Corporate Personality in the 20th Century

Edited by Ross Grantham and

Charles Rickett

The centenary of the House of Lords decision in Salomon v. Salomon & Co Ltd affords a convenient opportunity to review the founding propositions of company law which if articulated. The contributors to this volume range broadly across modern approaches, placing key aspects of the subject in a theoretical and historical perspective, and laying bare the structural, theoretical and policy issues which lie behind its day-to-day technicalities.

Restitution and Banking Law

Edited by Francis Rose

Since the mid-'80s the law of restitution has assumed a significant role in the law relating to banking and its related activities. In a series of highly significant judgments the law, both in the UK and in other common law jurisdictions, has developed rapidly, enthusiastically embracing the law of restitution. The contributors to this volume, all expert in this area, examine and analyse the present state of the law and suggest ways in which it is likely to develop in future.
