

- Area Programs at American and European Colleges and Universities
- Africa and the Black Diaspora Reconsidered
- International Strategic Studies and Arms Control
- International Labor Policies and Unemployment
- New Monopoly: Causes and Implications of Political Misinformation
- The U.S.-South African Connection
- How Will Technical Assistance Survive?
- The Future of the United Nations
- Comparative Performance of the OAS and the OAU
- Comparative Politics, Personalities and Power
- Relations Among Industrializing and Developing Countries
- Europe and the Third World
- China and the Third World
- Asia and the Third World
- The Third World Revisited

Deadline for proposals: April 15, 1983.
 Deadline for conference papers: May 15, 1983.

Contact: Mekki Mtewa, Ph.D., Association for the Advancement of Policy, Research and Development in the Third World, P.O. Box 24234, Washington, D.C. 20024; (202) 636-6720/21. □

Manuscripts Requested on Women in Education

Women Educators announces the Sixth Annual "Research on Women in Education" Award, to be presented at the American Educational Research Association meeting in Montreal, April 11-15, 1983. Published or unpublished research reports in journal article format on any aspect of women in education are eligible if conducted or written up during 1981-82. The deadline for entries is December 1, 1982. Send five (5) copies of the entry (on four of which the author is not identified) and five (5) copies of a 200-250 word abstract of the entry to: Kathryn Scott, Research Award Chair, 115 Education, Florida State University, Tallahassee, Florida 32306; (904) 644-5458. □

Announcements

Public Administration Features Government Service and Action

Charles H. Levine
 University of Kansas

At a time when the public service and government intervention in social and economic affairs are under attack, the American Society for Public Administration has chosen to take its name literally in selecting a theme for its 1983 Annual Meeting. By adapting "Pride, Performance, and Professionalism" as the meeting's theme, the conference committee expects that major speakers, panelists, and paper presenters will focus on the positive contributions of government and public servants to the public's well being.

The program will center around 10 plenary and mini-plenary sessions featuring prominent individuals from government, business, the media, foundations, and the arts. In addition, there will be up to 20 highlight panels including presentations and discussions among well known public officials, policy experts, and scholars. The bulk of the program will be devoted to 200 panels divided into tracks paralleling the society's 16 sections as well as special tracks concentrating on (1) the experiences of New York City following its fiscal crisis; (2) the society's Centennial Agendas Project; and (3) Professional Standards and Ethics.

The 1983 Program will also include three special features: five conversations with prominent public officials conducted in an interview format that are being coordinated by Susan J. Tolchin, George Washington University; 80 roundtables on research issues and exemplary practices in public administration coordinated by Donald Stokes, Princeton University, and Jewell Scott, City of Kansas City, Missouri; and four Doctoral Student Colloquia coordinated by Hal Rainey, Florida State University.

The Doctoral Student Colloquia are intended to expose advanced doctoral students from different schools to one another and to current issues being investigated and debated by highly respected scholars in public administration. The colloquia will cover the following topics: (1) Critical Theory and Action Theory; (2) Organization Theory; (3) Policy Analysis; and (4) Budgeting and Financial Management. Interested doctoral students or their professors are encouraged to contact Professor Rainey for invitations and details about the colloquia.

The New York meeting is being directed by a steering committee composed of academics and practitioners. The chair of the conference is Louis J. Gambaccini, Port Authority of New York and New Jersey. He is being assisted by Henry C. Culley, also of the Port Authority, who serves as Vice Chair, Charles H. Levine of the University of Kansas who serves as Program Chair, A. Lee Fritschler of the Brookings Institution who is President of ASPA, Keith Mulrooney, ASPA Executive Director, and Richard Legon of the U.S. Postal Rate Commission. Donna Shalala of Hunter College, CUNY, and Arthur Lewis of the New Jersey Department of Transportation serve as honorary co-chairs of the conference.

The meeting will be held at the New York Hilton, April 16-19, 1983. A detailed listing of panels and a call for papers was published in the August 15 and September 15 issues of the Public Administration Times. The closing date for paper proposals is September 30, 1982. The outstanding paper at the conference and up to three honorable mentions will be selected for the new James E. Webb Award, named after the former director of the Bureau of the Budget and NASA who was ASPA President in 1966. For additional information about participating in the ASPA conference, contact Charles H. Levine, Edwin O. Stene Distinguished Professor of Public Administration, Department of Political Science, University of Kansas, Lawrence, Kansas 66045; (913) 864-4410. □

Proceedings Available on Correctional Education

The annual call for papers conducted by the Correctional Education Association (CEA) selected 11 manuscripts for inclusion in the Conference Proceedings. These papers include topics related to educational programs designed for both incarcerated adults and juveniles.

To order a copy of the Proceedings send a check or money order for $2.50 payable to Eastern Kentucky University/CEA to: Dr. Bruce I. Wolford, Eastern Kentucky University, Department of Correctional Services, College of Law Enforcement, 105 Stratton Building, Richmond, Kentucky 40475. □

Booklet on "The Federal Budget Cycle" Available

The American Council on Education has published a booklet that covers three basic topics: (1) terms central to the federal budgetary process are defined; (2) the budgetary cycle itself is outlined, and (3) how, when and with whom you can communicate most effectively are suggested.

Wherever possible, the discussion is tailored specifically to international education programs. For a copy of this booklet send $1 for an individual and 40¢ per copy for bulk mailing to: The American Council on Education, Division of International Education, Suite 300, Eleven Dupont Circle, Washington, D.C. 20036. □

Defense Intelligence Agency May Request Proposals

More requests for proposals for research studies are expected to be issued in fiscal year 1983 (starting October 1, 1982) in connection with the Defense Intelligence Agency's continuing Academic Research Support Program, with emphasis on various aspects of the Arabian Peninsula, Turkey and Africa. The requests would call for further unclassified, publishable studies in the fields of history, political science, economics, geography, linguistics, cultural anthropology, social psychology, sociology, military affairs and in the geophysical sciences. The studies would address a broad array of components of stability in the regions involved. The purpose of the studies is to provide the widest possible range of scholarly perceptions, viewpoints, appraisals, and opinions for defense analyses and policy formation. Although innovative approaches, perspectives and analytical techniques are sought, the offerors' depth-of-knowledge will be primarily important. Qualified researchers should have evinced such knowledge in recent monographs, colloquia papers, and/or research reports. The Defense Intelligence Agency prefers that principal researchers have a working knowledge of languages indigenous to the countries/ areas at issue. □

Faculty Exchanges Arranged

The Faculty Exchange Center, a non-profit, faculty-administered program, helps arrange teaching exchanges on the college and university level and house exchanges for purposes of study and travel for teachers and administrators at all levels of the educational profession. The current roster of members will be made available to new members upon registration. For more information send a stamped and self-addressed no. 10 envelope to: Faculty Exchange Center, 952 Virginia Avenue, Lancaster, Pennsylvania 17603. □

Yearbook on Leaders Now Available

In September of 1981, 35 scholars from 14 countries, interested in the study of social and political elites and leadership, participated at the Mosca Centennial Conference hosted by Northern Illinois University and sponsored by Moshe Czudnowski (Northern Illinois University) and Heinz Eulau (Stanford University). The conference led to the establishment of the International Yearbook for Studies of Leaders and Leadership, a publication series intended to provide a specialized publication forum and means for interaction between political scientists, sociologists, psychologists and historians whose interests focus on leaders at any level of sociopolitical organizations.

The first volume of the Yearbook, entitled Does Who Governs Matter?, includes studies of elite circulation by Klaus von Beyme, Salustiano del Campo, et al., Roland Cayrol and Pascal Perrineau, Maurizio Cotta, Hans Daalder and J. van den Berg, Samuel Eldersveld, Bohdan Harasymiw, Keith Legg, Thomas Rochon, John Schmidhauser and Edward Shils. Volume II, entitled Political Elites and Social Changes, includes studies by Wendell Bell and Juan Baldrich, Harold Clarke and Allan Kornberg, Moshe Czudnowski, Suzanne Keller, Michael Keren, Chong Lim Kim and Samuel Patterson, Jean Laponce, Dwaine Marvick, and Peter McDonough. Both volumes have been edited by Moshe Czudnowski and their scheduled publication dates are winter 1982 and spring 1983, respectively. The Yearbook is published by Northern Illinois University Press.

The general editors of the Yearbook, Moshe Czudnowski and Heinz Eulau, invite interested scholars to submit manuscripts, publication proposals, research notes and information about ongoing research on elites and leadership to Moshe Czudnowski, Managing Editor, the I.Y.S.L.L., Department of Political Science, Northern Illinois University, DeKalb, Illinois 60115. The Yearbook also welcomes proposals for guest-edited volumes with an issue or area focus. □

Alpha Phi Sigma Encourages New Local Chapters

Alpha Phi Sigma, the national honor society for criminal justice, recognizes scholastic excellence by undergraduate and graduate students in the criminal justice sciences. All students who have completed one-third of the credit hours required for graduation by a college or university accredited by the appropriate regional accreditation organization are eligible for membership. They also must be recommended by a local chapter advisor or faculty member, and maintain a high GPA.

Founded in 1942 at Washington State University, Alpha Phi Sigma has experienced rapid growth, especially during the 1970s, and is presently considering the admission of new chapters. For information write to the National Office, Alpha Phi Sigma, 105 Stratton/EKU, Richmond, Kentucky 40475. □

Deadline Extended for Directory on Latin Americanists

Data collection is entering its final stages for the third edition of the National Directory of Latin Americanists. To date approximately 4000 completed questionnaires have been returned. In the interest of including all qualified persons, the deadline for submission has been extended to December 31, 1982. Copies of the questionnaire are still available from the Library of Congress, Hispanic Division, National Directory Project, Washington, D.C. 20540.

The Directory will provide biographical and bibliographic information on Latin American specialists throughout the United States. Earlier editions of the Directory have been used as a basic reference work by students and journalists, foreign scholars, research institutions, and development organizations, as well as by Latin American Studies programs. With the cooperation of Latin Americanists in all fields, the National Directory of Latin Americanists can continue to be an important resource for administration, development, teaching, and research in the Latin American field. □

Microcomputer Review To Be Offered

What It Is. Starting this fall the Public Service Research and Computer Laboratory of the Department of Political Science and Public Administration will issue the Political Science Micro Review. This review will have two components: (1) a newsletter focusing on items of interest to political scientists using microcomputers, plus listing of programs which subscribers may type in and use directly; (2) a disk volume containing programs written for the Apple II + microcomputer, containing in each issue at least one of each of the following programs: a political science program, a public administration program, a tutorial on programming, and a public domain utility program, and bonus programs.

In addition to these programs supplied by the Public Service Laboratory, we hope you, the readers, will share additional programs with fellow social scientists and public administrationists through the Political Science Micro Review Disk Volume.

What Will It Cost? The review is not a money-making enterprise but is presented as a nonprofit service. Those familiar with computer software are aware that even the cheapest game program costs $25 to $50 per disk, but we have priced the Political Science Micro Review at only a fraction of these rates. The following rates will apply to the Political Science Micro Review: Newsletter only: $10; Disk Version plus Newsletter: $25.

One volume of the review will consist of four issues. Checks should be made payable to "North Carolina State University." Billing is not possible. Send subscriptions to: Micro Review, PSPA Link 215, North Carolina State University, Raleigh, North Carolina 27511. □

USICA Returns to Former Name: United States Information Agency

The United States Information Agency (USIA), known from 1978 to 1982 as the U.S. International Communication Agency (USICA), has been officially renamed USIA by act of Congress. The name-change legislation, which was signed by the President on August 24, is part of the Agency's FY 1982/1983 authorization bill. As was the case from the time of the Agency's founding in 1953, USIA will again be called the United States Information Service (USIS) abroad.

The U.S. Information Agency is an independent organization within the Executive Branch responsible for the U.S. government's overseas information and cultural programs, including the Voice of America and the Fulbright Scholarship program. The Agency, which has 202 posts in 124 countries, also produces a wide range of media products, administers a number of exchanges, mounts exhibitions, and administers a worldwide system of American libraries and cultural centers.

USIA became USICA in April 1978, when the information and broadcasting functions of USIA were merged with the Educational and Cultural Bureau of the Department of State. The new name was never popular, however, either with the Agency's employees or with its clientele abroad. In many cases, "USICA" did not translate satisfactorily into the language of the host country. In addition, Agency officials believe that the enormous amount of recognition and good will that USIA had built up over the years from 1953 to 1978 will be recaptured with the reversion to its former name.

Costs for the name change will be held to a minimum, and are expected to be incurred largely for new signs at overseas posts. Letterhead and other paper products with the USICA name will be used until supplies are exhausted.

Agency officials believe that reverting to the name which the Agency bore for 25 years will enhance its prestige abroad, end recurring confusion, and make its audiences more aware of its purpose, which is to create a better understanding of the United States and its policies. □

CIS Offers New Catalog

The new 1982-1983 catalog from Congressional Information Service, Inc. (CIS) describes printed indexes, microfiche collections, online databases, and other services that provide access to some 40 million pages of information published by federal, state, municipal, and foreign governments; international intergovernmental organizations; and private organizations.

The illustrated, 32-page catalog covers the full line of CIS products and services. Among the new items described are the forthcoming Index to International Statistics, the CIS Legislative History Service, CIS Periodicals on Microfiche, and the CIS U.S. Congressional Committee Hearings Index.

To obtain a free copy, write: CIS Catalog, P.O. Box 30056, Bethesda, Maryland 20814. Or call Customer Service at (800) 636-8380 (toll-free) or (301) 654-1550. □

Center for Iranian Research Established in Washington

On August 8, 1982 the Center for Iranian Research and Analysis (CIRA) was formally founded in Washington, D.C., with immediate plans for incorporation. Activities leading to the establishment of the Center began last April with a conference at American University addressing the successes and failures of Iran's revolutionary movement.

CIRA is an independent, democratic, nonprofit organization created for a better understanding of the struggle for liberation in Iran and the region surrounding it. The Center is composed of scholars and activists dedicated to the critical study and progressive transformation of the Iranian society and the external forces which impact upon it.

CIRA intends to promote and generate studies of political economy, history, culture, and the arts. Its activities will include a research journal, a speakers bureau, a newsletter, seminars, and university courses.

The Center recognizes that its strength will derive from members and supporters. The Center welcomes inquiries and invites you to support and utilize it. For further information, write or call: CIRA, P.O. Box 53126, Temple Heights Station, Washington, D.C. 20009; Prof. Hassan Zavareei, P.O. Box 202, Page, West Virginia 25152; (304) 442-3276; or Prof. Thomas M. Ricks, 3120 N. First

Place, Arlington, Virginia 22201; (703) 243-1729. □

Social Network Analysts Seek New Members

Social network analysts claim that the most powerful way to study a social system is to analyze the pattern of ties linking its members. Rather than analyze individuals as acting independently, network analysts study how their network linkages organize and constrain their behavior. While most network analysts study persons, many others study networks whose members are corporations, nation-states or other groups.

The International Network for Social Network Analysis is a clearing house, linking together network analysts and disseminating current information. Formed in 1977, it now has over 300 members from all continents and all social science disciplines, mathematics, and statistics.

To link members with each other, INSNA publishes three issues of Connections annually. The 70 pages of each issue contain research reports, surveys of the field, lots of abstracts, new book announcements, thesis summaries, computer programs, conference information, teaching aids, research grant announcements, and news items.

Connections has already published such important new information as William Ratcliffe's review of network/health research, Joel Levine and Nicholas Mullin's critique of block-modelling, Harriet Friedmann on Max Weber, and John Sondquist's "do-it-yourself" guide to computerized network analysis. Our Directory gives addresses, telephone numbers, disciplines and descriptions of research interests, all cross-referenced.

INSNA also serves as a framework for organizing conferences; we have met in Toronto and in Uppsala, Sweden. Members are now discussing conferences to be held in Mexico, the U.S., and Canada.

Members can also subscribe to our affiliated journal, Social Networks, at a special discount price of $28. This "International Journal of Structural Analysis" publishes theoretical, methodological and substantive papers on social structure.

To join INSNA and receive three issues of Connections send $9 to: The International Network for Social Network Analysis, Department of Sociology, University of Toronto, 563 Spadina Avenue, Toronto, M5S 1A1, Canada. □

Wayne State Establishes Minority Program

The Robert L. Millender, Sr. Program has been established by Wayne State University. The program consists of an annual lectureship and a fellowship, awarded annually. It has been endowed by the family and friends of Robert L. Millender, Sr., a Detroit attorney who was a prominent political force in the community for a number of years and who was instrumental in the election campaigns of several prominent black politicians.

The first Millender lecturer will be Dr. Charles Hamilton, Wallace S. Sayre Professor of Political Science at Columbia University, who will focus on the "New Federalism" and its implications for the minority community.

The annual fellowship program is designed to assist minority (as defined by Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964) men and women in achieving distinguished accomplishment in public-service-oriented careers. The university fellows will be assigned to high-level responsibilities in close contact with chief executives in Detroit area organizations in public, private, and non-profit organizations. The fellows will serve nine months, September 1 through May 31, with one of those organizations. In 1983-84, the Millender fellow will serve as administrative assistant to the President of New Detroit, Inc., the nation's first urban coalition. New Detroit was founded in the wake of the 1967 civil disturbance, an alliance of minority community, business, labor and government to deal with key issues facing Detroit, especially in terms of the black and disadvantaged communities.

The fellow will also have a post-degree appointment with the Department of Political Science at Wayne State University.

The nine-month stipend associated with the program will be $15,000 for 1983-84; the program will also provide health insurance for the fellow. Interested applicants should send (1) a curriculum vita; (2) a letter of interest in the fellowship, specifying career goals and future intentions, how the fellowship will contribute toward career goals, and the applicant's qualifications to undertake the responsibilities of the program; (3) at least three letters of reference, with one from an individual currently active in public service if possible. Materials should be sent to: Bryan D. Jones, Chairperson, Department of Political Science, 956 Mackenzie Hall, Wayne State University, Detroit, Michigan 48202. □

Presidency Research Group Plans APSA Meeting Panels

The Presidency Research Group is again sponsoring panels at the annual meeting of the American Political Science Association. The program chair for the 1983 meeting is George Edwards. All those interested in participating on a PRG panel should contact him at the Department of Political Science, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas 77843. □

1982-83 Edition of "The Film File" Just Published

Media Referral Service announces the publication of the 1982-83 edition of The Film File, the film and video resource guide that lists titles currently available from 85 educational, independent and specialized distributors, sorted within specific subject and programming areas.

Over 1,500 titles are listed within 16 major curriculum areas. Each curriculum area is broken down into concise sub-topics. An alphabetical topic index can be used to pinpoint very specific subjects and concepts within the 16 major areas. The new edition also includes an alphabetical title index listing title, release date, and distributor.

The Film File 1982-83 is available for $30 per copy (shipping and handling included) from Media Referral Service, P.O. Box 3586, Minneapolis, Minnesota 55403; (612) 933-2819. □

Prizes To Be Awarded by Jewish Historical Society

The American Jewish Historical Society has announced that three prizes will be awarded during each academic year to recognize and reward meritorious work in the field of American Jewish history.

The Leo Wasserman Prize will be awarded for the best article published in the Society's quarterly American Jewish History, which has been published since 1893.

The Leo Wasserman Student Essay Prize will be given for the best essay submitted on American Jewish history by a college or university student, the winning essay to be considered for publication in American Jewish History.

The Administrative Committee Prize will be awarded for the best essay submitted on a topic dealing with local American Jewish history, the winning essay to be considered for publication in American Jewish History.

The deadline for submission of entries for the student essay and the local Jewish history essay prizes will be June 30 of each year. Each prize has a cash award of $100.

For information about award rules, as well as submission procedures, contact: American Jewish Historical Society, 2 Thornton Road, Waltham, Massachusetts 02154; or telephone (617) 891-8110. □

Opinion Research Surveys for 1972-82 Now Available

The 1972-1982 cumulative General Social Surveys of the National Opinion Research Center are now available.

These nine national cross-sections contain 13,626 respondents and over 500 variables. The data have a comprehensive set of background variables including many on parental characteristics; behavioral items on group membership, life stress, drinking and smoking, and crime; attitude items on such topics as abortions, crime and punishment, foreign affairs, race relations, sex roles, and governmental spending priorities; and personal evaluations on anomia, happiness, and satisfaction with numerous life domains. The surveys are organized in a merged data set that easily permits either trend analysis or the pooling of surveys for the analysis of small subgroups. The data are available from the Roper Center, U-164R, University of Connecticut, Storrs, Connecticut 06268. □

Presidential Debate Transcripts Available

University Microfilms of Ann Arbor, Michigan announces publication of Transcripts of the Presidential Debates of 1980, edited by Theodore Rueter, a graduate student in political science at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. This 544-page volume contains transcripts of the 10 presidential debates held in 1980: six Republican primary debates, the Reagan-Anderson debate, the Reagan-Carter debate, the Ed Clark-Barry Commoner debate, and John Anderson's debate with Reagan and Carter via Cable News Network. An 18-page preface contains information on each of the debates and overviews the political significance of the debates. Copies are available from University Microfilms, 300 N. Zeeb Road, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48106. The volume costs $138.80, plus sales tax and shipping and handling. The order number is AU00239. □

Park College Inaugurates Public Affairs Program

Park College in Parkville, Missouri announces the inauguration of the Graduate School for Public Affairs located in downtown Kansas City, Missouri. The School offers a Master of Public Affairs degree with three different emphases: (a) public management, (b) government-business relations, and (c) community organizations and services. □

APSR Back Issues Available

Peter R. Baehr, Jacob van Ruisdaellaan 25, 2102 AM Heemstede, The Netherlands, has a collection of the APSR from Vol. 54 1960 to Vol. 74 1980, which he would like to sell, preferably as a whole set for $200. Volumes for specific years may be sold at a prorated price. □

Politics Seeks Articles on Substantive Issues

The Political Studies Association of the U.K. has launched a new journal, entitled Politics. Initial issues appeared in 1981 and 1982. Politics is published twice a year, and includes contributions on substantive issues of current interest in any area of political science. Contributions should not exceed 3,000 words, and the Editor and Editorial Board are keen to encourage the submission of short responses and critiques plus review articles and items useful for undergraduate teaching. Articles in recent issues include Robert K. Whelan, "The Impact of the Reagan Administration's Budget Cutbacks on State and Local Government," Jim Seroka, "The Limitations of Aggregate Budgetary Analysis of Communist States: The Case of Yugoslavia," and Bob Jessup, "Nicholas Poulantzas on Political Strategy." The General Editor is Jean Woodall, School of Economics and Politics, Kingston Polytechnic, Penrhyn Road, Kingston-upon-Thames, KT1 2EE, England, who would be pleased to receive communications regarding potential contributions and requests to purchase current or back issues. □

RISE Finds Positions for Scholars Overseas

Professional educators, researchers or administrators interested in short- or long-term positions overseas now have a means of locating assignment opportunities, and overseas institutions and projects can now locate appropriately qualified people for academic, research, or consulting positions.

The Register for International Service in Education (RISE) operates to bring the two together. RISE is an international computer-based referral service that matches the needs of educational institutions, agencies, and development projects in other countries with the qualifications of U.S. postsecondary teachers, consultants, and specialists interested in education-related assignments abroad.

The Institute of International Education (IIE), the oldest and largest U.S.-based international educational exchange agency, created the Register for International Service in Education in 1981 primarily to help developing countries find educators and specialists in such key fields as agriculture and forestry, banking and finance, business and public administration, economics, engineering, health care, social sciences, and physical and life sciences. Positions are listed in virtually all fields and range in duration from a few weeks to four or five years.

RISE is open to registrants in all fields, from arts and literature to the professions and technology. Agencies, development projects and education/research institutions from 40 countries currently list openings. More than 1,300 positions are available in Africa, the Middle East, Latin America, and Asia.

Professors and administrators who sign up with RISE will receive information for a one-year period on all overseas educational employment opportunities listed with the Register which correspond to the registrant's qualifications and preferences. Registrants must follow up with the institution on the particulars of the position.

Individuals seeking assignments may register for a fee of $35 for one year and may update their curricula vitae at any time without additional charge. Most registrants are expected to have the top professional degree in their field (Ph.D., MBA, etc.), although for the more technical assignments experience and skill are most important. In recognition of the growing number of people from other countries who earn U.S. graduate degrees in key development fields, U.S. citizenship is not required.

For prospective employers RISE provides (free of charge) relevant biographical data of registrants who list key qualifications the employer requests. This information includes major discipline, specialization within the field, degrees, career experience, including previous international experience, and language competence. Then it is up to the prospective employer to contact the individual directly to set up further arrangements.

For further information, contact Daniel Heyduk, Director, RISE, Institute of International Education, 809 United Nations Plaza, New York, New York 10017. □

Proceedings of Small City and Regional Community Conference Available

The Fifth Conference of the Small City and Regional Community was held at the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point on March 25 and 26. The theme of the conference was Small City Economic and Energy Futures although many other topics were the focus of sessions as well. The Proceedings of the Fifth Conference will be available in December, 1982 at $14.50 (est. 450 pp.) from the Center for the Small City, University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point, Stevens Point, Wisconsin 54481. Copies of volumes of past Proceedings are also available at the same price with a 25 percent discount for the purchase of two or more volumes.

The Sixth Conference on the Small City and Regional Community originally scheduled for 1983 has been postponed. The Sixth Conference will be held in March, 1984 at the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point. A call for participation will be mailed in the summer of 1983. Themes and featured speakers are now being considered. Suggestions for the Conference are welcomed and can be sent to Edward J. Miller, Center for the Small City, University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point, Stevens Point, Wisconsin 54481. □

Caucus for a New Political Science Announces Caucus and Program Chairs

Steve Sachs has been elected Caucus Chair for 1982-83. His address is Department of Political Science, Indiana University/Purdue University at Indianapolis, 925 W. Michigan, Indianapolis, Indiana 46202. Program co-chairs for 1983 are: Bertell Ollman, Department of Political Science, New York University, 25 Waverly Place, New York, New York 10003; and Steve Bronner, Department of Political Science, University College, Rutgers University, New Brunswick, New Jersey 08903. Write the Chair to help him revitalize Caucus networks.

Ollman and Bronner write as follows about the Caucus Program for 1983: "It was agreed in Denver that the next program of the Caucus would feature the attempt at a dialogue with the mainstream of the discipline. Roughly between five and ten panels will therefore be devoted to debates between leading members of the Caucus and leading mainstream political scientists on the basic issues which divide us. The general opinion was that these debates be based upon the five sub-fields of political science—theory, comparative, public administration, international relations, and American politics. We realize, however, that crucial issues such as feminism, racism, marxism, etc. cannot simply be pigeon-holed within these traditional sub-fields. Thus, we would like to call upon the membership for suggestions with regard to panel topics and speakers who might debate one another. Space will also be left for approximately a dozen other panels; people wishing to organize these panels should contact us as well. It is essential that we receive your letters before December 15, 1982." Write them at the above addresses. □

626 PS Fall 1982

Officers Elected at Pennsylvania Meeting

During the business meeting of the Pennsylvania Political Science Association the following officers were elected: President, Priscilla Greely Hopkirk, Villanova University; First Vice-President and Program Chairman, Donald Buzinkai, Kings College; Second Vice-President and Editor of the Newsletter, Frank Colon, Lehigh University; Secretary-Treasurer, Paul Kromer; Members of the Executive Council: Sylvan H. Cohen, Slippery Rock State College; Anthony James Joes, St. Joseph's University; Louis E. Lopold, Pennsylvania State University, Altoona; and Donald G. Tannenbaum, Gettysburg College. □

Arkansas Association Selects Site for 1983 Annual Meeting

The Arkansas Political Science Association Executive Board has selected Arkadelphia as the site of the 1983 annual meeting, to be held on February 25th and 26th. The 10th anniversary meeting will be on the campus of Henderson State University under the direction of Program Chairman Jeddy LeVar of HSU.

Don Whistler of the University of Central Arkansas, has been selected as the new editor of the Arkansas political science journal. Authors interested in publication in the Journal should submit their manuscripts to Don at UCA, Conway, Arkansas 72032.

At the 1982 annual meeting in Fayetteville the following awards were made: Best Paper Presented at the meeting: Chris Perry (Tennessee Energy Authority), "Patterns of Intellectual Deference: Personal and Proxy Influence of Chief Justice Berger, 1976-1979," and Best Student Paper (1981-82 Competition): Gary Perkey (ASU), "the Legislative Reorganization Acts of 1946 and 1970 and their Impact on the Legislative Process." □