A History of Economic Thought

The LSE Lectures

Lionel Robbins

Edited by Steven G. Medema and Warren J. Samuels

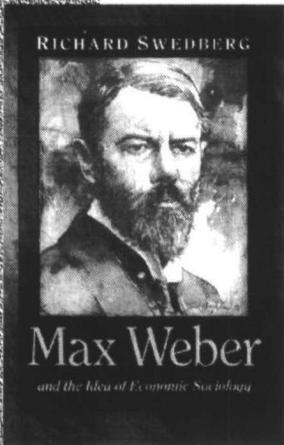

With a foreword by William J. Baumol

Lionel Robbins's famous lectures on the history of economic thought comprise one of the greatest accounts since World War II of the evolution of economic ideas. This volume makes those lectures widely available for the first time.

Lord Robbins (1898–1984) was a remarkably accomplished thinker, writer, and public figure. These lectures, delivered at the London School of Economics between 1979 and 1981, display his mastery of the intellectual history of economics, his infectious enthusiasm for the subject, his eloquence, and his incisive wit.

“Anyone reading these lectures can, and surely will, admire their style, the range of material they cover, the dazzling intellectual brilliance, and the stimulation they provide.”
—From the foreword by William J. Baumol

Max Weber and the Idea of Economic Sociology

Richard Swedberg

While most people are familiar with The Protestant Ethic and the Spirit of Capitalism, few know that during the last decade of his life Max Weber also tried to develop a new way of analyzing economic phenomena, which he termed “economic sociology.” Indeed, this effort occupies the central place in Weber's thought during the years just before his death. Richard Swedberg here offers a critical presentation and the first major study of this fascinating part of Weber's work.

“This book is unequivocally first-rate. Swedberg writes clearly, comprehensively, in a nuanced style, and with tremendous erudition.”—Mark Perlman

International Journal of Logistics: research and applications

EDITOR

Peter Hines, University of Wales, Cardiff, UK

Supported by an International Editorial Board

International Journal of Logistics: research and applications will publish original and challenging work that has a clear applicability to the business world. As a result the journal concentrates on articles of an academic journal standard but aimed at the practitioner as much as the academic. The term 'logistics' is taken in its broadest context with articles crossing the various traditional functional boundaries of the complete supply-chain.

Articles are drawn from, but not restricted to, the logistics sub-process areas of distribution (including third-party distribution); manufacturing, marketing, material management, purchasing, stock management, transport, warehousing; the logistics and supply-chain process itself; specific areas within logistics such as new technology, systems and methods; and people related issues in the supply chain.

Notes for Contributors

1. Addresses for editorial correspondence are given on the inside front cover.
2. The complete style guide is available from the editor or by accessing www.iup.edu/ec/ If you have a recent copy of JHET, you can use it to resolve questions not answered here or in that guide.
3. The final version should be in Word or WordPerfect, or in an ASCII text readable by WordPerfect. Please send a 3.5" disk and one hard copy.
4. All copy must be double-spaced, including displayed (indented) quotations, footnotes, and the references. Do not justify the right margin.
5. The paper should begin with the title, centered. Under that the word BY should appear, and under that your name, centered. Subsection titles are in capitals and are flush left. Paragraphs are indented three spaces. The first word begins on the fourth space.
6. Footnote numbers should be indicated by superscripts in the text. All footnotes should be collected together and put, double-spaced, beginning with a new page, at the end of the paper.
7. Citations in the text must be in round parentheses, with a comma between the author's name and the year. The page numbers are preceded by p., or pp. if multiple pages are cited.
8. Symbolic letters are italicized, whether in an equation or in the text. Numbers in equations and in symbolic terms in the text are not italicized, even if they are subscripts or superscripts.
9. Unless you do not have an italic font, do not use underlines. Use italic type. For example, all book titles in the references should be in italics.
10. The first time a person's last name appears (except in a citation), his or her first name and middle initial should also be given or the initials of the given names, no matter how well-known the person may be.
11. The references, double-spaced, should appear immediately after the end of the text. Examples:
