GENERAL INDEX

Accius, 62, 75, 113–14, 322	as actor, 138-44
acting	as copy of Hector, 128–44
and agency, 308–9	Atreus
and deception, 37, 53–4, 81–2, 211–16	and constantia, 83–8
and family models, 111–14, 128, 139,	and deception, 78–83
142–3, See also 'exemplarity'	and decorum, 70–8, 84, 87–8 and selfhood, 18, 25–6, 38, 40–1,	and fullness/satisfaction, 312–15
69–70, 73–5	and masculinity, 309–12, 314–15 and the body, 181, 193–4, 212–13, 260–1	and metatheatre, 66–9, 320–1
Adamantius, 195, 201	and inctationatic, 00–9, 320–1 and paternity, 95–6, 316–17, 319–20 and prior literary models, 62–3, 75–6, adultery, 79, 95, 207, 213, 307, 310, 316 Aeneas, 115–17, 133–5	32I-4
Agamemnon	and recognition, 60–3, 94–7
in Thyestes , 95, 316–17	and self-coherence, 78–83
in Troades, 117–28	and the maius motif, 321–5 agency. See also 'acting'	and the Stoic sapiens, 83–8, 287–9 and Greimas' actant, 303-4	as actor, 66-70
and implied humanness, 10-17, 233-4,	as avenger, 307-29
263-5, 290-331, 337-45	as dramaturg/playwright, 63-6, 320-1
and revenge, 292-329	linguistic prowess of, 78-82, 319
and suicide, 329-45	Attalus
Agrippina, 344–5	teacher of Seneca, 268–9
Agrippina, 344–5 Amphitryon, 153–71, 176–7	teacher of Seneca, 268–9 audience
- 11
Amphitryon, 153–71, 176–7	audience
Amphitryon, 153–71, 176–7 Andromache, 118, 121, 128–42	audience and actors, 308–9
Amphitryon, 153–71, 176–7 Andromache, 118, 121, 128–42 anger	audience and actors, 308–9 and bodily signals, 181–2, 192–3, Amphitryon, 153–71, 176–7 Andromache, 118, 121, 128–42 anger in de Ira , 188–91, 225	audience and actors, 308–9 and bodily signals, 181–2, 192–3, 212–16, 219, 221, 245–7
Amphitryon, 153–71, 176–7 Andromache, 118, 121, 128–42 anger in de Ira , 188–91, 225 of Atreus, 68–9, 88	audience and actors, 308–9 and bodily signals, 181–2, 192–3, 212–16, 219, 221, 245–7 and dramatic irony, 80–1
Amphitryon, 153–71, 176–7 Andromache, 118, 121, 128–42 anger in de Ira , 188–91, 225 of Atreus, 68–9, 88 of Hippolytus, 286–7 of Medea, 189–91 Apollo, 340–1	audience and actors, 308–9 and bodily signals, 181–2, 192–3, 212–16, 219, 221, 245–7 and dramatic irony, 80–1 and dramaturgy, 210 and Hercules , 165–9 and metapoetics, 29–31
Amphitryon, 153–71, 176–7 Andromache, 118, 121, 128–42 anger in de Ira , 188–91, 225 of Atreus, 68–9, 88 of Hippolytus, 286–7 of Medea, 189–91 Apollo, 340–1 Aristotle, 23	audience and actors, 308–9 and bodily signals, 181–2, 192–3, 212–16, 219, 221, 245–7 and dramatic irony, 80–1 and dramaturgy, 210 and Hercules , 165–9 and metapoetics, 29–31 and metatheatre, 62–6, 140–1
Amphitryon, 153–71, 176–7 Andromache, 118, 121, 128–42 anger in de Ira , 188–91, 225 of Atreus, 68–9, 88 of Hippolytus, 286–7 of Medea, 189–91 Apollo, 340–1 Aristotle, 23 on tragic recognition scenes, 27, 61	audience and actors, 308–9 and bodily signals, 181–2, 192–3, 212–16, 219, 221, 245–7 and dramatic irony, 80–1 and dramaturgy, 210 and Hercules , 165–9 and metapoetics, 29–31 and metatheatre, 62–6, 140–1 and Oedipus , 20–1, 245–7, 249–54,
Amphitryon, 153–71, 176–7 Andromache, 118, 121, 128–42 anger in de Ira, 188–91, 225 of Atreus, 68–9, 88 of Hippolytus, 286–7 of Medea, 189–91 Apollo, 340–1 Aristotle, 23 on tragic recognition scenes, 27, 61 Arria, wife of Thrasea Paetus	audience and actors, 308–9 and bodily signals, 181–2, 192–3, 212–16, 219, 221, 245–7 and dramatic irony, 80–1 and dramaturgy, 210 and Hercules , 165–9 and metapoetics, 29–31 and metatheatre, 62–6, 140–1 and Oedipus , 20–1, 245–7, 249–54, 258–60, 342–3
Amphitryon, 153–71, 176–7 Andromache, 118, 121, 128–42 anger in de Ira, 188–91, 225 of Atreus, 68–9, 88 of Hippolytus, 286–7 of Medea, 189–91 Apollo, 340–1 Aristotle, 23 on tragic recognition scenes, 27, 61 Arria, wife of Thrasea Paetus and exemplarity, 151	audience and actors, 308–9 and bodily signals, 181–2, 192–3, 212–16, 219, 221, 245–7 and dramatic irony, 80–1 and dramaturgy, 210 and Hercules , 165–9 and metapoetics, 29–31 and metatheatre, 62–6, 140–1 and Oedipus , 20–1, 245–7, 249–54,
Amphitryon, 153–71, 176–7 Andromache, 118, 121, 128–42 anger in de Ira, 188–91, 225 of Atreus, 68–9, 88 of Hippolytus, 286–7 of Medea, 189–91 Apollo, 340–1 Aristotle, 23 on tragic recognition scenes, 27, 61 Arria, wife of Thrasea Paetus and exemplarity, 151 Ascanius, 115–16, 133–5	audience and actors, 308–9 and bodily signals, 181–2, 192–3, 212–16, 219, 221, 245–7 and dramatic irony, 80–1 and dramaturgy, 210 and Hercules, 165–9 and metapoetics, 29–31 and metatheatre, 62–6, 140–1 and Oedipus, 20–1, 245–7, 249–54, 258–60, 342–3 and Phaedra, 192–5, 210, 213–16 and sympathetic engagement, 2–3, 14,
Amphitryon, 153–71, 176–7 Andromache, 118, 121, 128–42 anger in de Ira, 188–91, 225 of Atreus, 68–9, 88 of Hippolytus, 286–7 of Medea, 189–91 Apollo, 340–1 Aristotle, 23 on tragic recognition scenes, 27, 61 Arria, wife of Thrasea Paetus and exemplarity, 151 Ascanius, 115–16, 133–5 Astyages	audience and actors, 308–9 and bodily signals, 181–2, 192–3, 212–16, 219, 221, 245–7 and dramatic irony, 80–1 and dramaturgy, 210 and Hercules, 165–9 and metapoetics, 29–31 and metatheatre, 62–6, 140–1 and Oedipus, 20–1, 245–7, 249–54, 258–60, 342–3 and Phaedra, 192–5, 210, 213–16 and sympathetic engagement, 2–3, 14, 193, 251, 304, 328
Amphitryon, 153–71, 176–7 Andromache, 118, 121, 128–42 anger in de Ira, 188–91, 225 of Atreus, 68–9, 88 of Hippolytus, 286–7 of Medea, 189–91 Apollo, 340–1 Aristotle, 23 on tragic recognition scenes, 27, 61 Arria, wife of Thrasea Paetus and exemplarity, 151 Ascanius, 115–16, 133–5 Astyages in de Ira, 331	audience and actors, 308–9 and bodily signals, 181–2, 192–3, 212–16, 219, 221, 245–7 and dramatic irony, 80–1 and dramaturgy, 210 and Hercules, 165–9 and metapoetics, 29–31 and metatheatre, 62–6, 140–1 and Oedipus, 20–1, 245–7, 249–54, 258–60, 342–3 and Phaedra, 192–5, 210, 213–16 and sympathetic engagement, 2–3, 14, 193, 251, 304, 328 and Thyestes, 62–70, 80–1
Amphitryon, 153–71, 176–7 Andromache, 118, 121, 128–42 anger in de Ira, 188–91, 225 of Atreus, 68–9, 88 of Hippolytus, 286–7 of Medea, 189–91 Apollo, 340–1 Aristotle, 23 on tragic recognition scenes, 27, 61 Arria, wife of Thrasea Paetus and exemplarity, 151 Ascanius, 115–16, 133–5 Astyages in de Ira, 331 Astyanax	audience and actors, 308–9 and bodily signals, 181–2, 192–3, 212–16, 219, 221, 245–7 and dramatic irony, 80–1 and dramaturgy, 210 and Hercules, 165–9 and metapoetics, 29–31 and metatheatre, 62–6, 140–1 and Oedipus, 20–1, 245–7, 249–54, 258–60, 342–3 and Phaedra, 192–5, 210, 213–16 and sympathetic engagement, 2–3, 14, 193, 251, 304, 328 and Thyestes, 62–70, 80–1 and Troades, 139–44
Amphitryon, 153–71, 176–7 Andromache, 118, 121, 128–42 anger in de Ira, 188–91, 225 of Atreus, 68–9, 88 of Hippolytus, 286–7 of Medea, 189–91 Apollo, 340–1 Aristotle, 23 on tragic recognition scenes, 27, 61 Arria, wife of Thrasea Paetus and exemplarity, 151 Ascanius, 115–16, 133–5 Astyages in de Ira, 331	audience and actors, 308–9 and bodily signals, 181–2, 192–3, 212–16, 219, 221, 245–7 and dramatic irony, 80–1 and dramaturgy, 210 and Hercules, 165–9 and metapoetics, 29–31 and metatheatre, 62–6, 140–1 and Oedipus, 20–1, 245–7, 249–54, 258–60, 342–3 and Phaedra, 192–5, 210, 213–16 and sympathetic engagement, 2–3, 14, 193, 251, 304, 328 and Thyestes, 62–70, 80–1

internal, 33, 139–41, 252–3 reception of theatrical performance, 18–19 Augustus, 109–10, 173, 277–8 autarkeia, 265 and Atreus, 96–7, 287–9 and Hippolytus, 284–7 and Medea, 60, 289–99 and suicide, 331–7 and the Senecan sapiens, 265–83 autonomy. See also 'agency', 'autarkeia' and fictional beings, 1–2, 263–5, 299–302, 304–9, 340–3 and identity formation, 263, 292–9, 309–20 and individual supremacy, 265–74 and literary belatedness, 321–4 and self-harm, 337–45 and self-mastery, 205–74, 284–7 and Senecan isolationism, 274–92 and stage performance, 308–9 and the body, 227–8, 297, 311, 341–2 and the Senecan sapiens, 265–83 and tyranny, 265–74, 287–8, 318–20 avenger, the as instrument, 307–8, 322–3, 328–9 complicity with the audience, 302–3 similarity to actor, 308–9 similarity to director/author, 300, 304–7, 320–1 Barthes, Roland, 12, 222 behaviour and acting, 70 and beauty, 224–6 and deception, 212 and decorum, 35–42, 49–51, 70–8 and Homer's Thersites, 241–2 and intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, 147–50 and Stoic wittue, 224–7 and Vergil's Dido, 204–5 as index of identity, 181–262 of Astyanax, 129–31, 136–7 of Hippolytus, 224–35 of Oedipus, 243–9, 254–60 of Phaedra, 183–4, 191–5, 202–17 of Thyestes, 64–5, 92–3, 311–12, 324–5, 330–1 physiognomic and pathagnomic interpretations of, 195–202 similarity to a text, 190, 201, 230–3, 245–7, 254–60 Brutus Lucius Junius, 105–8, 109, 113–14 Marcus	audience (cont.)	and anger, 188–90
Augustus, 109–10, 173, 277–8 autarkeia, 265 and Atreus, 96–7, 287–9 and Hippolytus, 284–7 and Medea, 60, 289–99 and suicide, 331–7 and the Senecan sapiens, 265–83 autonomy. See also 'agency', 'autarkeia' and fictional beings, 1–2, 263–5, 299–302, 304–9, 340–3 and identity formation, 263, 292–9, 309–20 and individual supremacy, 265–74 and literary belatedness, 321–4 and self-harm, 337–45 and self-harm, 337–45 and senecan isolationism, 274–92 and stage performance, 308–9 and the body, 227–8, 297, 311, 341–2 and the body, 227–8, 297, 311, 341–2 and the Senecan sapiens, 265–83 and tyranny, 265–74, 284–7 and Senecan isolationism, 274–92 and stage performance, 308–9 and tyranny, 265–74, 287–8, 318–20 avenger, the as instrument, 307–8, 322–3, 328–9 complicity with the audience, 302–3 similarity to actor, 308–9 similarity to director/author, 300, 304–7, 320–1 Barthes, Roland, 12, 222 behaviour and acting, 70 and beauty, 224–6 and decorum, 35–42, 49–51, 70–8 and Homer's Thersites, 241–2 and intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, 147–50 and physiognomy, 195–201 and Senecan constantia, 83–8	internal, 33, 139-41, 252-3	and interiority, 188-9, 191-5, 201-10
autarkeia, 265 and Atreus, 96–7, 287–9 and Hippolytus, 284–7 and Medea, 60, 289–99 and suicide, 331–7 and the Senecan sapiens, 265–83 autonomy. See also 'agency', 'autarkeia' and fictional beings, 1–2, 263–5, 299–302, 304–9, 340–3 and identity formation, 263, 292–9, 309–20 and individual supremacy, 265–74 and self-harm, 337–45 and self-mastery, 265–74, 284–7 and Senecan isolationism, 274–92 and stage performance, 308–9 and the body, 227–8, 297, 311, 341–2 and the Senecan sapiens, 265–83 and tyranny, 265–74, 287–8, 318–20 avenger, the as instrument, 307–8, 322–3, 328–9 complicity with the audience, 302–3 similarity to actor, 308–9 similarity to director/author, 300, 304–7, 320–1 Barthes, Roland, 12, 222 behaviour and acting, 70 and beauty, 224–6 and decorum, 35–42, 49–51, 70–8 and Homer's Thersites, 241–2 and intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, 147–50 and physiognomy, 195–201 and Senecan constantia, 83–8 and Stoic virtue, 224–7 and Aregil's bido, 204–5 as index of identity, 181–262 of Astyanax, 129–31, 136–7 of Hippolytus, 224–35 of Oedipus, 243–9, 254–60 of Phaedra, 183–4, 191–5, 202–17 of Thyestes, 64–5, 92–3, 311–12, 324–5, 330–1 physiognomic and pathagnomic interpretations of, 195–202 similarity to a text, 190, 201, 230–3, 245–7, 254–60 Brutus Lucius Junius, 105–8, 109, 113–14 Marcus Junius, 105–8, 109, 113–14 Marcus Junius, 105–8, 109, 113–14 Marcus Junius, 105, 109, 113, 332–3 in Lucan, 144 in Plutarch, 160 Calchas, 32, 128 Caligula, 270, 288, 292, 336 Cato the Younger, 51–3, 55–6, 99–100, 110–11, 147–51, 332–3, 336 character, fictional and contingency, 1, 114, 263, 297–8, 300–2, 328, 343 and formalism, 4, 11 and metatheatre, 28–31, 35–6, 42, 62–9, 128, 138–44, 163, 16–9 and Atreus Junius, 105–8, 109, 113–14 Marcus Junius, 105–8, 109, 113–14 Marcus Junius, 105, 109, 113, 332–3 in Lucan, 144 in Plutarch, 160 Calchas, 32, 128 Caligula, 270, 288, 292, 336 Cato the Younger, 51–3, 55–6, 99–100, 110–11, 147–51, 332–3, 336 character, fictional and contingency, 1, 114, 263, 297–8, 300–2, 328, 343 and formalism, 4,	reception of theatrical performance, 18-19	and Stoic materialism, 186-90, 225-6,
and Atreus, 96–7, 287–9 and Hippolytus, 284–7 and Medea, 60, 289–99 and suicide, 331–7 and the Senecan sapiens, 265–83 autonomy. See also 'agency', 'autarkeia' and fictional beings, 1–2, 263–5, 299–302, 304–9, 340–3 and identity formation, 263, 292–9, 309–20 and individual supremacy, 265–74 and literary belatedness, 321–4 and self-harm, 337–45 and self-harm, 337–45 and Senecan isolationism, 274–92 and stage performance, 308–9 and the body, 227–8, 297, 311, 341–2 and the body, 227–8, 328–9 complicity with the audience, 302–3 similarity to director/author, 300, 304–7, 320–1 Barthes, Roland, 12, 222 behaviour and acting, 70 and beauty, 224–6 and decoption, 212 and decorum, 35–42, 49–51, 70–8 and Homer's Thersites, 241–2 and intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, 147–50 and physiognomy, 195–201 and Senecan constantia, 83–8 and Vergil's Dido, 204–5 as index of identity, 181–262 of Astyanax, 129–31, 136–7 of Hippolytus, 224–35 of Oedipus, 243–9, 254–60 of Phaedra, 183–4, 191–5, 202–17 of Thyestes, 64–5, 92–3, 311–12, 324–5, 330–1 Brutus Lucius Junius, 105–8, 109, 113–14 Marcus Junius, 105–8, 109, 113–14 Marcus Junius, 105–8, 109, 113–14 Brutus, the of Accius, 113–14 Caesar as title, 132 Caesar, Julius, 270, 272, 292, 336 Canus, Julius, 270, 272, 292, 336 Cato the Younger, 51–3, 55–6, 99–100, 110–11, 147–51, 332–3, 336 charactine fictional and contingency, 1, 114, 263, 297–8, 300–2, 328, 343 and formalism, 4, 11 and metatheatre, 28–31, 35–6, 42, 62–9, 128, 138–44, 163, 169–71, 211–15, 221–3, 252–4, 257–60, 304–7, 320–2, 341–3 and structuralism/poststructuralism, 9–14	Augustus, 109–10, 173, 277–8	228–9
and Atreus, 96–7, 287–9 and Hippolytus, 284–7 and Medea, 60, 289–99 and suicide, 331–7 and the Senecan sapiens, 265–83 autonomy. See also 'agency', 'autarkeia' and fictional beings, 1–2, 263–5, 299–302, 304–9, 340–3 and identity formation, 263, 292–9, 309–20 and individual supremacy, 265–74 and literary belatedness, 321–4 and self-harm, 337–45 and self-harm, 337–45 and Senecan isolationism, 274–92 and stage performance, 308–9 and the body, 227–8, 297, 311, 341–2 and the body, 227–8, 328–9 complicity with the audience, 302–3 similarity to director/author, 300, 304–7, 320–1 Barthes, Roland, 12, 222 behaviour and acting, 70 and beauty, 224–6 and decoption, 212 and decorum, 35–42, 49–51, 70–8 and Homer's Thersites, 241–2 and intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, 147–50 and physiognomy, 195–201 and Senecan constantia, 83–8 and Vergil's Dido, 204–5 as index of identity, 181–262 of Astyanax, 129–31, 136–7 of Hippolytus, 224–35 of Oedipus, 243–9, 254–60 of Phaedra, 183–4, 191–5, 202–17 of Thyestes, 64–5, 92–3, 311–12, 324–5, 330–1 Brutus Lucius Junius, 105–8, 109, 113–14 Marcus Junius, 105–8, 109, 113–14 Marcus Junius, 105–8, 109, 113–14 Brutus, the of Accius, 113–14 Caesar as title, 132 Caesar, Julius, 270, 272, 292, 336 Canus, Julius, 270, 272, 292, 336 Cato the Younger, 51–3, 55–6, 99–100, 110–11, 147–51, 332–3, 336 charactine fictional and contingency, 1, 114, 263, 297–8, 300–2, 328, 343 and formalism, 4, 11 and metatheatre, 28–31, 35–6, 42, 62–9, 128, 138–44, 163, 169–71, 211–15, 221–3, 252–4, 257–60, 304–7, 320–2, 341–3 and structuralism/poststructuralism, 9–14	autarkeia, 265	and Stoic virtue, 224-7
and Medea, 60, 289–99 and suicide, 331–7 and the Senecan sapiens, 265–83 autonomy. See also 'agency', 'autarkeia' and fictional beings, 1–2, 263–5, 299–302, 304–9, 340–3 and identity formation, 263, 292–9, 309–20 and individual supremacy, 265–74 and literary belatedness, 321–4 and self-harm, 337–45 and self-mastery, 265–74, 284–7 and Seneca's views on suicide, 329–37 and Senecan isolationism, 274–92 and the body, 227–8, 297, 311, 341–2 and the Senecan sapiens, 265–83 and tyranny, 265–74, 287–8, 318–20 avenger, the as instrument, 307–8, 322–3, 328–9 complicity with the audience, 302–3 similarity to actor, 308–9 similarity to director/author, 300, 304–7, 320–1 Barthes, Roland, 12, 222 behaviour and acting, 70 and beauty, 224–6 and deception, 212 and decorum, 35–42, 49–51, 70–8 and Homer's Thersites, 241–2 and intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, 147–50 and physiognomy, 195–201 and Senecan constantia, 83–8 of Astyanax, 129–31, 136–7 of Hippolytus, 224–35 of Oedipus, 243–9, 254–60 of Phaedra, 183–4, 191–5, 202–17 of Thyestes, 64–5, 92–3, 311–12, 324–5, 330–1 physiognomic and pathagnomic interpretations of, 195–202 similarity to a text, 190, 201, 230–3, 245–7, 254–60 Brutus Lucius Junius, 105–8, 109, 113–14 Marcus Junius, 105–8, 109, 113–14 Marcus Junius, 105–8, 109, 113–14 Brutus, the of Accius, 113–14 Caesar as title, 132 Caesar, Julius, 105, 109, 113, 332–3 in Lucan, 144 in Plutarch, 160 Calchas, 32, 128 Caligula, 270, 288, 292, 336 Canus, Julius, 270, 272, 292, 336 Cato the Younger, 51–3, 55–6, 99–100, 110–11, 147–51, 332–3, 336 character, fictional and contingency, 1, 114, 263, 297–8, 300–2, 328, 343 and formalism, 4, 11 and metatheatre, 28–31, 35–6, 42, 62–9, and physiognomy, 195–201 and Senecan constantia, 83–8	and Atreus, 96-7, 287-9
and suicide, 331–7 and the Senecan sapiens, 265–83 autonomy. See also 'agency', 'autarkeia' and fictional beings, 1–2, 263–5, 299–302, 304–9, 340–3 and identity formation, 263, 292–9, 309–20 and individual supremacy, 265–74 and literary belatedness, 321–4 and self-harm, 337–45 and self-mastery, 265–74, 284–7 and Senecan's views on suicide, 329–37 and Senecan isolationism, 274–92 and stage performance, 308–9 and the body, 227–8, 297, 311, 341–2 and the Senecan sapiens, 265–83 and tyranny, 265–74, 287–8, 318–20 avenger, the as instrument, 307–8, 322–3, 328–9 complicity with the audience, 302–3 similarity to actor, 308–9 similarity to director/author, 300, 304–7, 320–1 Barthes, Roland, 12, 222 behaviour and acting, 70 and beauty, 224–6 and deception, 212 and decorum, 35–42, 49–51, 70–8 and Homer's Thersites, 241–2 and intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, 147–50 and physiognomy, 195–201 and Senecan constantia, 83–8	and Hippolytus, 284-7	as index of identity, 181-262
and suicide, 331–7 and the Senecan sapiens, 265–83 autonomy. See also 'agency', 'autarkeia' and fictional beings, 1–2, 263–5, 299–302, 304–9, 340–3 and identity formation, 263, 292–9, 309–20 and individual supremacy, 265–74 and literary belatedness, 321–4 and self-harm, 337–45 and senecan's views on suicide, 329–37 and Senecan's views on suicide, 329–37 and Senecan isolationism, 274–92 and stage performance, 308–9 and the body, 227–8, 297, 311, 341–2 and the Senecan sapiens, 265–83 and tyranny, 265–74, 287–8, 318–20 avenger, the as instrument, 307–8, 322–3, 328–9 complicity with the audience, 302–3 similarity to actor, 308–9 similarity to director/author, 300, 304–7, 320–1 Barthes, Roland, 12, 222 behaviour and acting, 70 and beauty, 224–6 and deception, 212 and decorum, 35–42, 49–51, 70–8 and Homer's Thersites, 241–2 and intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, 147–50 and physiognomy, 195–201 and Senecan constantia, 83–8	and Medea, 60, 289–99	of Astyanax, 129–31, 136–7
and the Senecan sapiens , 265–83 autonomy. See also 'agency', ' autarkeia ' and fictional beings, 1–2, 263–5, 299–302, 304–9, 340–3 and identity formation, 263, 292–9, 309–20 and individual supremacy, 265–74 and literary belatedness, 321–4 and self-harm, 337–45 and self-harm, 337–45 and self-mastery, 265–74, 284–7 and Seneca's views on suicide, 329–37 and Senecan isolationism, 274–92 and stage performance, 308–9 and the body, 227–8, 297, 311, 341–2 and the Senecan sapiens , 265–83 and tyranny, 265–74, 287–8, 318–20 avenger, the as instrument, 307–8, 322–3, 328–9 complicity with the audience, 302–3 similarity to actor, 308–9 similarity to director/author, 300, 304–7, 320–1 casear Barthes, Roland, 12, 222 behaviour and acting, 70 and beauty, 224–6 and deception, 212 and decorum , 35–42, 49–51, 70–8 and Homer's Thersites, 241–2 and intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, 147–50 and physiognomy, 195–201 and Senecan constantia , 83–8	and suicide, 331–7	of Hippolytus, 224–35 autonomy. See also 'agency', 'autarkeia' and fictional beings, 1–2, 263–5, 299–302, 304–9, 340–3 and identity formation, 263, 292–9, 309–20 and individual supremacy, 265–74 and literary belatedness, 321–4 and self-harm, 337–45 and self-mastery, 265–74, 284–7 and Seneca's views on suicide, 329–37 and Senecan isolationism, 274–92 and stage performance, 308–9 and the body, 227–8, 297, 311, 341–2 and the Senecan sapiens, 265–83 and tyranny, 265–74, 287–8, 318–20 avenger, the as instrument, 307–8, 322–3, 328–9 complicity with the audience, 302–3 similarity to actor, 308–9 similarity to director/author, 300, 304–7, 320–1 Calchas, 32, 128 Caligula, 270, 288, 292, 336 Canus, Julius, 270, 272, 292, 336 Cato the Younger, 51–3, 55–6, 99–100, 110–11, 147–51, 332–3, 336 character, fictional and contingency, 1, 114, 263, 297–8, 300–2, 328, 343 and formalism, 4, 11 and metatheatre, 28–31, 35–6, 42, 62–9, 128, 138–44, 163, 169–71, 211–15, 221–3, 252–4, 257–60, 304–7, 320–2, 341–3 and structuralism/poststructuralism, 9–14 and fictional beings, 1–2, 263–5, 299–302, 304–9, 340–3 and identity formation, 263, 292–9, 309–20 and individual supremacy, 265–74 and literary belatedness, 321–4 and self-harm, 337–45 and self-mastery, 265–74, 284–7 and Seneca isolationism, 274–92 and stage performance, 308–9 and the body, 227–8, 297, 311, 341–2 and the Senecan sapiens, 265–83 and tyranny, 265–74, 287–8, 318–20 avenger, the as instrument, 307–8, 322–3, 328–9 complicity with the audience, 302–3 similarity to actor, 308–9 similarity to director/author, 300, 304–7, 320–1 Calchas, 32, 128 Caligula, 270, 288, 292, 336 Canus, Julius, 270, 272, 292, 336 character, fictional and contingency, 1, 114, 263, 297–8, 300–2, 328, 343 and formalism, 4, 11 and metatheterte, 28–31, 35–6, 42, 62–9, 128, 138–44, 163, 169–71, 211–15, 221–3, 252–4, 257–60, 304–7, 320–2, 341–3 and structuralism/poststructuralism, 9–14
330–1 and identity formation, 263, 292–9, 309–20 and individual supremacy, 265–74 and literary belatedness, 321–4 and self-harm, 337–45 and self-mastery, 265–74, 284–7 and Seneca's views on suicide, 329–37 and Senecan isolationism, 274–92 and stage performance, 308–9 and the body, 227–8, 297, 311, 341–2 and the Senecan sapiens, 265–83 and tyranny, 265–74, 287–8, 318–20 avenger, the as instrument, 307–8, 322–3, 328–9 complicity with the audience, 302–3 similarity to director/author, 300, 304–7, 320–1 Barthes, Roland, 12, 222 behaviour and acting, 70 and beauty, 224–6 and deception, 212 and decorum, 35–42, 49–51, 70–8 and Homer's Thersites, 241–2 and intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, 147–50 and Physiognomic and pathagnomic interpretations of, 195–202 similarity to a text, 190, 201, 230–3, 245–7, 254–60 Brutus Brutus, the of Accius, 113–14 brutus, the of Accius, 113–14 caesar as title, 132 Caesar, Julius, 105, 109, 113, 332–3 in Lucan, 144 in Plutarch, 160 Calchas, 32, 128 Caligula, 270, 288, 292, 336 Canus, Julius, 270, 272, 292, 336 Cato the Younger, 51–3, 55–6, 99–100, 110–11, 147–51, 332–3, 330–2, 328–3 and formalism, 4, 11 and metatheatre, 28–31, 35–6, 42, 62–9, 128, 138–44, 163, 169–71, 2111–15, 221–3, 252–4, 257–60, 304–7, 320–2, 341–3 and structuralism/poststructuralism, 9–14
and identity formation, 263, 292–9, 309–20 and individual supremacy, 265–74 and literary belatedness, 321–4 and self-harm, 337–45 and self-mastery, 265–74, 284–7 and Seneca's views on suicide, 329–37 and Senecan isolationism, 274–92 and stage performance, 308–9 and the body, 227–8, 297, 311, 341–2 and the Senecan sapiens, 265–83 and tyranny, 265–74, 287–8, 318–20 avenger, the as instrument, 307–8, 322–3, 328–9 complicity with the audience, 302–3 similarity to director/author, 300, 304–7, 320–1 Barthes, Roland, 12, 222 behaviour and acting, 70 and beauty, 224–6 and deception, 212 and decorum, 35–42, 49–51, 70–8 and Homer's Thersites, 241–2 and intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, 147–50 and physiognomy, 195–201 and Senecan constantia, 83–8 physiognomic and pathagnomic interpretations of, 195–202 similarity to a text, 190, 201, 230–3, 245–7, 254–60 Brutus Lucius Junius, 105–8, 109, 113–14 Marcus Junius, 105–8, 109, 113–14 Marcus Junius, 105–8, 109, 113–14 Brutus, the of Accius, 113–14 of Accius, 113–14 caesar as title, 132 Caesar, Julius, 105, 109, 113, 332–3 in Lucan, 144 in Plutarch, 160 Calchas, 32, 128 Caligula, 270, 288, 292, 336 Cato the Younger, 51–3, 55–6, 99–100, 110–11, 147–51, 332–3, 336 character, fictional and contingency, 1, 114, 263, 297–8, 300–2, 328, 343 and formalism, 4, 11 and metatheatre, 28–31, 35–6, 42, 62–9, 128, 138–44, 163, 160–71, 211–15, 221–3, 252–4, 257–60, 304–7, 320–2, 341–3 and structuralism/poststructuralism, 9–14	_
and individual supremacy, 265–74 and literary belatedness, 321–4 and self-harm, 337–45 and self-mastery, 265–74, 284–7 and Seneca isolationism, 274–92 and stage performance, 308–9 and the body, 227–8, 297, 311, 341–2 and the Senecan sapiens, 265–83 and tyranny, 265–74, 287–8, 318–20 avenger, the as instrument, 307–8, 322–3, 328–9 complicity with the audience, 302–3 similarity to actor, 308–9 similarity to director/author, 300, 304–7, 320–1 Barthes, Roland, 12, 222 behaviour and acting, 70 and beauty, 224–6 and decorum, 35–42, 49–51, 70–8 and Homer's Thersites, 241–2 and homer's Thersites, 241–2 and physiognomy, 195–201 and Senecan isolationism, 274–92 similarity to a text, 190, 201, 230–3, 245–7, 254–60 Brutus Lucius Junius, 105–8, 109, 113–14 Marcus Junius, 105–8, 109, 113–14		physiognomic and pathagnomic and literary belatedness, 321–4 and self-harm, 337–45 and self-mastery, 265–74, 284–7 and Seneca's views on suicide, 329–37 and Senecan isolationism, 274–92 and stage performance, 308–9 and the body, 227–8, 297, 311, 341–2 and the Senecan sapiens, 265–83 and tyranny, 265–74, 287–8, 318–20 avenger, the as instrument, 307–8, 322–3, 328–9 complicity with the audience, 302–3 similarity to actor, 308–9 similarity to director/author, 300, 304–7, 320–1 Barthes, Roland, 12, 222 behaviour and acting, 70 and beauty, 224–6 and decorum, 35–42, 49–51, 70–8 and Homer's Thersites, 241–2 and intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, 147–50 and physiognomy, 195–201 and Senecan constantia, 83–8 similarity to a text, 190, 201, 230–3, 245–7, 254–60 Brutus Lucius Junius, 105–8, 109, 113–14 Marcus Junius, 10 and self-harm, 337–45 and self-mastery, 265–74, 284–7 and Seneca's views on suicide, 329–37 and Senecan isolationism, 274–92 and stage performance, 308–9 and the body, 227–8, 297, 311, 341–2 and the Senecan sapiens, 265–83 and tyranny, 265–74, 287–8, 318–20 avenger, the as instrument, 307–8, 322–3, 328–9 complicity with the audience, 302–3 similarity to actor, 308–9 similarity to director/author, 300, 304–7, 320–1 Barthes, Roland, 12, 222 behaviour and acting, 70 and beauty, 224–6 and deception, 212 and decorum, 35–42, 49–51, 70–8 and Homer's Thersites, 241–2 and intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, 147–50 and Physiognomy, 195–201 and Senecan constantia, 83–8 and Senecan isolationism, 274–92 Brutus Lucius Junius, 105–8, 109, 113–14 Marcus Junius, 1		* * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * *
and self-mastery, 265–74, 284–7 and Seneca's views on suicide, 329–37 and Senecan isolationism, 274–92 and stage performance, 308–9 and the body, 227–8, 297, 311, 341–2 and the Senecan sapiens, 265–83 and tyranny, 265–74, 287–8, 318–20 avenger, the as instrument, 307–8, 322–3, 328–9 complicity with the audience, 302–3 similarity to actor, 308–9 similarity to director/author, 300, 304–7, 320–1 Barthes, Roland, 12, 222 behaviour and acting, 70 and beauty, 224–6 and deception, 212 and decorum, 35–42, 49–51, 70–8 and Homer's Thersites, 241–2 and intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, 147–50 and Physiognomy, 195–201 and Senecan constantia, 83–8 Brutus Lucius Junius, 105–8, 109, 113–14 Marcus Junius, 105–8, 109, 113–14 Brutus Lucius Junius, 105–8, 109, 113–14 Brutus Accius, 113–14 Accius Junius, 105–8, 109, 113–14 Brutus Lucius Junius, 105–8, 109, 11	and self-harm, 337–45 and Seneca's views on suicide, 329–37 and Senecan isolationism, 274–92 and stage performance, 308–9 and the body, 227–8, 297, 311, 341–2 and the Senecan sapiens, 265–83 and tyranny, 265–74, 287–8, 318–20 avenger, the as instrument, 307–8, 322–3, 328–9 complicity with the audience, 302–3 similarity to actor, 308–9 similarity to director/author, 300, 304–7, 320–1 Barthes, Roland, 12, 222 behaviour and acting, 70 and beauty, 224–6 and deception, 212 and decorum, 35–42, 49–51, 70–8 and Homer's Thersites, 241–2 and intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, 147–50 and Physiognomy, 195–201 and Senecan constantia, 83–8 Lucius Junius, 105–8, 109, 113–14 Marcus Junius, 105–8, 109, 113–14 Brutus, the of Accius, 113–14 Caesar as title, 132 Caesar, Julius, 105, 109, 113, 332–3 in Lucan, 144 in Plutarch, 160 Calchas, 32, 128 Caligula, 270, 288, 292, 336 Cato the Younger, 51–3, 55–6, 99–100, 110–11, 147–51, 332–3, 336 character, fictional and contingency, 1, 114, 263, 297–8, 300–2, 328, 343 and formalism, 4, 11 and metatheatre, 28–31, 35–6, 42, 62–9, 128, 138–44, 163, 169–71, 211–15, 221–3, 252–4, 257–60, 304–7, 320–2, 341–3 and structuralism/poststructuralism, 9–14 and Senecan isolationism, 274–92 and stage performance, 308–9 and the body, 227–8, 297, 311, 341–2 and the Senecan sapiens, 265–83 and tyranny, 265–74, 287–8, 318–20 avenger, the as instrument, 307–8, 322–3, 328–9 complicity with the audience, 302–3 similarity to actor, 308–9 similarity to director/author, 300, 304–7, 320–1 Caesar, Julius, 105, 109, 113, 332–3 in Lucan, 144 in Plutarch, 160 Calchas, 32, 128 Caligula, 270, 288, 292, 336 Canus, Julius, 270, 272, 292, 336 Canus, Julius, 270, 272, 292, 336 Cato the Younger, 51–3, 55–6, 99–100, 110–11, 147–51, 332–3, 336 character, fictional and contingency, 1, 114, 263, 297–8, and deception, 212 and decorum, 35–42, 49–51, 70–8 and Homer's Thersites, 241–2 and intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, 147–50 and physiognomy, 195–201 and Senecan constantia, 83–8		Lucius Junius, 105–8, 109, 113–14 and stage performance, 308–9 and the body, 227–8, 297, 311, 341–2 and the Senecan sapiens, 265–83 and tyranny, 265–74, 287–8, 318–20 avenger, the as instrument, 307–8, 322–3, 328–9 complicity with the audience, 302–3 similarity to actor, 308–9 similarity to director/author, 300, 304–7, 320–1 Calchas, 32, 128 Caligula, 270, 288, 292, 336 Canus, Julius, 270, 272, 292, 336 Canus, Julius, 270, 272, 292, 336 Cato the Younger, 51–3, 55–6, 99–100, 110–11, 147–51, 332–3, 336 character, fictional and acting, 70 and beauty, 224–6 and deception, 212 and decorum, 35–42, 49–51, 70–8 and Homer's Thersites, 241–2 and intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, 147–50 and physiognomy, 195–201 and Senecan constantia, 83–8 Brutus, the of Accius, 113–14 caesar as title, 132 Caesar, Julius, 105, 109, 113, 332–3 in Lucan, 144 in Plutarch, 160 Calchas, 32, 128 Caligula, 270, 288, 292, 336 Cato the Younger, 51–3, 55–6, 99–100, 110–11, 147–51, 332–3, 336 character, fictional and contingency, 1, 114, 263, 297–8, 300–2, 328, 343 and formalism, 4, 11 and metatheatre, 28–31, 35–6, 42, 62–9, 128, 138–44, 163, 169–71, 211–15, 221–3, 252–4, 257–60, 304–7, 320–2, 341–3 and structuralism/poststructuralism, 9–14 and the body, 227–8, 297, 311, 341–2 and the Senecan sapiens, 265–83 and tyranny, 265–74, 287–8, 318–20 avenger, the as instrument, 307–8, 322–3, 328–9 complicity with the audience, 302–3 similarity to actor, 308–9 similarity to director/author, 300, 304–7, 320–1 Caesar, Julius, 105, 109, 113, 332–3 in Lucan, 144 in Plutarch, 160 Calchas, 32, 128 Caligula, 270, 288, 292, 336 Canus, Julius, 270, 272, 292, 336 Canus, Julius, 270, 272, 292, 336 Cato the Younger, 51–3, 55–6, 99–100, 110–11, 147–51, 332–3, 336 character, fictional and acting, 70 and beauty, 224–6 and deception, 212 and decorum, 35–42, 49–51, 70–8 and Homer's Thersites, 241–2 and intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, 147–50 and physiognomy, 195–201 and Senecan constantia, 83–8 of Accius, 113–14 caesar as title, 132 Caesar, Julius, 105, 109, 113, 332–3 in Lucan, 144 in Plutarch, 160 Calchas, 32, 128 Caligula, 270, 288, 292, 336 Cato the Younger, 51–3, 55–6, 99–100, 110–11, 147–51, 332–3, 336 character, fictional and contingency, 1, 114, 263, 297–8, 300–2, 328, 343 and formalism, 4, 11 and metatheatre, 28–31, 35–6, 42, 62–9, 128, 138–44, 163, 169–71, 211–15, 221–3, 252–4, 257–60, 304–7, 320–2, 341–3 and structuralism/poststructuralism, 9–14 and the Senecan sapiens, 265–83 and tyranny, 265–74, 287–8, 318–20 avenger, the and tyranny, 265–74, 287–8, 318–20 avenger, the as instrument, 307–8, 322–3, 328–9 complicity with the audience, 302–3 similarity to actor, 308–9 similarity to director/author, 300, 304–7, 320–1 Caesar, Julius, 105, 109, 113, 332–3 in Lucan, 144 in Plutarch, 160 Calchas, 32, 128 Caligula, 270, 288, 292, 336 Canus, Julius, 270, 272, 292, 336 Canus, Julius, 270, 272, 292, 336 Cato the Younger, 51–3, 55–6, 99–100, 110–11, 147–51, 332–3, 336 character, fictional and contingency, 1, 114, 263, 297–8, and deception, 212 and decorum, 35–42, 49–51, 70–8 and Homer's Thersites, 241–2 and intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, 147–50 and physiognomy, 195–201 and Senecan constantia, 83–8 caesar as title, 132 Caesar, Julius, 105, 109, 113, 332–3 in Lucan, 144 in Plutarch, 160 Calchas, 32, 128 Caligula, 270, 288, 292, 336 Cato the Younger, 51–3, 55–6, 99–100, 110–11, 147–51, 332–3, 336 character, fictional and contingency, 1, 114, 263, 297–8, 300–2, 328, 343 and formalism, 4, 11 and metatheatre, 28–31, 35–6, 42, 62–9, 128, 138–44, 163, 169–71, 211–15, 221–3, 252–4, 257–60, 304–7, 320–2, 341–3 and structuralism/poststructuralism, 9–14		, 3 1
avenger, the as instrument, 307–8, 322–3, 328–9 complicity with the audience, 302–3 similarity to actor, 308–9 similarity to director/author, 300, 304–7, 320–1 Barthes, Roland, 12, 222 behaviour and acting, 70 and beauty, 224–6 and deception, 212 and decorum, 35–42, 49–51, 70–8 and Homer's Thersites, 241–2 and intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, 147–50 and Senecan constantia, 83–8 as title, 132 Caesar, Julius, 105, 109, 113, 332–3 in Lucan, 144 in Plutarch, 160 Calchas, 32, 128 Caligula, 270, 288, 292, 336 Cato the Younger, 51–3, 55–6, 99–100, 110–11, 147–51, 332–3, 336 character, fictional and contingency, 1, 114, 263, 297–8, 300–2, 328, 343 and formalism, 4, 11 and metatheatre, 28–31, 35–6, 42, 62–9, 128, 138–44, 163, 169–71, 211–15, 221–3, 252–4, 257–60, 304–7, 320–2, 341–3 and structuralism/poststructuralism, 9–14		caesar as instrument, 307–8, 322–3, 328–9 complicity with the audience, 302–3 similarity to actor, 308–9 similarity to director/author, 300, 304–7, 320–1 Barthes, Roland, 12, 222 behaviour and acting, 70 and beauty, 224–6 and deception, 212 and decorum, 35–42, 49–51, 70–8 and Homer's Thersites, 241–2 and intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, 147–50 and Senecan constantia, 83–8 Caesar, Julius, 105, 109, 113, 332–3 in Lucan, 144 in Plutarch, 160 Calchas, 32, 128 Caligula, 270, 288, 292, 336 Cato the Younger, 51–3, 55–6, 99–100, 110–11, 147–51, 332–3, 336 character, fictional and contingency, 1, 114, 263, 297–8, 300–2, 328, 343 and formalism, 4, 11 and metatheatre, 28–31, 35–6, 42, 62–9, 128, 138–44, 163, 169–71, 211–15, 221–3, 252–4, 257–60, 304–7, 320–2, 341–3 and structuralism/poststructuralism, 9–14 complicity with the audience, 302–3 similarity to actor, 308–9 similarity to director/author, 300, 304–7, 320–1 Calchas, 32, 128 Caligula, 270, 288, 292, 336 Canus, Julius, 270, 272, 292, 336 Canus, Julius, 270, 282, 33, 36 Canus, Julius, 270, 272, 292, 336 Canus, Julius, 270,	  similarity to actor, 308–9 similarity to director/author, 300, 304–7, 320–1 Calchas, 32, 128 Caligula, 270, 288, 292, 336 Canus, Julius, 270, 272, 292, 336 Canus, Julius, 270, 272, 292, 336 Cato the Younger, 51–3, 55–6, 99–100, behaviour and acting, 70 and beauty, 224–6 and deception, 212 and decorum, 35–42, 49–51, 70–8 and Homer's Thersites, 241–2 and intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, 147–50 and physiognomy, 195–201 and Senecan constantia, 83–8 in Plutarch, 160 Calchas, 32, 128 Caligula, 270, 288, 292, 336 Cato the Younger, 51–3, 55–6, 99–100, 110–11, 147–51, 332–3, 336 character, fictional and contingency, 1, 114, 263, 297–8, 300–2, 328, 343 and formalism, 4, 11 and metatheatre, 28–31, 35–6, 42, 62–9, 128, 138–44, 163, 169–71, 211–15, 221–3, 252–4, 257–60, 304–7, 320–2, 341–3 and structuralism/poststructuralism, 9–14 similarity to director/author, 300, 304–7, 320–1 Calchas, 32, 128 Caligula, 270, 288, 292, 336 Canus, Julius, 270, 272, 292, 336 Canus, Julius, 270, 272, 292, 336 Cato the Younger, 51–3, 55–6, 99–100, behaviour and acting, 70 and beauty, 224–6 and deception, 212 and decorum, 35–42, 49–51, 70–8 and Homer's Thersites, 241–2 and intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, 147–50 and physiognomy, 195–201 and Senecan constantia, 83–8 Calchas, 32, 128 Caligula, 270, 288, 292, 336 Cato the Younger, 51–3, 55–6, 99–100, 110–11, 147–51, 332–3, 336 character, fictional and contingency, 1, 114, 263, 297–8, 300–2, 328, 343 and formalism, 4, 11 and metatheatre, 28–31, 35–6, 42, 62–9, 128, 138–44, 163, 169–71, 211–15, 221–3, 252–4, 257–60, 304–7, 320–2, 341–3 and structuralism/poststructuralism, 9–14 320–1 Caligula, 270, 288, 292, 336 Canus, Julius, 270, 272, 292, 336 Canus, Julius, 270, 272, 292, 336 Cato the Younger, 51–3, 55–6, 99–100, 110–11, 147–51, 332–3, 336 character, fictional and contingency, 1, 114, 263, 297–8, and deception, 212 and decorum, 35–42, 49–51, 70–8 and Homer's Thersites, 241–2 and intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, 147–50 and physiognomy, 195–201 and Senecan constantia, 83–8 Cato the Younger, 51–3, 55–6, 99–100, 100–11, 147–51, 332–3, 336 character, fictional and contingency, 1, 114, 263, 297–8, 300–2, 328, 343 and formalism, 4, 11 and metatheatre, 28–31, 35–6, 42, 62–9, 128, 138–44, 163, 169–71, 211–15, 221–3, 252–4, 257–60, 304–7, 320–2, 341–3 and structuralism/poststructuralism, 9–14
Canus, Julius, 270, 272, 292, 336 Barthes, Roland, 12, 222 behaviour and acting, 70 and beauty, 224–6 and deception, 212 and decorum, 35–42, 49–51, 70–8 and Homer's Thersites, 241–2 and intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, 147–50 and Physiognomy, 195–201 and Senecan constantia, 83–8 Canus, Julius, 270, 272, 292, 336 Cato the Younger, 51–3, 55–6, 99–100, 110–11, 147–51, 332–3, 336 character, fictional and contingency, I, 114, 263, 297–8, 300–2, 328, 343 and formalism, 4, 11 and metatheatre, 28–31, 35–6, 42, 62–9, 128, 138–44, 163, 169–71, 211–15, 221–3, 252–4, 257–60, 304–7, 320–2, 341–3 and structuralism/poststructuralism, 9–14
Barthes, Roland, 12, 222 behaviour and acting, 70 and beauty, 224–6 and deception, 212 and decorum, 35–42, 49–51, 70–8 and Intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, 147–50 and Senecan constantia, 83–8 Cato the Younger, 51–3, 55–6, 99–100, 110–11, 147–51, 332–3, 336 character, fictional and contingency, 1, 114, 263, 297–8, 300–2, 328, 343 and formalism, 4, 11 and metatheatre, 28–31, 35–6, 42, 62–9, 128, 138–44, 163, 169–71, 211–15, 221–3, 252–4, 257–60, 304–7, 320–2, 341–3 and structuralism/poststructuralism, 9–14	3 behaviour and acting, 70 and beauty, 224–6 and deception, 212 and decorum, 35–42, 49–51, 70–8 and Intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, 147–50 and physiognomy, 195–201 and Senecan constantia, 83–8 character, fictional and contingency, 1, 114, 263, 297–8, 300–2, 328, 343 and formalism, 4, 11 and metatheatre, 28–31, 35–6, 42, 62–9, 128, 138–44, 163, 169–71, 211–15, 221–3, 252–4, 257–60, 304–7, 320–2, 341–3 and structuralism/poststructuralism, 9–14	Barthes Roland 12 222 and acting, 70 and beauty, 224–6 and deception, 212 and decorum, 35–42, 49–51, 70–8 and Homer's Thersites, 241–2 and intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, 147–50 and physiognomy, 195–201 and Senecan constantia, 83–8 character, fictional and contingency, 1, 114, 263, 297–8, 300–2, 328, 343 and formalism, 4, 11 and metatheatre, 28–31, 35–6, 42, 62–9, 128, 138–44, 163, 169–71, 211–15, 221–3, 252–4, 257–60, 304–7, 320–2, 341–3 and structuralism/poststructuralism, 9–14 and beauty, 224–6 and deception, 212 and decorum, 35–42, 49–51, 70–8 and Homer's Thersites, 241–2 and intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, and deception, 212 and decorum, 35–42, 49–51, 70–8 and Homer's Thersites, 241–2 and intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, and decorum, 35–42, 49–51, 70–8 and Homer's Thersites, 241–2 and intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, 147–50 and physiognomy, 195–201 and Senecan constantia, 83–8 and formalism, 4, 11 and metatheatre, 28–31, 35–6, 42, 62–9, 128, 138–44, 163, 169–71, 211–15, 221–3, 252–4, 257–60, 304–7, 320–2, 341–3 and structuralism/poststructuralism, 9–14 and Homer's Thersites, 241–2 and metatheatre, 28–31, 35–6, 42, 62–9, and intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, and intertextuality, 28–31, 127–8, 147–50 221–3, 252–4, 257–60, 304–7, 320–2, and physiognomy, 195–201 341–3 and Senecan constantia, 83–8 and structuralism/poststructuralism, 9–14 and physiognomy, 195–201 341–3 and Senecan constantia , 83–8 and structuralism/poststructuralism, 9–14	*· - · · · and Senecan constantia, 83–8 and structuralism/poststructuralism, 9–14
	* * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * * *
continuity 01, 25 4, 51 5, 01 2, 70 05, us textual construct, 27 51, 55 0, 42, 45,	· - 163–5 62–9, 75–6, 86–7, 114–17, 124–8, exemplary patterns of, 102–7, 122–5, 138–44, 163, 165–71, 219–23, 130–44, 103, 105–71, 219–23, 144–6 229–33, 243–7, 252–60, 295–6, inconsistency of, 89–93 297–8, 304–7, 252–00, 295–0, 297–8 body, the. See also 'acting', 'physiognomy' human qualities of, 3, 16–17, 27–8, and 'character portraits', 235–42 31–56, 61–2, 69–88, 115–16, 118–38,

153-65, 191-5, 202-19, 221-9,	and Stoic ethics, 49–51, 71–2
233-7, 240-2, 247-52, 263-5,	in Cicero, 40-1, 72-5
283-320, 324-31, 337-45	in Horace, 77, 86–7 humanist theories of, 4, 13, 15	deification in the novel, 17, 235–40	and Atreus, 83, 96-7, 288-9 in the twentieth century, 9–15	and the sapiens , 96–7, 288–9
theoretical approaches to, 9–16	Demetrius Poliorcetes, 270–2, 292
chorus	description
	*
in Euripides' Heracles , 155	and 'character portraits', 235–42
in Euripides' Hippolytus , 205–6	and 'running commentaries', 184
in Phaedra , 213–15, 224–5, 227	and enactment, 219
in Senecan tragedy, 7	in Hercules, 166–7
in Thyestes , 93, 269	in Phaedra , 183–4
Chrysippus, 187	in Senecan tragedy, 183–6, 189–91
Cicero	Dido, 204–5
and autarkeia, 267–8	dismemberment, 227-8, 230-1
and exemplarity, 104-5	dramaturgy and persona theory, 37-8, 40-1, 49-50,	in Hercules, 165–6
71-7, 83-4	in Phaedra, 210
and self-aemulatio, 173-4	dubius
on physical appearance, 209-10	motif in Oedipus, 244-5, 247-9
on poetry and divination, 255	1 , 11 5, 1, 3
Cixous, Hélène, 10	effeminacy, 199-200
Cleanthes, 187, 199–200	Eliot, T. S., 2, 8
Clytemnestra	embodiment, 18–19, 109–14, 128–31, in Seneca's Agamemnon, 239–40	181–2, 223–4, 261
comoedia palliata, 59, 94–6, 314–15	emotions. See also 'face' consciousness, I–2, 22, 181, 192, 205, 209,	and aesthetic appropriateness, 42, 237, 302	86–7
	and Hercules, 153–9, 161–5 constantia, 34–6, 40–3, 51–6, 82, 84–8, 91 costumes, 64, 66, 169–71, 211–12, 215,	and Oedipus, 250–1
219–20, 321	and pathognomy, 197–8
cover image	and performance, 212
significance of, 347–8	and Stoic materialism, 187–92, 200–2
Creon	and the body, 181, 183–4, 187–92
in Medea , 43–4, 298–9	and the theatrical mask, 194
in Oedipus , 248–9, 258–60	and Thyestes, 65 and typology, 240
deception. See also 'acting'	Epictetus, 71–2 and physiognomy, 201-2	eulogy
in Medea, 53–4	and the Roman funeral, 112-13
in Phaedra, 207–19	in Troades, 120–1
in Thyestes, 78–82	Euripides
Decii Mures, 103–5	Heracles, 154–6
decorum	Hippolytus, 184, 205-6, 217
and Atreus, 70-2, 75-8, 84, 87-8	Hippolytus Kalyptomenos, 216–17
and Cato the Younger, 52-3	Medea, 28–30, 35, 59, 298
and Hippolytus, 284–5	Melanippe, 285–6
and Medea. 40–2	exemplarity

exemplarity (cont.)	formalism
and biology, 100-2, 104-5, 107-8, 111,	and theories of fictional character, 11-12
112–14, 116–17, 123–8, 134–5, 138,	freedom
154–6, 159	in Senecan Stoicism, 264-83 and family models, 99-101, 103-7,	overlap between political and personal,
111-13, 115-39, 141-4, 146-7,	267-74, 276-8, 332-3
150–1, 159–60	positive ('freedom to') versus negative and metapoetics, 114-17	('freedom from'), 274, 285
and mimesis, 99-103, 107-14, 131, 137,	revenge as source of, 293, 307-9, 142–4, 159	313–14, 318, 326
and statuary/sculptures, 108-11	suicide as source of, 329-37
and the Roman funeral, 112-13, 120-1	friendship and theatrical performance, 128, 138-44	in Senecan Stoicism, 278-80 self-reflexive forms of, 160-5, 171-9 extispicy	genealogy
in Oedipus, 243–6, 254–7	and Astyanax's relationship to Hector, 128-33
fabula praetexta, 113–14	and Atreus' revenge, 321-3 face, the. See also 'mask'	and exemplarity, 103-11, 128-33, 150-1 and anger, 188–90	and poetic imitation, 114-17, 125-8, 321-2
and disposition, 194, 197-8, 200,	gesture, 18–19, 63–4, 66, 138–9, 142, 181, 209–10, 220	184, 188, 190, 193, 201, 209, 211–12
and physiognomy, 197-8, 238	215–17, 232, 261
and Stoic materialism, 186-90, 225-6	Greimas, Algirdas, 11, 303-4 and Stoic pathognomy, 197–8
as index of emotion, 202, 239-40	habit of Astyanax, 129–31, 134–5	and dispositional traits, 197–8
of Clytemnestra, 239–40	and identity, 23
of Euripides' Phaedra, 205–6	and literary repetition, 30-4 of Heathcliff, 238	and soleo, 31–3
of Hippolytus, 219–26, 228	Hamlet, 300–2
of Oedipus, 20–1, 243–4, 246–7,	Harpagus
249-54, 341-3	in de Ira, 331
of Phaedra, 183–4, 192–3, 214–17	Heathcliff, 236–8
of the Minotaur, 208	Hector
of Thyestes, 64–5	as role model for Astyanax, 128–39, family, the. See also 'exemplarity',	141–4, 339–40
'recognition scenes'	in the Aeneid, 115–16 and Atreus, 309–12	ransom of, 122–3
and Hippolytus, 285–6	Hercules and paternity, 95–6, 309–12	and family relationships, 153–60 and reunion, 56–60, 94–6, 319	and Stoicism, 161–2
as source of emulation, 99–144, 150–1,	and suicide, 337–8
159–60	as fictional character, 163, 165–71
in Euripides' Heracles , 154–6	in Troades, 139–40
in Hercules, 153–60, 178–9	madness of, 170–1, 174–6
father–son relationships, 104–5, 111,	self-reflexive exemplarity of, 160–5
115–16, 118–38, 141–2, 153–60,	similarity to Lycus, 176–9
177–8, 222–3, 339–40	Hippolytus

and anger, 225–6, 285–7 and 2	Troades, 125–8 / imagines, 110–13, 144–8 and autonomy, 227–8, 284–7 individ	_ and Stoic ethics, 225-7, 284-7 and '	'character portraits', 237
and women, 285–6 and t	twentieth-century literary theory, as fictional construct, 220-3, 229-33	-I I corporeal integrity, 278 body of, 224-35 and i	interiority, 194-5, 237, 300-1 face of, 219–24 and s	self-conferred morality, 49-50, 73-5 implied human qualities of, 221-4, of Se	eneca's characters, 8 us normativity, 6, 37–8, 55, 1–2, 240
	us the collective, 95, 99–180 violence against Phaedra, 213 interior
Homer, 116, 126–8, 241–2 as m	otif in Phaedra , 202–10
Horace, 42, 68, 77–8, 86–7, 102, 231 psyc	thological, 181–2, 187–9, 191–5, 20	03-10, 240, 251, 302-3
identity intertex	xtuality. See also 'metatheatre'
and acts of recognition, 24–35, 47–8, and 6	exemplarity, 114–17, 126–8, 133–5, 18–50
and behavioural imitation, 99–152, and 5	Tacitean death scenes, 148–50
159–60 in M	Iedea, 28–31, 36, 45
	enecan scholarship, 4 hyestes, 75–6, 320–8
and freedom/self-determination, 227–8, isolatio	on
263–346 and A	Atreus, 94–7, 317–18
	Hercules, 156–65
	Hippolytus, 284–7
=	Medea, 56–60
	self-aemulatio, 171–9
	the Senecan sapiens, 267, 274–83 304-7, 320-4, 326-9, 341-3 and metatheatre, 28–31, 62–9, 138–44, Jane Ey 28–30, 32–4, 43–8, 54–60, 290,
)3-5, 298-9
	1, 243–5, 248
84–8, 165 suici	ide of, 340–1, 343–5
	65–9, 175–6, 338
and Stoic persona theory, 37–8, Jupiter the sapiens, 282–3
	fercules, 153–60
	lautus' Amphitruo , 95–6, 314–15
138–43, 193–4, 211–13, 223–4, 308–9	T' 1 s, Lionel, 15
in context of family relationships, 56–60,	- I-h C
94–7, 99–160, 293–5, 309–12, 316–18 Lavater	r, Johann Caspar, 235–7
	acy. See also 'family' acts of recognition, 56–60, 95–6 treus' sons, 95–6, 316–17 and Tholones, 241 2 01 A literary portraiture, 235-42	significance of in Senecan tragedy, 35-7

Livy, 102–3, 111, 173	68-9, 129, 153-4, 163, 244, 246-7,
Lucilius	250, 252-3, 295-6
in Seneca's Epistles , 34–6, 84, 87–8	Nero, 68, 152, 173, 337
Lycus, 156–9, 176–9	nota/notus
	and Hippolytus, 231–3
maius	motif in Oedipus, 245-7, 250, 253-4
motif in Thyestes, 32 I-5	novel, the, 17-18, 235-40
Manto, 243, 245, 248, 254	Nurse, the masculinity	as descriptive narrator, 183–5, 189–93
in Thyestes , 309–12, 315–16	in Agamemnon, 239
mask, the	in Medea , 189–91
and cover image, 347–8	in Phaedra , 183–4, 191–3, 213–14, 216 and imagines , 110–12, 146	284-5 and metatheatre, 20-I, 68, 220-3, 252-4 and physiognomy, 221-2	Oedipus
similarity to face, 181, 194, 219-24,	and self-harm, 340-3
347-8	and the dubius motif, 244-5, 247-9
Medea	face of, 20-1, 243-4, 246-7, 249-54, and autarkeia , 60, 289–99	341-3
and decorum, 40–2	resemblance to a text, 254-60 and isolation, 56–60	Ovid, 28–30, 76, 104, 323, 330
and metatheatre, 28-31, 36, 42, 52-4, 55-6, 304-7	paternity
and recognition, 28-35, 47-8, 54-60	and exemplarity, 104
and revenge, 291–9	and Oedipus, 245
and self-coherence, 31–56	in recognition scenes, 232 and self-division, 48–9	in Thyestes, 95–6, 309–12, 316–17, 319–20
and self-naming, 35-7	Paulina, wife of Seneca and Stoic 'indifferents', 290	and exemplarity, 151
and the Stoic sapiens, 37–42, 48–54,	person schema, 16–17
289–92	persona
as author/playwright, 304-7	in Stoic ethics, 6, 34–5, 37–42, 50–2, messenger speeches, 185, 259–60	71–8, 84–6
metatheatre	Petronius 'Arbiter', 149–51
in Hercules, 163, 169–71	Phaedra
in Medea, 28–31, 36, 42, 52–4, 55–6,	and deception, 208–19
304-7	and Euripides' Phaedra, 205–6 in Oedipus, 21, 252–4, 259–60, 342–3	and interiority, 191–5, 203–9 in Phaedra , 213, 219–24, 234–5	and veiling, 215–17 in Thyestes , 62–9, 320–1	and Vergil's Dido, 204–5
in Troades, 138–44	experience of love, 203–6, 214–15, 222
Minotaur, the, 207–8	face of, 183–4, 192–3, 213–17
	Philomela, 75–6, 310, 323–4
names	physiognomy
significance of in fiction, 12	and Cleanthes, 199–200
significance of in Roman exemplarity,	and Homer's Thersites, 241–2
103–6, 151	and Polemon, 195–7, 199
significance of in Senecan prose, 51–2	and revelation, 201-2

and Stoic materialism, 195–202	and intertextuality, 325–6 and the Latin Physiognomia, 201	and Medea, 291–9
and the pseudo-Aristotelian	and oppression/powerlessness, 307, Physiognomica, 196–7	309-20
in Seneca, 200-2, 239-40	and recompense/equilibrium, 292-4, in the eighteenth/nineteenth-century	307-8, 324-5
novel, 235-40	and Theseus, 303-4
versus pathognomy, 196-8	and undoing the past, 58, 296, 316-17
Pliny the Younger, 171–3	as 'satisfaction', 312-14
Priam, 121-4, 139-40	as source of autonomy, 292-329
Procne, 75–6, 310, 323–4	Rezitationsdrama, 166, 185, 190
Propp, Vladimir, 11–12
psychologising	sapiens, the
in literary theories of character, 13	and contingency, 274-83 psychology	and divinity, 280-3
and interiority, 181-2, 189, 191-5,	and immovability, 84-6
204-5, 208-10, 240, 251	and invulnerability, 282-3 and material realities, 186-9, 261	and self-sufficiency, 264-83
and the body, 187-9	as monarch, 267-9 in the eighteenth/nineteenth-century	isolation of, 267, 274-83 novel, 235-7	versus the tyrant, 269-74
of characters in the novel, 12	satis
of Seneca's characters, 8, 181–2, 191–5,	motif in Thyestes, 312-15
204–5, 208–10, 234, 247–8, 251	Schlegel, August Wilhelm von, 7
Pyrrhus	Scipio Aemilianus, 105
and soleo, 32	Scipio Africanus, 105
citing the Iliad , 126–7	self-aemulatio, 160–5, 171–9 in the Aeneid, 123–4	Seneca
in Troades , 118–28, 143–4	and physiognomy, 197–8, 200–2
Pythia, the, 256–9	and reflexive language, 276–8 and slaves/slavery, 334-6 recognition scenes. See also 'identity'	and writing for stage performance, 19-20 and family ties, 26-7, 56-60, 94-6,	as exemplum, 144–9
231–2	death scene in Tacitus, 145–7
and metatheatre, 28-31, 62-9	on public life, 275–8
and reunion, 56–60, 94–7	Shakespearean scholarship, 15, 49
and revelation, 27, 34-5, 47-8, 54-6,	Socrates
61, 233	death of, 147–51
Aristotle's definition of, 27, 61	Sophocles, 26, 47, 76, 94, 232, 251, repetition	259, 340
and Atreus, 322	sovereignty, individual and exemplarity, 102–4	and revenge, 293, 326
and structure of Troades , 117–18	and self-harm, 340–2 and the dynamics of revenge, 325–6	and suicide in Seneca, 332-4, 337
as motif in Medea , 32–4, 42–8	in Senecan tragedy, 264-5, 296-7, 318, of events in Hercules , 168–9	320, 323, 340–2
revenge	of the Senecan sapiens, 264–5, 272, and Atreus, 307–29	274–7, 279–80
and focalisation, 302-3	of the tyrant / ruler, 272, 337

spectatorship, 55-6, 63-6, 139-42	in de Ira, 331
Sphinx, the	in the Epistles, 334–6
in Oedipus , 255–6, 340	of Seneca, 145–9 statues, 108–11, 132
Stilbo, 270–2, 279, 285, 290, 292	Tacitus
Stoicism	death scenes in the Annals, 145-52
and 'indifferents', 266, 272, 278-9,	Tereus, 75–6, 310, 323–4
289–90, 332, 334	Thersites
and Atreus, 83–8, 288–9	and 'character portraits', 241-2 and constantia , 34–5, 48–50, 83–6	Theseus and decorum , 40–2, 70–8, 83–4, 284	as physiognomic interpreter, 215–21 and emotions / passions, 48–9, 88,	in Euripides' Heracles , 155–6
187–92, 197–8	in Euripides' Hippolytus , 205
and freedom, 265–92, 329–37, See also	in Hercules, 157
'autarkeia' , 'autonomy'	in Phaedra , 209–10, 215–23, 229–35, and friendship, 278–80	303-4
and Hercules, 162	reassembles Hippolytus, 229–35
and Hippolytus, 224–9, 284–7	Thrasea Paetus and inpportus, 224–9, 264–7 and isolation, 266–92	suicide of, 149–52 and kingship, 267–9 and materialism, 186–90, 194, 200,	Thyestes and metatheatre, 62–6
210–12, 260–1	and pregnancy, 310–12
and Medea, 48–54, 289–92	and suicide, 330–1 and persona theory, 6, 37–8, 40–2, 52–3	as actor, 63–6
and physiognomy, 195–202	changeability of, 89–93
and scholarship on Senecan tragedy, 4–5,	Tiresias
49, 93, 162	in Oedipus , 243–5, 254, 257–9
and self-fashioning, 36	Tomashevsky, Boris, 11
and Seneca's suicide, 147–8	Trajan, 171–3
and Senecan ideas of suicide, 332–7, 341	tyrants/tyranny, 70–2, 147–8, 175–8, and sympatheia, 248	265–74, 287–8, 309–10, 317–20, 332, and the Cynics, 267	335-7
and the Senecan retreat from public life, 275-8	Ulysses
and theatrical analogies, 37, 41-2,	in Troades , 117–18, 132, 139–41
50-I, 73-5
and Thyestes, 93, 269	veil
and virtus , 162, 225, 280–1, 289–90	of Phaedra, 209, 215–17
structuralism	Vergil, 115–17, 123–4, 133–5, 204–5
and theories of fictional character, 9-14,	virtus, 161–3, 166, 175–9, 225, 280–1, 283, 303-4	289–90, 332, 336
suicide. See also 'freedom'	voice, the affinities with revenge, 329-30, 337-8	in physiognomy, 201
and Astyanax, 339-40	of Medea, 305–6 and exemplarity, 145-52
and Hercules, 337–8	Wuthering Heights, 236–9 and Jocasta, 343-5
and Thyestes, 330-I	Zeno, 187, 199