Studies in Second Language Acquisition is devoted to problems and issues in Second Language Acquisition and Foreign Language Learning, defined broadly to include problems of language contact (interference, transfer, pidginization). While preference will be given to theoretically oriented papers and reports of empirical research, discussions of pedagogical issues will be considered if they refer to major theoretical issues in the field.

Studies in Second Language Acquisition is a refereed publication. Submitted material is evaluated by at least 2 readers selected from among the members of the Editorial Board and other experts in the field. The names of all readers consulted will be listed in the final issue of each yearly volume.

Material submitted for consideration by the journal should be addressed to: Albert Valdman, Editor, Studies in Second Language Acquisition, Ballantine Hall 602, Indiana University, Bloomington, IN 47405. Material should be submitted in 3 copies, which are non-returnable. Manuscripts should be typed, double-spaced with a maximum of 30 pages, not including notes and references. References to cited sources should be incorporated within the text. Material cited at length in the text should be double-spaced and indented. Notes and references should follow the body of the text and should be double-spaced. In all other respects submissions should follow the typographical style found in Language. Material will be accepted written in English, French, German and Spanish. All submissions should be accompanied by a short English abstract, no more than 200 words in length. Submissions should include the author's name, affiliation, and an address where an acknowledgement of receipt may be sent.

The Editor will assume that all materials submitted for consideration have not previously been published, and are not being considered by another publication. Articles published, including their copyright, become the property of Studies in Second Language Acquisitions. Five copies of the issue in which an article appears will be provided to authors free of charge.
