The Transatlantic Persuasion

THE LIBERAL-DEMOCRATIC
MIND IN THE AGE OF GLADSTONE

by Robert
Kelley

"A genuine work of discovery . . . also scholarly, controversial and highly literate — three qualities which, in conjunction, have an irresistible distinction." — George Dangerfield

"Professor Kelley has added almost an entire new dimension to our understanding of nineteenth-century political history. His research was prodigious and his writing is elegant. I am sure that this will be a noteworthy, perhaps epochal historical work."

A Guide to the Historical and Archaeological Publications of Societies in England and Wales 1901-1933

By E. L. C. MULLINS. This work lists and indexes the titles of books and articles bearing upon the entire range of archaeology and history of the English and Welsh peoples, issued during the years 1901-1933 by more than 400 societies. It contains over 30,000 separate entries, fully indexed, and is complementary to the Royal Historical Society's Writings on British History, 1901-1933. (Athlone Press.) $29.50

Army Royal: Henry VIII's Invasion of France, 1513

By C. G. CRUICKSHANK. The victors of Henry VIII's invasion of France with his "Army Royal" turned out to be Wolsey, who won the Bishopric of Tournai, and the Emperor, who neutralized an enemy town on his borders. Henry emerged as a rank amateur with plenty of beginner's luck. The examination of the campaign makes much use of contemporary evidence. Descriptions of camp life and victualing are included. $6.25

English Historical Documents

VOLUME IV, 1327-1485

Edited by A. R. MYERS, University of Liverpool. This series makes accessible the fundamental sources of English history reading. Volume IV covers the period from the coronation of Edward III to the death of Richard III since the extant documents are best suited to comparison with Tudor or Stuart England. For clarity the political framework is treated chronologically, while the parts on government of the realm, the church and education, and economic and social developments receive analytical treatment. Politics of Colonial Policy

THE BOARD OF TRADE IN COLONIAL ADMINISTRATION, 1696-1720

By I. K. STEELE. University of Western Ontario. At an important time in the development of colonial America, English imperial affairs were entrusted to the new Board of Trade. Politics determined patronage, patronage determined personnel, and personnel affected policy and its chances of implementation. This study explores aspects of imperial defense, administrative reform, trade policy, and other problems of the empire in order to illustrate the changes occurring in the Board and around it. $6.75

Conflict and Consensus in Labour's Foreign Policy 1914 - 1965

MICHAEL R. GORDON

Why has the British Labour Party suffered from fratricidal struggles over foreign policy throughout its history? A historical commitment by Labour to a distinctive, "socialist" outlook in foreign policy is singled out as the key explanatory factor. The basic nature of this foreign policy is examined, in both theoretical and historical perspective, by way of contrast with traditional British foreign policy. It is argued that where socialist and traditional foreign policies diverge most strikingly is in relation to the issue of power politics. Can a policy largely indifferent to existing power factors, bent not on adjusting to the international system but on transforming it along socialist lines, provide a practical guide in foreign affairs? That is the key question that lies behind the repeated conflicts in the party's ranks. About $8.50

STUDIES IN THE HISTORY OF ENGLISH THOUGHT AND LITERATURE FROM BACON TO POPE

RICHARD FOSTER JONES and OTHERS

"Jones's essays, in addition to presenting brilliant accounts of particular works and controversies in the period, reveal a method of literary scholarship which he pioneered and which has now become central in appraising any major seventeenth-century author. . . . The fruitfulness of such a procedure is evident not only in the writings of Jones which were selected for this volume, but also in the work of those other contributors who have profited from his initial insight." — The Personalist. The Complete Poems of John Wilmot, Earl of Rochester edited, with an Introduction, by David M. Vieth

This edition provides, for the first time, reliable uncensored texts of the poems of this witty Restoration courtier, whose satires on contemporary figures and their fashionable society paint an illuminating picture of an important literary period. "This is a first-rate piece of work. There is no doubt that Vieth is a fine scholar and the greatest living authority on Rochester. His book fills a long-felt need." — John Harold Wilson. $10.00

An Essay on Shakespeare's Sonnets

by Stephen Booth

Focusing on the particular pleasure that Shakespeare's sonnets have given generations of the larger reading public, Mr. Booth describes the action of individual sonnets upon the understanding of the reader as he reads. The author demonstrates that while the reader's mind is never at rest as it moves through a series of constantly changing organizations, the firm control exerted by the artificial sonnet pattern enables him to grasp the poem with assurance, thus enriching his comprehension. $6.00

Ben Jonson: The Complete Masques

edited by Stephen Orgel

The Renaissance court masque, traditionally an entertainment of music, dancing, pageantry, and spectacular scenic effects, was transformed by Ben Jonson into a serious mode of literary expression. This modernized version of Jonson's masques is the most carefully edited and annotated text available; it is also the first one-volume edition to be published. $12.50

Tudor Royal Proclamations, Volumes II and III The Later Tudors (1553-1603)

edited by Paul L. Hughes and James F. Larkin, C.S.V.

The national confusion that resulted from the reigns of the early Tudor monarchs, set in the context of England's emergence from isolation and the increased political awareness of her populace, created a unique climate for the reigns of the later Tudors, Mary and Elizabeth. Their proclamations reflect both England's increased communication with the Continent and the newly recognized need for cooperation between the government and the governed. These volumes have been meticulously prepared by the editors of Volume I (The Early Tudors).

British Foreign Aid in the Wars with France, 1793-1815

This book examines the evolution of the British foreign aid program from its beginnings in 1793 to the Battle of Waterloo. The author shows that Britain's subsidy policy, in many ways a prototype of those used during World Wars I and II, was reluctantly undertaken and reached massive proportions only near the end of the struggle. $11.00

JOHN MARSTON OF THE MIDDLE TEMPLE

An Elizabethan Dramatist in His Social Setting

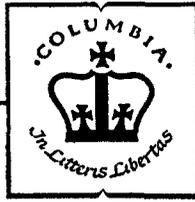

This fresh appraisal offers a variety of new facts about John Marston and his work, including the interaction between him and the atmosphere of the Middle Temple, one of the four legal societies at the Inns of Court where he lived and wrote. The author provides analyses of Marston's poems and such plays as The Dutch Courtesan and The Malcontent. $6.00

LORD HALDANE — Scapegoat for Liberalism

STEPHEN E. KOSS

In May of 1915, H. H. Asquith requested the resignation of his cabinet and announced his intention to reconstruct Britain's wartime government on a coalition basis. In the process, he put an effective end to the party he had led for seven years and that had governed without interruption for ten. The reasons for Asquith's actions have never been fully explained. This study throws new light on them through an examination of the career of the chief scapegoat — Lord Haldane. In his investigation the author provides not only a chapter in political biography, but also a commentary upon Liberalism in decline. The study also provides illuminating material on the role of the popular press in molding British attitudes toward German culture. $8.95

THE JOURNAL OF BRITISH STUDIES
TRINITY COLLEGE
HARTFORD, CONNECTICUT

The Journal of British Studies, founded in 1961, is published at Trinity College under the auspices of the Conference on British Studies. It was the result of the imaginative generosity of a Trinity alumnus, Frederick E. Hasler (Hon. LL.D. 1957) who contributed funds to the College for the specific purpose of establishing a learned periodical in the field of British history. Several Trinity alumni subsequently contributed to the fund and Trinity College now supports the publication of the Journal.

The Conference on British Studies is the official organization in the United States and Canada of scholars working in the field of British history and culture; its status as such is recognized by the American Historical Association of which it is an affiliate. Its nearly eight hundred members are drawn from forty-eight states and five provinces. It convenes twice each year at New York University, its permanent headquarters.

The Conference awards a prize triennially for the best first book by an American or Canadian scholar.

The Conference sponsors a considerable publications program. It publishes the Journal of British Studies at Trinity College; the British Studies Intelligencer, a newsletter, at Kansas State University, Manhattan, Kansas; Studies in British History and Culture, an annual series of monographs, at the University of Bridgeport, Connecticut; Archives in British History and Culture, an annual series devoted to the publication of documents, at West Virginia University, Morgantown; and Current Research in British Studies, a quadrennial survey of research in progress in the United States and Canada, the next edition of which will appear in 1968 at Southern Methodist University. The Conference has begun a new series, to be published by the Cambridge University Press, of biographical and historical studies of men and women who were makers and shapers of the English experience.

In addition to the Conference on British Studies, there are three affiliates: the Pacific Coast Conference on British Studies, the Midwest Conference on British Studies, and the Southern Conference on British Studies. Each of these vital autonomous groups has its own officers, program, and other activities. There are also local groups centered in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Detroit, and Pittsburgh.

The Journal of British Studies appears twice in the academic year, in the autumn and in the spring. The annual subscription is $5.00. Checks for subscriptions and enquiries concerning advertising rates should be directed to the Business Manager, British Studies, Box 1315, Trinity College, Hartford, Connecticut, 06106.

Volume IX, No. 1 will be published in November, 1969.

CONFERENCE ON BRITISH STUDIES PRIZE

The Conference on British Studies will award its fourth triennial prize of three hundred dollars in November, 1969. The prize will be given for the best book published between January 1, 1966 and December 31, 1968, by an American or Canadian scholar. It must be the author's first book. Its subject must lie either within the field of British or Commonwealth History and Culture.

Enquiries and recommendations should be addressed to the Chairman, Professor Arthur B. Ferguson, Duke University, Durham, North Carolina.

The past recipients of the prize are: Philip P. Poirier, Ohio State University, 1960; C. Warren Hollister, University of California, 1963; Melvin Richter, Hunter College, 1966.
