GEORGE J. ROMAN
(1923-1983)

Dr. George J. Roman, a senior legal specialist with the European Law Division of the Library of Congress, died on April 17, of a heart attack.

Born on April 5, 1923, in Vraniut, Romania, Dr. Roman graduated from the Bucharest University Law School and passed his State Examination as a government lawyer. He spent his entire legal career, chiefly as a legal advisor, in the Romanian Foreign Affairs Ministry. He was also First Secretary to the United Nations in charge of legal matters. He later served as Foreign and International Law Librarian at Georgetown University Law Center. Dr. Roman was appointed Romanian legal specialist in the European Law Division on February 25, 1980, and was promoted to senior legal specialist in 1981. In the United States, he earned the following degrees: Master's degree in Comparative Law (1967) Georgetown University Law Center; Master's degree in Library Science (1969) Catholic University of America; Doctor's degree in Comparative Law (1972) Georgetown University Law Center.

He spent a substantial portion of his career teaching public and private international law and Romanian law. He was Adjunct Professor of Law at the Georgetown University Law Center where he was teaching a graduate course on private international law of economic contracts. He also served as a Senior Research Fellow and Consultant Librarian of the International Law Institute at this Center. Simultaneously, he served as an Arbitrator at the National Panel of Arbitrators of the American Arbitration Association, as a judge in the Philip C. Jesup International Moot Court Competition organized by the American Society of International Law, and as a member of the Board of Governors of the Washington Foreign Law Society. Dr. Roman was a member of several professional organizations including the American Society of International Law, the International Association of Law Libraries, the American Association of Law Libraries, and the Law Librarians' Society of Washington, D.C. A scholar of note, he was on the Editorial Advisory Committee of the International Legal Materials of the ASIL and authored a great number of outstanding studies and articles on various legal topics.
