

A NEW TOPOGRAPHICAL DICTIONARY OF ANCIENT ROME

L. Richardson, jr

The first such dictionary since that of Platner and Ashby in 1929, A New Topographical Dictionary of Ancient Rome defines and describes the known buildings and monuments, as well as the geographical and topographical features, of ancient Rome. It provides a concise history of each, with measurements, dates, and citations of significant ancient and modern sources. This indispensable reference work is alphabetically arranged and illustrated with nearly a hundred plans, drawings, and photographs.

“There is no question that such a dictionary has been needed for a very long time nor is there any doubt that Professor Richardson is its ideal author.”
—Fred S. Kleiner, Boston University

DEMOGRAPHY AND ROMAN SOCIETY

Tim G. Parkin

How long did ancient Romans live? What were the leading causes of death? At what age did they marry? What percentage of the infant mortality rate was due to infanticide? Tim Parkin shows how modern demographic tools and techniques can be used to shed new light on the study of ancient society.

“Brings to the attention of classicists basic demographic methods and applies them intelligently to the Roman material. There is no comparable book now available in Roman history.”—Richard Saller, University of Chicago

LIBANIUS Autobiography and Selected Letters Edited & Translated by A.F. Norman

A selection of Libanius's letters, covering the periods 355-365 and 388-393, written to the emperor Julian, churchmen, civil officials, scholars and friends. They offer an enthralling self-portrait of this combative pagan publicist and a vivid picture of the cultural and political intrigues of the eastern empire in the fourth century.
