

Sixteenth Century North America
The Land and the People as seen by the Europeans

Carl Ortwin Sauer

'Sauer tops his previous fine efforts—The Early Spanish Main and Northern Mists—with this scholarly and engrossing record of the European exploration of North America during the Sixteenth century. Certain shibboleths, such as those concerning Indian savagery, are shattered, while fresh viewpoints are presented provocatively and persuasively. Contemporary and modern maps aid the reader in tracing the routes travelled by such explorers as Narváez, Cartier, Cabeza de Vaca, and others; and firsthand accounts are quoted frequently.'

Political Representation in England and the Origins of the American Republic

J. R. Pole

'... an extremely important work ... basic to anyone interested in the development of American democracy ... characterized by striking originality.'—Richard Hofstadter

'Rarely, if ever, has there been a more brilliant exploration ... an extraordinarily interesting, beautifully executed and profound book.'

Announcing the First Volume in the Iowa-California Edition of the works of Mark Twain

Roughing It

Mark Twain

edited by Franklin R. Rogers

Despite its commercial success and the importance accorded it by critics and biographers, there has been no annotated scholarly edition of Roughing It with a text clear of publisher's changes and typographical errors. Hence the importance of this edition, which represents the only authentic text to appear since Mark Twain completed the manuscript.

The editor's Introduction traces the background and the history of the composition of Roughing It. His extensive explanatory notes identify persons and places and describe events mentioned in the book. The appendices contain material never before published.

A New Volume of the Mark Twain Papers

Mark Twain's Fables of Man

edited by John S. Tuckey

For many years a large number of philosophical, religious, and historical fantasies concerning the nature and condition of mankind have lain unpublished in the Mark Twain Papers, some because they were unfinished, others because the author, or his publishers, considered them too daring or too indiscreet for public exposure. Thirty-six of them make their first appearance here in definitive texts—a full history of the evolution of the text accompanies each piece.

The American Novel and the Nineteen Twenties

General Editors: MALCOLM BRADBURY and DAVID PALMER

Stratford-Upon-Avon Studies 13

These essays by distinguished historians and critics look afresh at the remarkable group of American novelists which emerged during the 1920s—that period of change, passion and experimentalism beginning after the First World War and reaching its climax in the Great Depression. The great names are of course William Faulkner, Ernest Hemingway, Scott Fitzgerald, John Dos Passos, Nathanael West, Sinclair Lewis and Sherwood Anderson. But this book, while looking at these and other novelists in detail, is also an exercise in cultural studies. It has been assumed that it is important and necessary, in considering these writers whose merits are still the subject of intense discussion and disagreement, to look behind them at the decade of the twenties itself—years that saw the transformation of American culture and the start of a new stylistic era. These essays thus re-examine the complex relationship between literature and culture, and in terms of this re-assess the importance of particular authors, reconsider the success of the American experiment in fiction and re-evaluate the quality and effectiveness of their radicalism and moral commitment.

BRITISH ASSOCIATION FOR AMERICAN STUDIES

This Association was founded in 1955 to promote the study of the United States within the United Kingdom. It welcomes applications for membership from people interested in the history, society, government and politics, economics, geography, literature and thought of the United States. It publishes a Newsletter twice yearly, holds an Annual Conference, and provides other services for its members from time to time. Enquiries concerning current subscription rates and applications for membership should be addressed to the Secretary, Dr Charlotte Erickson, London School of Economics, Houghton Street, Aldwych, London, WC2A 2AE.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

1. All contributions and editorial correspondence should be sent to: The Editor, Journal of American Studies, Department of American Studies, The University, Manchester M13 9PL, England.
2. Articles should generally contain about 5000 words. Longer or shorter articles, or articles in two or more parts, may be accepted by arrangement with the Editor.
3. Submission of an article is taken to imply that it has not previously been published, or is not being considered for publication elsewhere.
4. Contributions should be clearly typed in double spacing, preferably on A4 paper, with a wide left-hand margin. Diagrams and maps may be included by arrangement with the Editor.
5. Footnotes should be used sparingly: in general, to give sources of direct quotations, references to main authorities on disputable questions, and evidence relied on for a new or unusual conclusion. They should be numbered in one sequence throughout the article, and should preferably be typed in double spacing at the end of the article.
6. Contributors should keep one copy of the typescript for correcting proofs.
7. Notes intended for the Editor or printer should be on a separate sheet.
8. First proofs may be read and corrected by contributors provided that they can give the Editor an address through which they can be reached without delay and can guarantee to return the corrected proofs to the Editor, by airmail where necessary, within ten days of receiving them.
9. Correction should be kept to an absolute minimum. It should be confined to errors of the typist or printer unless the Editor authorizes otherwise.
10. Contributors of articles and review articles receive 25 free separates. Extra copies may be ordered according to the scale of charges.
11. Contributors need not be members of the British Association for American Studies. Unsolicited typescripts can only be returned to overseas contributors who send International Reply Coupons (not postage stamps).
12. Contributors of accepted articles will be asked to assign their copyrights, on certain conditions, to Cambridge University Press, to help protect their material, particularly in the U.S.A.
