

OTHER ACTIVITIES

For the eighteenth consecutive year, the Survey Research Center of the University of Michigan will hold a summer institute in survey research techniques. The institute is designed to meet some of the education and training needs of persons engaged in business and governmental research and other statistical work, graduate students and university instructors interested in quantitative research in the social sciences.

The 1965 institute will be presented in two four-week sessions, the first from June 28 to July 24, and the second from July 26 to August 21. They may be taken independently or successively. For further information write to: Survey Research Center, The University of Michigan, P. O. Box 1248, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48106.

The Comparative Administration Group of the American Society for Public Administration has established a national committee on comparative urban studies. The committee is planning a program of meetings and conferences, a summer research seminar, and the distribution of a newsletter. The executive committee of the new group consists of Victor Jones, University of California (chairman); Fred Cleaveland, University of North Carolina; William Gore, University of Indiana; Wallace Sayre, Columbia University; Frank Sherwood, U. S. C.; and Frank Smallwood, Dartmouth.

A Midwest Universities Consortium for International Activities, Inc. was organized in 1964 by the Universities of Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana and Michigan State University. The purpose of the new organization is to enable the institutions to render more effective technical aid abroad and to gain from their overseas operations the maximum of academic benefit on their respective campuses. Of the eight members of the board of directors of the corporation four are political scientists: Edward H. Buehrig, Indiana University; Leon Epstein, University of Wisconsin; Ralph Smuckler, Michigan State University; and Royden Dangerfield, University of Illinois.

In celebration of its fiftieth anniversary, the department of government at Indiana University held a series of six lectures, November 5-7. The lectures, which will be published, were as follows: "The Uses of Theory in the Study of Politics," Anatol Rapoport; "The Representative Function in Western Systems," David B. Truman, Columbia University; "Political Parties in Western Democratic Systems," Leon D. Epstein, University of Wisconsin; "The Making of Foreign Policy in the United States," Charles Burton Marshall, Washington Center for Foreign Policy Research;

"Problems in the Study of Local Politics," James Q. Wilson, Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Harvard University, and "Approaches to the Understanding of International Politics," Quiney Wright, University of Virginia.

The Ford Foundation has announced a renewal grant of $250,000 for five years to continue support of the program of the Comparative Administration Group of the American Society for Public Administration. Fred W. Riggs, Indiana University, will continue to serve as chairman of the CAG, with the support of an executive committee containing the following members: Fred Cleaveland, North Carolina; Ferrel Heady, Michigan; John Montgomery, Harvard; Clarence Thurber, Penn. State; Dwight Waldo, California; Edward Weidner, East-West Center, Hawaii; and Don Bowen, ASPA executive director. The CAG will conduct summer seminars in 1965 at Pittsburgh, under the direction of James Heaphey, and at California, with Dwight Waldo as director. A workshop for career development training of overseas program officers will be conducted at Pittsburgh in conjunction with the CAG seminar, under the direction of Edgar Shor, chairman of the political science department at Colgate University. The themes of the Pittsburgh and California seminars will be the spatial and temporal aspects of development administration, respectively.

The Trustees of the University of Pennsylvania have announced that three awards, each of $5,000, may be made for distinguished work in the humanities and the social sciences, to appear as succeeding volumes in the Haney Foundation Series. The first volume has just been published.

Statements of interest, or inquiries, should be addressed to Mr. Bernard J. Ford, Secretary, Haney Foundation Series Committee, Charles Patterson Van Pelt Library, University of Pennsylvania, 3420 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19104. The deadline of the submission of manuscripts is August 1, 1965.

The Conference on Communist Studies, an autonomous unit of the American Political Science Association, recently completed arrangements to include China and other Communist nations in Asia in its activities. Established in 1958, the Conference until now dealt with Soviet affairs and Eastern Europe. The change in scope is reflected by a modification in the name (formerly the Conference on Soviet and Communist Studies) and the election of a specialist on China, A. Doak Barnett of Columbia University, as Conference chairman for 1965-66. Conference membership henceforth will not require annual dues and will consist of all individuals who are identified as specialists in the politics of Communist nations by the appropriate organizations, e.g., the American Political Science Association, the Association for Asian Studies, and the American Association for the Advancement of Slavic Studies.

The activities of the Conference on Communist Studies center on the annual meeting of the American Political Science Association. The Conference organizes the Comparative Politics panels on Communist nations, and sponsors a luncheon with a guest speaker and election of officers.

George Fischer, Cornell University, is Conference chairman for 1964-65; A. Doak Barnett, Columbia University, is vice-chairman; and Allen B. Ballard, Jr., City College of New York, is secretary-treasurer.

The Institute of Advanced Projects of the East-West Center at the University of Hawaii sponsored a conference during 1964 on "Communications and Innovation in Development Policy." Papers emphasized the experience of mainland China, India and the Philippines. The major papers are now being edited for publication as a single volume by Wilbur Schramm, Stanford University, and Daniel Lerner, MIT, co-chairman of the conference. Other APSA members who participated were Lucian Pye, MIT; Lawrence Fuchs, Brandeis University; and V. K. N. Menon of India.

A month-long institute on Comparative Communist Systems and Ideology, jointly sponsored by the School of Education and the Oregon State Board of Education was held on the campus of the University of Oregon during 1964. Joseph Fiszman, department of political science at the University of Oregon, served as director.

The eighth annual institute on United States foreign policy was held at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, March 21, 1964, sponsored by the Department of State in collaboration with various agencies in Milwaukee. It was the first such regional conference in Wisconsin under State Department auspices. Speakers included Mrs. Kate Louchheim, Robert Manning, Richard Davis, Walt W. Rostow, Marshall Green, and Ben S. Stephansky, all of the State Department.

The fifth annual Governor's conference on the United Nations was held at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, May 2, 1964, sponsored by the Wisconsin Governor's Committee on the U. N. and the university's Institute for World Affairs Education. The U.S.S.R. ambassador to the U.N., Nicolai Federenko; Sidney Yates of the United States delegation; Zenon Rossides, Cyprus ambassador to the U. N.; and José Rolz-Bennett of the U. N. Secretariat participated in the conference.

The University of Denver has established a graduate school of international studies. It will engage in programs which encourage research and cooperative efforts in international relations in the Rocky Mountain-Great Plains region.

The American Historical Association, at its annual convention in Washington, D.C., December 29, 1964, awarded its Watumull Prize, $500, for a work on the history of India, jointly to two political scientists: to Charles Drekmeier, associate professor at Stanford University, for his Kingship and Community in Early India (Stanford University Press), and to Charles Heimsath, associate professor of South Asian studies, The American University, for his Indian Nationalism and Social Reform (Princeton University Press).

Ten scholars met at the Rockefeller Foundation's Villa Serbelloni at Bellagio, Italy, in September, 1964, to plan a series of volumes on the smaller European democracies. The editors of this series, financed by a grant from the Ford Foundation, are Hans Daalder, University of Leiden, Netherlands; Robert Dahl, Yale University; Val R. Lorwin, University of Oregon; and Stein Rokkan, Christian Michelsen Institute, Bergen, Norway. The discussions at Bellagio concerned the "common core" elements of all these volumes, which would deal with such essentially durable features of each system as the qualities of the citizenry, their loyalties, apathies, and alienations, the qualities of the elites, the role of consensus and conflict in historical changes, and the direction of long-run changes.

HENRY J. ABRAHAM, University of Pennsylvania, participated in the sixth World Congress of the International Political Science Association in Geneva in September, 1964.

CHARLES BACKSTROM, University of Minnesota, directed a state-wide faculty workshop in December on the 1964 election. The workshop was a project of the Minnesota Council for Education.

JAMES D. BARBER, Yale University, has a junior faculty fellowship and is spending the year at the Brookings Institution.

ERNEST R. BARTLEY, University of Florida, has been elected to full membership in the American Institute of Planners.

THAD BEYLE is on a year's leave of absence from Denison University on an NCEP fellowship. He is serving as an assistant to the Governor of North Carolina.

HUGH A. BONE has been appointed by Governor Albert D. Rosellini to be chairman of the Washington State Commission on Registration and Voting Participation.

DAVID P. CALLEO, Yale University, is on research leave in France for 1964-65.

HAROLD W. CHASE has returned to the University of Minnesota after a two-year absence during which he served as visiting professor at Columbia University (1963-64) and engaged in research at the Brookings Institution during 1962-63.

FREDERICK N. CLEAVELAND, University of North Carolina, has been elected President of the Southern Political Science Association for 1964-65.

ORVILLE COPE, University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee, spent the 1964 summer doing research in Chile.

JAMES T. CROWN, New York University, visited the University of Poland in December, 1964, to make arrangements for a seminar in Warsaw for American graduate students to be held in the summer of 1965.

JAMES C. DAVIES, University of Oregon, spent the spring term of 1964 in Brazil.

PAUL DOLAN, University of Delaware, will be on sabbatical leave during the spring semester, 1965.

JEDON EMENHISER, Utah State University, is a Fulbright professor at the University of Saigon in South Vietnam during 1964-65.

DAVID FARRELLY, UCLA, continues as director of the University of California's Education Abroad program in Padua, Italy, for 1964-65.

JAMES W. FESLER, Yale University, is engaged in European research during the current academic year.

RUSSELL H. FIFIELD, University of Michigan, has been appointed Secretary General of the XXVII International Congress of Orientalists to be held in August, 1967.

EDWARD B. GLICK has resigned from the System Development Corporation to become senior staff political scientist with the Washington branch of the Bendix Corporation's Arms Control Projects Office.

LEE S. GREENE, University of Tennessee, has been named Distinguished Service professor at that institution.

ARTHUR M. HANHARDT, JR., University of Oregon, was in Germany in July, 1964, as a guest of the cultural exchange division of the Federal Republic of Germany.

MURRAY C. HAVENS, University of Texas, has been named Secretary of the Southern Political Science Association for 1964-65.

FERREL HEADY has received a faculty distinguished achievement award at the University of Michigan. He is a senior specialist in residence at the Institute of Advanced Projects, East-West Center, University of Hawaii, January to July, 1965.

JAMES JARVIS has returned to Wayne State University from San Jose State College where he was visiting professor of public administration for the past two years.

CONRAD JOYNER, University of Arizona, has been appointed co-ordinator of the university's Peace Corp training center.

ROY E. JUMPER has resigned from Wake Forest College to continue as consultant to the Ford Foundation in Lebanon.

GLADYS KAMMERER has received a citation for distinguished teaching and research at the University of Florida.

RAVI KAPIL has returned to the University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee following a year of research in Somalia.

KEMAL KARPAT, New York University, addressed the Conference on Democracy in Asia held in Turkey in November, 1964.

MALCOLM KERR is on leave from UCLA for the period 1964-66. During 1964-65 he is a fellow at the American Research Center in Egypt. He will be a visiting associate professor at the American University of Beirut during 1965-66.

JOHN H. KESSEL returned in January to the University of Washington from a year's leave of absence during which he served as an NCEP fellow with the Republican National Committee.

KENNETH KOFMEHL, Purdue University, has been appointed consultant to the Committee on Science and Public Policy of the National Academy of Sciences, Washington, D. C.

NORMAN KOGAN, University of Connecticut, is on leave during 1964-65 and is residing in Rome.

STUART A. MACCORKLE, director of the Institute of Public Affairs at the University of Texas, received an honorary doctor of laws degree from Washington and Lee University in June, 1964.

HENRY MASON, Tulane University, will be a Fulbright professor at the Otto Suhr Institut of Free Berlin during the summer session of 1965.

ROGER D. MASTER, Yale University, is spending 1964-65 in France under a junior faculty fellowship.

DOUGLAS MENDEL, JR., University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee, has been appointed Far Eastern representative of the Roper Public Opinion Research Center at Williams College.

STEPHEN R. MITCHELL, Washington State University, was an NCEP fellow at the Democratic national convention in Atlantic City.

PHILLIP MONYPENNEY, University of Illinois, is serving a two-year appointment as member of the Illinois Commission on the problem of cities, villages and towns.

JAMES N. MURRAY, JR., State University of Iowa, is teaching at the University of Istanbul on a Fulbright award.

JOHN NORMAN, Fairfield University, Connecticut, was one of the two bi-partisan plaintiffs in Buttersworth v. Dempsey. The case, involving reapportionment and redistricting of the legislative districts of Connecticut, was upheld by the U. S. Supreme Court.

CHARLES B. NEFF is on leave from the University of Hawaii to direct the Peace Corps operation in Bogotá, Colombia.

THOMAS PAGE, University of Illinois, is serving as secretary to the personnel advisory board of the Department of Personnel in Illinois state government.

BELDEN PAULSON has returned to the University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee from research in southern Italy.

RALPH MIWA, on leave from the University of Hawaii, has been promoted to the position of administrative assistant to Senator Daniel Inouye of Hawaii.

CARL H. LANDÉ, Yale University, is conducting research in the Philippine Islands during the current academic year.

WALTER LAVES, University of Indiana, was appointed by President Johnson to serve as an alternate delegate to the 13th General Conference of UNESCO held in Paris October 18-November 19, 1964.

WERNER LEVI, University of Hawaii, is in India on a grant from the American Institute of Indian affairs.

WILLIAM S. LIVINGSTON, University of Texas, has been named book review editor of the Journal of Politics.

ROBERT E. LORISH, Ohio Wesleyan University, is on leave during 1964-65 to serve as an administrative intern in the office of the provost of Michigan State University.

NORMAN PALMER, University of Pennsylvania, presented a paper at the Sixth World Congress of the International Political Science Association in Geneva in September, 1964.

R. N. ROSECRANCE, UCLA, was a visiting fellow in international relations at the Australian National University in Canberra during the spring term, 1964. He is currently a Rockefeller research fellow in the department of war studies, Kings College, University of London.

JOSEPH S. ROUCEK, University of Bridgeport, has been elected president of the Honorary Social Science Society. He has also been appointed to the editorial boards of the Revista de Ciencias Sociales (Spain) and Sociologia Internationalis (Berlin).

STUART A. SCHIENGOLD is on leave from the University of California at Davis and is spending the year at Harvard's Center of International Affairs as a research associate.

FRED SONDERMAN, professor of political science and associate dean at Colorado College, was invited by the British Foreign Office to participate in a conference in February, 1965. The conference dealt with the economic, political and defense problems of the Atlantic Community.

ROBERT S. STAUFFER has returned to the University of Hawaii from a year spent at the University of the Philippines under a Fulbright award.

JAMES A. STEINTRAGER has been awarded a research grant by the University of Texas.

WILLIAM L. STRAUSS has been granted a three-year leave by the Arizona State College to become the executive director of the United States Education Commission in Korea.

OSCAR SVARLEIN, University of Florida, has been elected to a two-year term on the executive council of the American Society for International Law.

JOHN E. TURNER AND ROBERT HOLT, University of Minnesota, did field research in England prior to the 1964 British elections.

PEDRO C. M. TEICHERT has returned to the University of Mississippi from a four-month stay at the University of Buenos Aires, Argentina, where he was a visiting professor under a Fulbright-Hayes grant.

PETER A. TOMA, University of Arizona, is participating in an inter-university consortium of social scientists who are engaged in research mapping for AID's Food for Peace Program.

ROCCO J. TRESOLINI, chairman, department of government, Lehigh University, was one of two recipients of the R. R. and E. C. Hillman award. The award is given annually by the university to faculty members who have contributed most toward the advancement of the interest of the university.

RICHARD W. VAN WAGENEN has returned to his post as dean of the Graduate School at American University after two years with the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development.

ELLIS WALDRON, Montana State University, studied at Harvard Law School during 1963-64 under a Carnegie Foundation fellowship.

ROBERT WARREN has returned to the University of Washington from a year spent with Resources for the Future, Inc., in Washington, D. C.

HENRY WELLS, University of Pennsylvania, read a paper at the Sixth World Congress of the International Political Science Association in Geneva.

T. P. WRIGHT, JR., has returned to Bates College after a year's absence spent in India under a Fulbright award.

STAFF CHANGES

NEW APPOINTMENTS

CHARLES F. ANDRAIN, assistant professor, San Diego State College

ANDREW BAGGS, instructor, University of Florida

HOWARD BALL, instructor, Rutgers—the State University

THEODORE BECKER, University of Hawaii

DENNIS E. BELLER, instructor, Miami University (Ohio)

WILLIAM J. BLOUGH, University of Houston

LEROY L. BRADWISH, assistant professor, Drake University

DOYLE BUCKWALTER, instructor, Brigham Young University

RONALD F. BUNN, associate professor, Louisiana State University

RONALD H. CHILCOTE, assistant professor, University of California at Riverside

WILLIAM COPLIN, assistant professor, Wayne State University

EDMOND COSTANTINI, lecturer, University of California at Davis

PHILLIP COULTER, instructor, University of Massachusetts

LAWRENCE J. DENARDIS, assistant professor, Albertus Magnus College

JOEL R. DICKERSON, instructor, Millikin University

JOHN P. EAST, assistant professor, E. Carolina College

JAMES F. ENGEL, assistant professor, New Mexico State University

LEE W. FARNSWORTH, assistant professor, Brigham Young University

JACK D. FLEER, assistant professor, Wake Forest College

J. LEIPER FREEMAN, professor, Vanderbilt University

ROBERT FRIED, assistant professor, University of California at Los Angeles

STERLING HALE FULLER, professor and chairman, University of Missouri at Kansas City, effective September, 1964

DOUGLAS S. GATLIN, assistant professor, Florida Atlantic University

WILLIAM GERLACH, associate professor, Eastern Kentucky State College

DONALD GERTH, professor, Chico State College

LOUIS GOLD, instructor, Oberlin College

JOHN GUNNELL, assistant professor, Graduate School of Public Affairs, the State University of New York at Albany

MICHAEL HAAS, University of Hawaii

HARLAN HAHN, assistant professor of political science and research associate in the School of Health, University of Michigan

FRED HANGA, JR., associate professor, Gradu-