

Illustrations

“I mean to . . . drill large round openings . . . in a piece of plate glass, which will . . . have the advantage of perfectly level and smooth surfaces for joining.” (Letter 18)	27
“The wooden uprights are a little elastic and yield somewhat when one adjusts the [microscope] but it is by no means a shakey thing . . .” (Letter 21)	33
“[M]uscular fibres from the turtles [and] frogs heart . . .” (Letter 24)	40
“[A] specimen of pig’s muscle . . . when in focus . . .” (Letter 24)	41
“[On] slightly moving the [pig’s muscle] out of focus the segments of the two fibrils coalesced and the two appeared as . . . a spiral or helix . . .” (Letter 24)	43
“I have an embryo . . .” (Letter 24)	45
“[A] nerve fibre . . .” (Letter 77)	121
“The first trials of my eye . . .” (Letter 97)	140