This version of the article was published online due to an error. This is an earlier version of the work and does not contain substantial revisions made by the authors in response to the peer review process. The revised version of the paper has now published online under the updated title: Configuring Possibilities For People Living with Dementia at Home: Day Programs as "Technologies in Practice". https://doi.org/10.1017/S0144686X24000564

The authors, the journal's editors and Cambridge University Press apologise for any confusion this may have caused and retract the preliminary version of the article.
