
CONTRIBUTORS

Nicholas Bardsley is a senior research fellow at the National Centre for Research Methods, University of Southampton. His interests are in behavioural economics and the philosophy and methodology of the social sciences.

Krister Bykvist is Tutor and Fellow in Philosophy at Jesus College. His field of research is normative ethics. He is currently working on well-being and preference change.

John Davis is Professor of History and Philosophy of Economics at the University of Amsterdam and Professor of Economics at Marquette University. He is author of Keynes's Philosophical Development (Cambridge, 1994) and The Theory of the Individual in Economics (Routledge, 2003), and is co-editor of the Journal of Economic Methodology with Wade Hands.

Keith Dowding is Professor of Political Science at the London School of Economics. He has published Rational Choice and Political Power, Power and co-edited Preferences, Institutions and Rational Choice, The Ethics of Stakeholding and Justice and Democracy as well as numerous articles in the fields of political philosophy, political theory, urban politics, public policy and administration, British politics and is a renowned glaucidater. He is co-editor of the Journal of Theoretical Politics and consulting editor of Basic Income Studies.

D. Wade Hands is Professor of Economics at the University of Puget Sound in Tacoma WA. He has written on a number of topics in the history and philosophy of economics. He is currently coeditor of The Journal of Economic Methodology. He is the author of Reflection Without Rules: Economic Methodology and Contemporary Science Theory, Cambridge University Press, 2001, and one of the editors, along with John Davis and Uskali Mäki, of The Handbook of Economic Methodology, Edward Elgar, 1998. His Agreement on Demand: Consumer Choice Theory in the 20th Century, edited with Philip Mirowski, is forthcoming from Duke University Press.

Sven Ove Hansson is professor and head of the Department of Philosophy and the History of Technology, Royal Institute of Technology, Stockholm.

He is editor-in-chief of Theoria. His books include Setting the Limit. Occupational Health Standards and the Limits of Science (OUP 1998), A Textbook of Belief Dynamics. Theory Change and Database Updating. (Kluwer 1999) and The Structures of Values and Norms (CUP 2001). Homepage: <http://www.infra.kth.se/~soh>.

Adam Oliver is RCUK Senior Academic Fellow in Health Economics and Policy and Deputy Director of LSE Health and Social Care at the London School of Economics. He is Founding Coordinator of the Preference Elicitation Group, and Founding Co-Editor-in-Chief of the journal Health Economics, Policy and Law. Dr Oliver has published widely in the areas of health equity, economic evaluation, risk and uncertainty, and the economics of health care reform.

Ashley Piggins is a Lecturer in Economics at the National University of Ireland, Galway. His research interests are in social choice theory and welfare economics. His email address is ashley.piggins@nuigalway.ie

Martin Sandbu is a lecturer in Business Ethics at the Wharton School of Business in the University of Pennsylvania. His research is on ethics and economics, political philosophy, behavioural economics, and the political economy of development. He was formerly a postdoctoral research fellow in economic development at the Earth Institute of Columbia University in New York. He completed his Ph.D. in Political Economy at Harvard University in 2003 with a dissertation on process-dependent preferences. Mailing address: 650 JMHH, Department of Legal Studies and Business Ethics, Wharton School of Business, 3730 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, PA 19104, USA. E-mail: sandbu@post.harvard.edu.

Sheldon Steed is a PhD candidate at the London School of Economics. He writes on the scope and limits of economic knowledge.

Martin Van Hees is professor of Ethics at the University of Groningen. He is the author of Rights and Decisions, Legal Reductionism and Freedom and many articles on the foundations of liberalism, rational choice, and collective decision making.