FACTS ABOUT DE QUIROS TRANSLATION

Copies of "Accelerated Speech Audiometry, An Examination of Test Results" by J. B. de Quiros, in an English translation, are now available from the Beltone Institute for Hearing Research.

The 48-page de Quiros work was originally published in Spanish in Revista Fonoaudiologica in 1961, and was not available in English until now. Dr. de Quiros is Professor of Speech Pathology and Audiology at Universidad del Litoral, Buenos Aires, Argentina.

Juergen Tonndorf, M.D., editor of the Translations, explains that only the second part of Dr. de Quiros' original article was translated. This part reports on Dr. de Quiros' experiences with a number of clinical patients on whom he used a variety of modern hearing tests for speech, mainly accelerated speech. These tests, most of which were developed in Italy by Dr. H. Bocca and his group, have so far found little application in the United States. It appears from Dr. de Quiros' article and others by Dr. Bocca and his co-workers that this type of hearing test has a place in the differential diagnosis of disorders in the higher auditory tracts and centres.

The Beltone Institute, financed by Beltone Electronics Corporation, is an independent, not-for-profit trust organization which supports research in hearing and other related fields. Trustees are: S. F. Posen, chairman; Raymond T. Carhart, Ph.D., Joseph E. Hind, Jr., Ph.D.; John R. Lindsay, M.D.; and S. Richard Silverman, Ph.D.

The de Quiros Translation is the seventeenth in a series. The sixteenth was "New Aspects on the Biology and Pathology of the Inner Ear" by Dr. K. H. Vosteen, translated from the German and published in July, 1963. The new Translation and earlier works may be obtained by writing to the Beltone Institute for Hearing Research, 4201 W. Victoria Street, Chicago.
