The Journal of Jacob Roggeveen

ANDREW SHARP

In 1721–2 Jacob Roggeveen commanded an important Dutch expedition which discovered Easter Island, a number of islands in the Tuamotu and Society groups, and most of the islands in the Samoa group. This translation of Roggeveen's journal has its own appeal as a narrative of maritime adventure, and is preceded by a biographical, historical, and bibliographical introduction. 3 plates 1 map £2·50

The Pengo Language

Grammar, Texts, and Vocabulary

T. BURROW and S. BHATTACHARYA

Pengo is a tribal Dravidian language, now rapidly declining, spoken in the Koraput district of Orissa, and in the adjoining district of Kalahandi. Hitherto unknown to scholarship, it was investigated by the authors between 1957 and 1966. Their book provides a comprehensive account of the language which will be indispensable to all students of comparative Dravidian linguistics. £2·60

An Analysis of Malay Magic

KIRK ENDICOTT

This book is a study of the traditional non-Moslem or 'folk' religion of the Malays of the Malay Peninsula. It describes the basic beliefs and their interrelationships, and brings out the logic behind the various 'magical' practices. Frontispiece £2·25 Oxford Monographs on Social Anthropology

Edessa

'The Blessed City'

J. B. SEGAL

Edessa (the modern Urfa in Turkey) was celebrated throughout Christendom for the legend of the exchange of letters between its pagan king and Jesus at Jerusalem. It was venerated as the first kingdom to accept Christianity; it was the centre of the Syrian church, the goal of pilgrims from East and West, and the birthplace of classical Syriac literature. This study describes events at Edessa largely through contemporary accounts. 64 plates £5·00

The Administration of Agricultural Development

Lessons from India

GUY HUNTER

This regional application of Guy Hunter's studies of the transfer of institutions forms a trio with The Best of Both Worlds? (16/-) and Modernizing Peasant Societies (40/-). Mr Hunter makes some new suggestions for India, but chiefly describes the notable Indian experiments in administering rural development, for the benefit of other countries and in hopes of influencing donors' Aid Policies. 1 text-figure £1·75

Industry and Trade in Some Developing Countries

A Comparative Study

IAN LITTLE, TIBOR SCITOVSKY, and MAURICE SCOTT

Since the Second World War many developing countries have embarked on a drive towards industrialization. This is the most ambitious study yet undertaken of the means they adopted and the results. It is based on independent studies of Brazil, Mexico, India, Pakistan, the Philippines, and Taiwan, which are being published separately. £4·50 paper covers £2·00

DOLMA TARING

'A splendid graphic account of life in this "roof of the world" country as it was lived in until the 1950s. Central Asian Rugs

ULRICH SCHURMANN

176 pages. 100 full colour plates, 19 monochromes, and 8 plates defining regional 'guls'. £15.

Ulrich Schurmann, the distinguished dealer and author, describes and accounts for the beauty and artistic balance of the antique rugs of Central Asia. The descriptions are vividly realised in the hundred superb colour plates. The first chapter deals with the importance of the gul in determining the provenance of a rug coming from Central Asia. This is followed by a section dealing with the characteristics of the products of individual weaving areas, i.e. Tekke, Salor, Saryq, Chador, Yomud, Kizil Ayak, Karakalpak and Ersari-Beshir. A separate chapter deals with Turcoman rugs from Afghanistan, and another with the products of East Turkestan-Yarkand, Kashgar, and Khotan. Hans Konig gives a splendid survey of the historical and political background with attention to the way of life, religion and commercial aspects of this great territory.

'Author, publishers, and blockmakers alike deserve the highest possible praise for the accuracy of the colour renderings, but it must be confessed, that this has come to be expected in works to which Ulrich Schurmann puts his name.' R. E. G. Macey in The Carpet Review.

Hrsg. von Leopold v. Schroeder. Buch 1–4

Buch 1: Reprint 1970. XLVIII, 176 Seiten, brosch. DM 48,—

Die Bücher 2–4 folgen bis Ende 1971

Leopold von Schroeder begann bereits 1879 in seiner Dorpater Dissertation die Arbeiten, die er schließlich mit seiner berühmten Edition der Maitrayāṇī Saṃhitā (Leipzig 1881–86) krönte. Albrecht Weber hatte 1852 die Vājasaneyisaṃhitā des weißen Yajurveda publiziert, der er dann von den vier erreichbaren Versionen des schwarzen Yajurveda seine Ausgabe der Taittirīyasaṃhitā 1871–72 folgen ließ. Nun machte 1881–86 L. v. Schroeders Maitrāyaṇī Saṃhitā eine weitere Version des schwarzen Yajurveda bekannt. Ihr konnte er dann seine 1900–10 veröffentlichte Ausgabe auch der gleich wichtigen Kaṭhasaṃhitā (Kāṭhaka) zur Seite stellen, die durch R. Simons unentbehrlichen Wortindex (1912) erschlossen wurde.

Die Neudrucke der völlig vergriffenen Werke erscheinen heute in einer Zeit, in der der altindischen Religion und insbesondere diesen beiden Versionen des Yajurveda neues, ungeahnt großes Interesse nicht nur seitens der Linguistik entgegengebracht wird. Die modernen Erkenntnisse der Indologen und Religionswissenschaftler hinsichtlich der frühen Magie und des Opferwesens der Priester einer altertümlichen Vorstellungswelt werden durch die die vorliegenden Texte ausmachenden Aussagen beim und vom Opfern in entscheidender Weise bereichert.

The Cambridge History of Islam

Volume I: The Central Islamic Lands

Volume II: The Further Islamic Lands:
Islamic Society and Civilization

Edited by P. M. HOLT
ANN K. S. LAMBTON
BERNARD LEWIS

This work, written by a team of specialist historians, surveys the history of the Muslim lands over more than thirteen centuries, beginning with Arabia before the Prophet Muhammad and taking the story of political developments down to the years following the Second World War. It is an attempt to view the history of Islam as a cultural whole presenting the historical, theological, philosophical, political, economic, scientific, military and artistic elements of Islamic civilization. There are numerous maps and a section of photographs (many previously unpublished) illustrating Islamic art and architecture.

Band III: 1968/69. Problems of Land Use in South Asia

VIII, 138 Seiten mit zahlreichen Abbildungen und 21 Kunstdrucktafeln, broschiert DM 56,—

The third volume of the Yearbook of the South Asia Institute comprises nine papers dealing with 'Problems of Land Use in South Asia'; the contributions are based on field work in Afghanistan, India, Ceylon, East Pakistan, Thailand, the Philippines and New Guinea and deal with aerial surveys and rural development, climate and plantation crops, the effect of human population on forests, various aspects of shifting cultivation and pyrethrum cultivation as an attempt at development etc.

In addition, the volume contains four preliminary reports on field work concerned with other topics, ranging from ethnological research in Afghanistan and India to aspects of preservation of monuments of art in Nepal.
