
Society and Culture in Early Modern France

Eight Essays by Natalie Zemon Davis

These essays, three previously unpublished, explore the competing claims of innovation and tradition in 16th-century France. The result is a wide-ranging new view of men and women (artisans, tradesmen, the poor) who, because they left little or nothing in writing, have been hitherto neglected by scholars. The papers discuss such topics as the social sources, composition, and consequences of Calvinism; the function of festivals of status and sex role reversal (carnivals etc.); popular violence; youth groups; journeymen's societies; male and female literacy rates; and the relation between oral, popular, and learned culture. The Chinese City Between Two Worlds

Edited by Mark Elvin & G. William Skinner. Important though the countryside was as the basis of Mao's rise to power, the roots of the Chinese revolution were urban and can only be understood in terms of their urban setting. Twelve scholars trace the role of cities in Chinese history from 1842-1949, emphasizing these urban roots. Among the topics covered are the treaty ports, the growth of financial institutions, revolutionary mobilization, warlord control, social reform, administrative transformation, religious change, and patterns of migration. Studies in Chinese Society. $18.75

THE WORLD TODAY

STUDENTS OF CURRENT AFFAIRS, to be well informed, need the facts. In THE WORLD TODAY, the monthly journal of the Royal Institute of International Affairs, experts bring to the general reader up-to-date and reliable information on world affairs.

Authoritative and objective, THE WORLD TODAY deals primarily with international problems but also includes articles on internal political and economic conditions in individual countries or regions, written by authors with first-hand knowledge. Short comment in 'Notes of the Month' puts current developments in perspective and provides a background to events of international significance.

Backward Toward Revolution

The Chinese Revolutionary Party
Edward Friedman

Focusing on the years just prior to the founding of China's Communist Party, Mr. Friedman studies the revolutionary efforts of China's rural rebels and radical intellectuals. Asking what fused the explosive energies of these people, he finds the answer not in organizational secrets but in the personal, familial and religious crises of the people, in the values and beliefs of the revolutionaries themselves.

Byzantium and Bulgaria

A Comparative Study Across the Early Medieval Frontier
Robert Browning

Concentrating on the crucial period of the 9th and 10th centuries, Mr. Browning studies the establishment of the Bulgarian state in the northern half of the Balkan peninsula, its relations with the East Roman Empire, and the development of institutions and way of life. He finds that Bulgaria and Byzantium were not merely comparable, but were contiguous and were in continuous political, military, religious, commercial and cultural contact with one another.

Announcing an important new series

PAST AND PRESENT SUPPLEMENTS

Past and Present has always been most anxious to be very flexible over the length of its articles, and it has published some articles far longer than one normally finds in journals. Unfortunately the pressures on our space are now so great that it is no longer possible for us, save in most exceptional circumstances, to publish such long articles in the journal itself. But we fully recognize the importance of continuing to provide authors with an outlet for long studies of between about 40 and 100 pages of print (18–45,000 words, including footnotes), and indeed to publish more of these than we have been able to in the past. We have therefore decided to launch a series of Supplements, which will be in the same format as the journal. The first two Supplements are:

1. J. R. MADDICOTT, The English Peasantry and the demands of the Crown 1294–1341. 73 pp. PRICE 95p. ($3).
2. R. J. W. EVANS, The Wechel Presses: Humanism and Calvinism in Central Europe 1572–1627. 75 pp. PRICE 95p. ($3).

Libraries and other institutions are particularly urged to place Standing Orders for the series of Supplements.

Copies are obtainable from:

The Business Manager, Past and Present,
P. O. Box 28, Oxford OX2 7BN, England.

Please await receipt of invoice before sending any remittance.

We invite authors to submit studies of between about 40 and 100 pages of print (18–45,000 words, including footnotes). These should be sent (two copies) to:

The Editor, Past and Present,
Corpus Christi College, Oxford OX1 4JF.

Comparative Studies in Society and History is a forum for presentation and discussion of new research into problems of change and stability that recur in human societies through time or in the contemporary world. It sets up a working alliance between specialists in all branches of the social sciences and humanities. Debate and review articles bring the general reader in touch with current findings and issues.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Contributions may be descriptive, analytical or theoretical. Any article not in itself comparative may be accepted if it lends itself to comment that will place it in comparative perspective. Correspondence with the editors prior to the submission of articles will help to enable them to obtain such comment or a companion study. Emphasis in comparative studies may be either on similarities or, if these are significant enough and call for some recasting of generalisations, on differences. All contributions and editorial correspondence should be sent to the Editors, Comparative Studies in Society and History, Department of History, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48104.

Two copies of each contribution, preferably accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope, should be submitted. Both text and footnotes should be clearly typed with double spacing and wide margins; footnotes should appear on separate pages at the end of the article. Illustrations may be included by arrangement with the editors.

Contributors will receive 50 offprints bound in the journal covers. Any additional offprints must be ordered on receipt of the first proof.

ISI Tear Service, 325 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19106, U.S.A. is authorized to supply copies of separate articles for private use only.

Claims for missing issues will be considered only if made immediately upon receipt of the subsequent issue.
