

Contents

List of Figures	page viii
List of Tables	ix
Acknowledgments	xi
1 Introduction	1
The Literature	6
Theoretical Framework	12
Power Resources Theory	12
Rokkanian Cleavage Theory	15
The Politics of Comprehensive School Reforms: Reflections and Expectations	20
The Argument and Structure of This Book	22
A Note on the Book's History, Methodology, and Case Selection	26
2 Back to the Roots	30
Schooling in Norway up to the 1950s	30
The Formation of the Norwegian State and Education System	30
The School As a Nation-Building Institution	32
Educational Expansion and the First Comprehensive School Reforms	34
The Introduction of the Seven-Year Comprehensive School	38
The Reform Movement of the 1920s and 1930s	39
Warming Up for New Reforms: The 1940s and Early 1950s	42

Schooling in Prussia/North Rhine–Westphalia up to the 1950s	44
Prussian State-Building and the Education System	44
State-Church Conflicts in Prussian Education Politics	47
Educational Expansion: Liberal and Social-Democratic Demands	50
Reform Struggles during the Weimar Republic	54
Nazi Politics of Educational Restriction	56
Restoration or Reform? The Late 1940s and 1950s	57
Comparison: Setting the Scene for the Postwar Reform Period	60
3 Political Playing Fields: Actors' Power Resources and Social Base	64
The Norwegian Playing Field	65
Political Parties	65
Teachers' Organizations	69
Other Actors	76
The German Playing Field	76
Political Parties	76
Teachers' Organizations	80
Other Actors	87
Comparison: Playing Fields in Postwar Education Politics	88
4 The Class Cleavage: Struggles over Comprehensive Schooling	92
The Norwegian Youth School Reform	92
Experiments with the First Youth Schools and Nine-Year Obligatory Schooling	93
Experiments with Reduced Organizational Differentiation	100
The Regularization of the Youth School	104
The Grading Debate	106
The Final Debate on Differentiation	111
Comprehensive School Reforms in North Rhine–Westphalia	116
Early Debates on Comprehensive and Nine-Year Obligatory Schooling	117
The Introduction of the Integrated Comprehensive School	121
Reforms Suggested by the Christian Democratic Union	126
Continued Struggles over the Integrated Comprehensive School	129
The Failed Introduction of the Cooperative School	134

Comparison: The Class Cleavage in Postwar Education Politics	142
5 The Crosscutting Cleavages: Struggles over Religion, Centralization, Language, Anti-communism, and Gender Struggles over Religion	150
The Norwegian Debate about Christian Education and Christian Private Schools	151
The Debate on Denominational Schooling and Private Schools in North Rhine–Westphalia	163
Struggles over Centralization	175
The Centralization Debate in Norway	176
Debates about Rural Schooling and Centralization in North Rhine–Westphalia	184
The Norwegian Language Struggle in Education Politics	193
German Anti-communism in Education Politics	201
Struggles over Gender	213
Norwegian Debates on Gender Roles, Girls' Education, and Homemaking Education	213
Debates on Gender Roles, Girls' Education, and Coeducation in North Rhine–Westphalia	224
Comparison: The Significance of Crosscutting Cleavages	234
6 Conclusion	242
Cleavage Structures and Education Politics in Norway and Germany	242
Implications for Comparative Welfare State and Education Regime Research	247
Open Questions	252
The Politics of Schooling Today: Is the Rokkanian Perspective Still Relevant?	255
Annex	263
Documents Published by the Norwegian Parliament and Its Committees	263
Documents Published by the North Rhine–Westphalia Parliament and Its Committees	265
Manifestos of Norwegian Parties	269
Manifestos of German Parties	271
Expert Interviews: Biographical Introductions	274
References	280
Index	303