

Editors' Notes

Students of both economic history and the history of technology will be happy to learn of the appearance of a new French periodical, the Revue d'histoire de la sidérurgie, published under the sponsorship of the Centre de Recherches de l'Histoire de la Sidérurgie at Nancy. The editor of the Revue is our indefatigable friend Bertrand Gille, known to readers of this JOURNAL for his works on the history of French metallurgy in the eighteenth century and of credit and banking in the first half of the nineteenth century. The first number of the Revue includes articles on pre-historic, medieval, and eighteenth-century iron manufacture by A. France-Lanord, Geneviève Gille, and Pierre Léon; also an essay on François Bonhommé, an artist of the iron industry of the nineteenth century, by B. Gerard. Those interested in subscribing should write to the Revue at the Hotel de Ville, Nancy. The subscription price is 23 N.F.

The Food Research Institute of Stanford University has begun publication of Food Research Institute Studies which will contain articles by staff members reflecting their current research interests. It will be published three times a year, in February, May, and September.
