

EDITORIAL NOTE

THE joint Research Committee of the Institute and the Student's Society has encouraged the production of Expository Articles designed to introduce the student to some of the more interesting and useful techniques available to our profession. The editors are pleased to give publicity to these articles in the journal where it is felt that they may stimulate members to explore the subjects in greater depth. A selection of these articles appears in the following pages.