SOUTHEAST ASIAN AFFAIRS 1975

The growing importance of Southeast Asia — economically, politically, and strategically — has generated keen interest and the need to be informed of the events and trends which are shaping the region and affecting the world.

Southeast Asian Affairs 1975 offers scholars, researchers, businessmen, and policy-makers — as well as the discerning general reader — the wealth of information and the perspectives they seek.

In clear and penetrating studies, Southeast Asian Affairs 1975 analyses such topics of regional concern as Stagflation and the Diplomatic Emergence of China and its Implications for the Region; examines the Security Situation in Peninsular Malaysia and the Position of Muslim Minorities in the Philippines and Thailand; discusses the Rundown of Australian and British Forces and the Wider Question of Stability and Security in the Region; and considers the Possible Impact and Implications of Japan's Recent Anti-Foreign Trend. In addition to these, specific issues on a country by country basis are given.

SOUTHEAST ASIAN AFFAIRS 1975

- * The only publication of its kind wholly devoted to Southeast Asia.
- * Published under the auspices of the Institute of Southeast Asian Studies — a regional research centre for scholars and other specialists concerned with modern Southeast Asia.
- * Discussion of issues and in-depth analysis of topics are from the vantage point of the area.
- * Though scholarly in approach, the Annual avoids being too academic or forbidding in terms of style and citation.
- * Stimulating and authoritative, providing an up-to-date account of significant political, economic, and social developments and trends in the region — factors essential to understanding conditions and problems today and helping anticipate tomorrow.
- * An indispensable source material and reference guide.

are all faculty members of Kyoto University, and belong to The Center for Southeast Asian Studies based at this university.

SHINICHI ICHIMURA is Professor of Economics and Director of The Center for Southeast Asian Studies. He is a graduate of Kyoto University and has a Ph.D from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He has published in Japanese, The Structure of the Japanese Economy (Tokyo, 1958) and Economic Power on Trial (Tokyo, 1970). His research interest is economic development and planning.

YONEO ISHII is Professor of Southeast Asian History. His major work in Japanese is A Political Sociology of Theravada Buddhism in Thailand (Tokyo, 1975). He compiled in conjunction with two other Japanese scholars, A Glossorial Index of the Sukhothai Inscriptions (Kyoto, 1972). His research interest is the comparative study of Theravada Buddhism in Southeast Asia. He has been on study leave, recently, at the School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London.

KOICHI MIZUNO is Professor of Anthropology. He obtained his Ph.D at Kyoto University. He has an article in Asian Survey Vol. 8, No. 10 (1968) and has contributed to J. Fisher (ed.) Foreign Values and Southeast Asian Scholarship. He is presently studying the impact of industrialization on rural communities in Southeast Asia.

YOSHIHIRO TSUBOUCHI is also Associate Professor of Anthropology with a Ph.D conferred by Kyoto University. He has two published studies in Japanese, Divorce — A Cross-Cultural Study of Marital Stability (Tokyo, 1970) and (as co-author) A Study of Malay Peasant Villages (Tokyo, 1975). His current work is on urban life in Indonesia.

MITSUO EZAKI, a Research Associate, is an economist. He holds a Ph.D from Harvard University. He and a co-author, D. W. Jorgenson, wrote a section of a book Economic Growth, Ohkawa and Hayami (eds.) (Japan Economic Research Center, Tokyo, 1973). His field is econometrics and economic development.

KENJI TSUCHIYA is a Research Associate. After obtaining an M.A. degree at Tokyo University in 1968, he went to Gadjah Mada University and studied there till 1970. He has an article in Pusara Vol. 40, No. 7 (1970), Yogyakarta, and another in Southeast Asian Studies Vol. 9, No. 1, Kyoto University. He is presently doing research on Indonesian political history before independence.

NARIFUMI MAEDA, Associate Professor in Anthropology, has a Ph.D from the University of Chicago. He is the co-author of a book in Japanese, A Study of Malay Peasant Villages (Tokyo, 1975). He is interested in symbology, and is engaged in a cultural-anthropological study of symbolism among the Buginese in Indonesia.

YOSHIKAZU TAKAYA is Professor of Geography. He obtained his Ph.D at Kyoto University. He has a chapter to his credit, entitled "Physiographic Model of Riceland in the Chao Phraya Basin", in Shinichi Ichimura (ed.), The Nature, Society and Economy of Southeast Asia (Tokyo, 1974). He has also published numerous articles on the geomorphology of Southeast Asian countries, particularly in connection with rice-growing and irrigation.
