended Foreign Extraterritorial Measures Act block enforcement of foreign trade laws other than the Helms-Burton Act?
- 2 Are external judgments giving effect to the U.S. Iran and Libya Sanctions Act of 1996 enforceable in the European Union after entry into force of Council Regulation (EC) No 2271/96?
- 3 Will there be oil exploration in the near future around the Falkland Islands?
- 4 What role does the IAEA play in the Southeast Asia Nuclear Weapon-Free-Zone Treaty?
- 5 Does Cuba encourage foreign investment today?
- 6 Can the parties to the African Nuclear Weapon-Free-Zone Treaty continue to manufacture nuclear exploding devices?
- 7 How will the provisions of the Inter-American Convention Against Corruption be implemented?
- 8 Did the U.S. win or lose in the Report of the Appellate Body of the World Trade Organization in the Gasoline Case?
- 9 What did the ICJ decide about the legality of the use of nuclear weapons?

International Legal Materials has the answers to all these questions and more. Have the facts before the secondary sources provide the analysis. Reach an objective understanding of current issues by examining the official texts of treaties, legislation, court decisions, declarations, draft proposals, and memoranda that affect international relations and global interdependence. Background notes and content summaries accompany the documents. Published six times a year and indexed annually.
