Old Madam Yin

A Memoir of Peking Life

Ida Pruitt. By the author of the classic A Daughter of Han, this is an affectionate, revealing portrait of an aged, wealthy widow and her family in the Peking of the 1920's and early 1930's. Through the daily life and memories of Lao Tai-tai, it gives an intimate glimpse into a centuries-old way of life that was fast coming to an end. We explore the inner workings of an upper-class urban family: the relations between husbands and wives and between wives and concubines, the interactions among brothers, the role of women in such a family. We learn how houses, gardens, and courtyards are constructed according to precise rules. We are shown the enormous importance to the Chinese of protocol, etiquette, and reciprocal obligation. Above all, the memoir captures the essence of pre-war Chinese cultural and social values. $8.95

Scarcity and Survival in Central America

Ecological Origins of the Soccer War

William H. Durham. Looking at both population and land tenure dynamics in their historical context, this study challenges the view that the 1969 conflict between El Salvador and Honduras was primarily a response to population pressure. The author demonstrates that land scarcity, a principal cause of the war, was largely a product of the concentration of land holdings. The analysis focuses on the emigration of 300,000 Salvadoreans to Honduras in the years before the war, inquiring into the reasons for the emigration, its impact on local agricultural economies, and its relation to the conflict. In addition to its value as a case study in human ecology, this book gives a clear account of the nature and origins of ecological pressures in rural Central America. Illustrated. $14.50

Special Advisory Editor:

ROBERT MERTON,
New York.

The central concern of Theory and Society is social theory developed by rigorous scholarship and research. In addition, attention is directed toward two subsidiary concerns, (1) the interface between theory and politics and (2) cultural criticism. The journal has recently broadened its focus to include more work centered on an historically informed understanding of everyday life. Theory and Society is of particular interest to, and a voice for, those new types of social scientists who are moving beyond sterile specializations and narrow "professionalism" toward wider syntheses.

Some recent articles:

Media Sociology (Todd Gitlin). The New Class Project (Alvin W. Gouldner). Besieging Lasch (Adrienne Harris and Edward Shorter). The Origins of English Individualism (Alan Macfarlane). Velikovsky (Robert McAulay). State and Revolution (Theda Skocpol). Analyzing the Welfare State (Alan Wolfe). Problems of Social Class under Socialism (Sharon Zukin).

MILITARY AFFAIRS, the quarterly journal of the American Military Institute, has been published since 1937. In the past it concentrated upon American history, but during the last few years its subject matter has been expanded into many different fields of military history. In the fall of 1968, publication was assumed by Kansas State University under a new mandate. The journal now carries news of academic courses, museum exhibits, and other items of interest, as well as the traditional articles, book reviews, and bibliography of current literature. Published in February, April, October and December.

Annual memberships in the American Military Institute (including subscription to MILITARY AFFAIRS):

Comparative Studies in Society and History is a forum for presentation and discussion of new research into problems of change and stability that recur in human societies through time or in the contemporary world. It sets up a working alliance between specialists in all branches of the social sciences and humanities. Debate and review articles bring the general reader in touch with current findings and issues.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Contributions may be descriptive, analytical or theoretical. Any article not in itself comparative may be accepted if it lends itself to comment that will place it in comparative perspective. Correspondence with the editors prior to the submission of articles will help to enable them to obtain such comment or a companion study. Emphasis in comparative studies may be either on similarities or, if these are significant enough and call for some recasting of generalisations, on differences. All contributions and editorial correspondence should be sent to the Editors, Comparative Studies in Society and History, Department of History, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48109.

Two copies of each contribution, preferably accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope, should be submitted. Both text and footnotes should be clearly typed with double spacing and wide margins; footnotes should appear on separate pages at the end of the article. Illustrations may be included by arrangement with the editors.

Contributors will receive 50 offprints. Any additional offprints must be ordered on receipt of the first proof.

Claims for missing issues will be considered only if made immediately upon receipt of the subsequent issue.
