Liberty, Equality, and Justice

Civil Rights, Women's Rights, and the Regulation of Business, 1865–1932
Ross Evans Paulson

"Paulson's work is a fine addition to our historical understanding of a central theme in American history—the priority of individual rights over collective welfare."—Kathryn Kish Sklar, SUNY Binghamton
376 pages, paper $18.95

Decentering the Regime

Ethnicity, Radicalism, and Democracy in Juchitán, Mexico
Jeffrey W. Rubin

"Decentering the Regime reveals a creative, unorthodox political scientist at work. Rubin integrates trenchant cultural and ethnohistorical analysis into his examination of local, regional, and national politics."—Gilbert M. Joseph, Yale University

To Die in This Way

Nicaraguan Indians and the Myth of Mestizaje, 1880–1965
Jeffrey L. Gould

"To Die in This Way is an extraordinary achievement. The research required to sustain such an innovative and original argument is truly impressive, ranging from searches through political and legal archives to ethnography and oral history. In short, this is a pathbreaking major work in Latin American history."—John Coatsworth, Harvard University
