Contents

	Introdu	ction: The E	mergence of an Individual Right
	to Repa	ration for Vi	ctims of Armed Conflict
Christian Marxsen				page 1
	I.	Reparation is	n International Law	1
	II.	Developmen	nts towards an Individual Right to Reparation	. 5
	III.	The Trialogu	ue on Reparation	10
1.	The R	ght to Repara	ation for Victims of Armed
	Confli	et: The Intert	twined Development
	of Sub	stantive and I	Procedural Aspects
		i Furuya	-	16
	I.	Introduction	L	16
	II.	A State-Cent	tred Right to Reparation: Historical
		Developmen	nts until the 1990s	20
		A. The Sit	uation before World War II	20
		B. A Fram	ework for Settling the Consequences
		of Worl	d War II	2.2
		C. Lump-S	Sum Settlements before the 1990s	27
III. A Victim-Oriented Perspective of the Right to Ro				1:
		A Turning P	oint	28
		A. A Grow	ing Victim Focus in the United Nations	29
		B. Advance	ement in the International Criminal
		Tribuna	als and Court	34
		C. Ad Hoc	Reparation Mechanisms Created since
		the Ear	ly 1990s	39
		D. New Ca	ases on Past Violations: Evaluating the Findi	ngs
		of Dom	nestic Courts	46

vi Contents

	IV.	Victims to Be Redressed	51
		A. The Nature of Armed Conflict	52
		B. Applicable Law in Armed Conflict	53
		C. Harms Caused by Violations of International Law	55
		D. The Nature of the Person to Be Redressed	60
	V.	The Obligation to Make Reparation	62
		A. Duty-Bearers of Reparation	62
		B. Forms of Reparation	65
		C. Waiver or Limitation of Reparation Claims	67
	VI.	The Procedural Right to Reparation	71
		A. The Right to Access an Effective Mechanism	71
		B. Developing the Right to Be Heard	75
		C. The Right to Equal Treatment without
		Discrimination	76
	VII.	Common Principles of Ad Hoc Reparation Mechanisms	77
		A. Collecting, Registering, and Processing Claims	78
		B. Valuing and Verifying Claims	81
		C. The Victim's Choice of an Appropriate Mechanism	84
		D. The Financial Basis of the Mechanism	86
	VIII.	Conclusions	89
2.	Opera	tionalising the Right of Victims of War
	to Rep	paration
	Cristic	ín Correa	92
	I.	Introduction	92
	II.	The Possible Legal Foundations for an Individual Right
		to Reparation	94
		A. The Right of Victims to Obtain Reparation under	, ,
		International Human Rights Law	95
		B. The Right of Victims to Obtain Reparation under	, -
		International Humanitarian Law	103
		C. The Application of International Human Rights Law to Armed Conflict and the Right of Victims
		to Reparation	110
	III.	The Practical Realisation of the Right to Reparation
		in Armed Conflict	114
		A. Reparation under International or Inter-State
		Ad Hoc Mechanisms	116
		B. Reparation through State Administrative Processes	126

Contents vii

	IV.	C.	Lessons for Designing Reparation Policies for Armed Conflict nclusions	163 174
3.	International Human Rights Adjudication, Subsidiarity, and Reparation for Victims of Armed Conflict
	Clara	Sand	loval	179
	I.	Intr	roduction	179
	II.	II. Subsidiarity in International Human Rights Law		182
	III.	9
		Juri	isprudence on Reparation	187
		A.	Gross Human Rights Violations, Victims,
			and Domestic Reparation Programmes in
			Guatemala, Peru, and Colombia	190
		B.	The Jurisprudence of the Court on Domestic Reparation Programmes: From Rectification
			to Deference	197
		C.	The Judgments in Yarce and Vereda La Esperanza
			v. Colombia: Is the Court Revisiting Its Approach to Subsidiarity?	209
		D.	The Reasoning of the Court behind Deference
			in Relation to Domestic Reparation Programmes:
			Problems and Consequences	214
		Ε.	The Court's Shift towards Subsidiarity: What
			Explains This Approach?	216
	IV.	The	e European Court of Human Rights and Its
		Juri	isprudence on Reparation	222
		A.	The Court's Standard Approach to Subsidiarity
			and Reparation	222
		B.	Changes in the Court's Treatment of Subsidiarity
			and Reparation	226
		C.	The Court's Jurisprudence on War-Related
			Large-Scale Human Rights Violations
			and Domestic Reparation Programmes	236
		D.	What Explains the Approach of the Court
			to Subsidiarity when Dealing with Reparation?	244
		E.	The Reasoning of the Court on Remedial Measures:
			Problems and Consequences	250

viii Contents

V.	What Should Regional Human Rights Courts Do When
Faced with Challenges to Domestic Reparation
	Programmes?	252
	A. The International Law Test	253
	B. The Public Policy Test	257
VI.	Conclusions	260
Concl	usion: Reparation for Victims of Armed Conflict –
At the	Interface of International and National Law
Anne Peters
I.	Introduction	265
II.	Regime Interaction and Cross-Fertilisation	268
III.	The Impact of Human Rights	270
IV.	The Interaction between International and Domestic Law	273
V.	'Transformative Reparation'? Between Law and Politics,
	Courts and Legislators, the Past and the Future	277
VI.	Outlook	280
Index		285		