

Making All the Difference

Inclusion, Exclusion, and American Law

By MARTHA MINOW.

"A pioneering study of the legal construction and reconstruction of stigma in American public life. Making All the Difference offers an imaginative reflection on how to institute a legal order that would take seriously the ideal of an inclusive political community. At the same time, it provides a chilling picture of the power of our inherited patterns of thought and practice to exclude and marginalize diverse Americans, including racial, religious, ethnic, and sexual minorities, women, children, and the disabled."

—Hendrik Hartog, University of Wisconsin Law School.

"Minow shows clearly and convincingly how differences—whether of race, sex, ability, religion or ethnicity—are transformed when they are not viewed solely from the perspective of the dominant group. This sensitive and carefully nuanced argument about how the law should take account of difference is an important contribution to legal theory."—Susan Moller Okin, Brandeis University.

Minow confronts a variety of dilemmas of difference resulting from contradictory legal strategies—strategies that attempt to correct inequalities by sometimes recognizing and sometimes ignoring differences—and she argues, in effect, for a reconstructed jurisprudence based on the ability to recognize and work with perceptible forms of difference.

Punishment and Modern Society

A Study in Social Theory

David Garland

Garland's pathbreaking book explores all aspects of the penal system, reopening basic questions about the social foundations of punishment in order to determine its functions and effects.

"This is a stunning book! It will establish its author as one of the most important social theorists on either side of the Atlantic."—James B. Jacobs, Director of the Center for Research in Crime and Justice

Cloth $29.95 320 pages

Screwing the System and Making It Work

Juvenile Justice in the No-Fault Society

Mark D. Jacobs

"This is one of the most important works on juvenile justice in the last twenty years. Jacobs provides an enormous amount of empirical detail while creating a context that makes that description meaningful. He shows that there is more at stake than simply having all actors agree to 'help' the child; what constitutes legitimate help differs from agency to agency and creates conflicts between them. Jacobs accomplishes what is rare in ethnographic work: he takes micro-level data and makes clear its macro-level significance."—Charles Bosk, University of Pennsylvania

A Crime of Self-Defense

Bernhard Goetz and the Law on Trial

George P. Fletcher

"Professor Fletcher's fascinating study of one of the century's most captivating cases demonstrates how the Goetz litigation captures the law's never-ending quest to civilize itself, to strike a proper balance between self-help and vigilantism, between justice and emotion, and the law as rules and the jury as part of a process for ameliorating these rules."—Alan M. Dershowitz, Harvard Law School

A Study in Reputation

Richard A. Posner

What makes a great judge? Why do some reputations endure, while others crumble? How can we know whether a reputation is fairly deserved? Eminent jurist and scholar Richard A. Posner offers both a revealing portrait of one of the most influential legal minds of our century and a model for a new kind of study—a balanced, objective, critical assessment of a judicial career.
